BRITISH TROOPS BURN RANGOON WAR SUPPLIES

Rush Abandonment of Burma Capital.

MANDALAY, Burma, Feb. 24 (AP).—Rangoon was semi-deserted tonight. The American military mission in the city worked feverishly to get out thousands of tons of war supplies destined for China, and the British were reported to be applying the torch to all unmovable military stores.

Abandonment of the Burmese capital was under way. British imperial defenders withdrew to the west bank of the Sittang river after the Japanese captured the eastern end of a bridgehead across that last natural barrier to Rangoon, some 60 miles away.

Race Against Time.

With the fighting raging for 100 miles along the Sittang and drawing ever closer to Rangoon, American authorities supervised the loading of lend-lease supplies in hundreds of trucks heading northward from the port city in a desperate race against time.

It was understood that some unassembled American trucks piled on Rangoon docks would be destroyed lest they fall in Japanese hands.

Unify Burma-India Defense.

As the battle for Rangoon sped toward a climax, the British unified the defense of Burma with that of distant India under the command of the British commander in chief for India, Gen. Sir Alan Fleming Hartley.

American volunteer and RAF pilots were in continuous action, pounding Japanese troop and transport columns which one pilot said "were thick as ants and couldn't be missed." Four Japanese planes were downed in air fights from which the British and Americans escaped unscratched.

Heavy Losses on Both Sides.

LONDON, Feb. 24 (AP).—British troops have withdrawn to the west banks of the Sittang river after inflicting heavy casualties on the Japanese troops invading Burma, the all-India radio said today quoting official accounts.

The report covered land fighting for the last four days.

The Japanese were within 20 miles of the Rangoon-Mandalay-Lashio railroad that supplies the Burma road.

It appeared probable the railway line now might come under direct artillery fire north of Pegu, a city which has been bombed several times.

Jap Troops Reënforced.

BERLIN, Feb. 25 [Wednesday] [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—Japanese forces advancing into Burma are being strongly reënforced by troops freed for action in other areas by completion of the Malayan campaign, DNB declared today. The news agency said that a convoy of 60 ships had recently landed Japanese troops and equipment from Singapore at Martaban, and said additional reënforcements were moving into the area overland.

[Dispatches from Mandalay yesterday quoted American and British pilots in Burma as saying all roads in the Japanese rear were crowded with troops moving toward the front "as thick as ants."]

Chinese Push Back Japs.

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 24 (AP).—Chinese troops for the third time have pushed back Japanese forces attempting to break into northern Burma over the Thai frontier, a Chinese communique said today.

14 MILLION LBS. OF SUGAR BOUGHT FOR LEND-LEASE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—The purchase of more than 14 million pounds of sugar on Feb. 21 for lend-lease purposes was disclosed today by the Surplus Marketing administration.

A spokesman said the sugar was bought thru a broker. During January approximately 17½ million pounds of sugar was bought for lend-lease purposes.

It is known that the United States and Britain are jointly committed to supply the Russians about 850,000 tons of sugar this year.

Nazi Army Shattered in Red Trap

ROUNDUP OF THE NEWS FROM ALL FIGHTING FRONTS

War's latest developments:

Communiques issued by the high command of the Dutch East Indies told of a Japanese aerial assault on Bandoeng, Java, site of the Dutch army headquarters. Ten Japanese bombers dropped "light bombs," setting fire to oil drums, and machine gunned automobiles in the streets, according to the communique. No mention was made of the military situation on the Islands of Bali and Sumatra, both of which have been invaded by the Japanese.

Burn Rangoon Supplies.

A dispatch from Mandalay disclosed that the British abandonment of Rangoon, capital of Burma, was under way. The British defenders were reported to be putting the torch to unmovable military stores lest they fall into the hands of the Japanese invaders. An American military mission was said to be racing against time to get out thousands of tons of lend-lease supplies destined for China. The Japs admittedly were about 60 miles from the city following a British withdrawal to the west bank of the Sittang river.

From Australia came word that Japanese parachute troops had landed near Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor. Tokio said that its warships had captured a Dutch freighter and tanker off Koepang.

Japs Drop Fire Bombs.

The United States war department announced that Japanese planes had dropped a "considerable number" of incendiary bombs behind Gen. MacArthur's lines in the Philippines.

The Red army in a special communique announced that a German army of 45,000 men was shattered with 12,000 Germans killed. The action occurred 140 miles south of Leningrad, said a Moscow dispatch. Moscow dispatches to London said that in the last 48 hours the Russians had made important gains also on the southwestern front, presumably between Orel and Kharkov.

On the Libyan front the British claimed that desert patrols scouting axis positions routed small enemy parties. The Italians said the British Mediterranean base of Malta was bombed again.

HOUSE BILL SETS UP ICKES AS MONOPOLIST IN KENTUCKY'S CAVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—The house public lands committee today approved a bill to give Interior Secretary Harold Ickes' National Park Service a monopoly on the cave business in Kentucky.

The bill authorizes the park service to use its profits from the operation of Mammoth cave, up to $350,000, for the purchase of two privately operated caves in the same area.

Rep. Beverly M. Vincent [D., Ky.], author of the bill, said the government probably will close the competing caves after taking them over. Vincent was asked whether this would not constitute a monopolistic practice in restraint of the cave trade.

According to Vincent, the two private caves have been guilty of unfair competition.

"They are called the Mammoth Crystal and the Mammoth Onyx, but they use only the words 'Mammoth Cave' in their direction signs, and thus mislead the tourists," Vincent declared. "That is unfair. What the people want to see is the original Mammoth cave, where the gunpowder was made in the war of 1812."

12,000 KILLED IN 10 DAY FIGHT, RUSSIANS SAY

3 Divisions Cut Up; Vital Points Won.

MOSCOW, Feb. 25 [Wednesday]—(AP).—An entire German army of 45,000 men has been shattered and 12,000 of the enemy killed in a smashing 10 day Red army victory, the Russians announced early today in a special communique.

This Nazi army—the 16th—was encircled in the vital Staraya Russa district, 140 miles south of Leningrad and 270 miles northwest of Moscow, and suffered one of the most crushing defeats yet inflicted upon Adolf Hitler's legions.

Vast Stores of Booty.

"Material captured is 185 guns, 135 trench mortars, 29 tanks, 340 machine guns, 4,150 automatic rifles and rifles, 450 motor vehicles, 320 motorcycles, 560 bicycles, 15 tractors, 125 railway cars, 8 railway engines, 14,000 artillery shells, 9,700 mines, 1,300,000 rounds of ammunition, 6,350 hand grenades, 53 pontoons, 65 miles of telephone cable, 27 radio sets, 385 parachutes, and 335 horses."

Listed officially as smashed were the 290th infantry division of the 2d German army corps, the 13th infantry division of the 10th army and a division of Hitler's picked Black Shirt S. E. élite guards. The Reds said the German commander was Gen. von Bush and the victorious soviet leader, Lieut. Gen. Kurochkin.

Costs Hitler Vital Positions.

Besides the enormous losses in men and material the defeat cost Hitler vital positions he needed to protect his imperiled forces holding the town of Staraya Russa, keystone of all his positions on the northwestern front.

The town lies some 12 miles south of Lake Ilmen and is a communications center on an east-west railroad connecting the main Moscow-Leningrad line and another running southward from Leningrad farther west and a third which skirts the west shores of Ilmen and is linked directly to the long line to Murmansk.

Drive on Toward Smolensk.

On the central front the Russians were reported smashing on toward Smolensk, the strongest Nazi position remaining there, amid violent fighting, the soviet radio declared.

[London reported dispatches from Moscow said today that important new gains had been made by the Russians on the southwestern front, presumably between Orel and Kharkov, the last 48 hours. A path is being blasted thru a complicated German defense system on the southern front, and the fighting has been fiercer with more men involved than for a long time, these dispatches said.]

Nazis Attack in Crimea.

BERLIN, Feb. 24 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—German troops launched a heavy attack and captured strong positions from the Russians in the eastern Crimea on Monday, it was reported here tonight. Two Russian regiments immediately counterattacked, but the Germans held the positions and inflicted heavy losses, it was said.

BOAT CARRYING 750 JEWS BLOWS UP IN BLACK SEA

VICHY, France, Feb. 24 (AP).—The small steamer Struma with 750 Jewish refugees from Rumania and Bulgaria aboard was blown to pieces in the Black sea about five miles north of the Bosporus, apparently by a stray mine, an Istanbul dispatch to the Vichy news agency said today. There have been no reports of survivors.

The vessel, of less than 400 tons, was flying the Panama flag and was being towed by a Turkish tug. The Struma sank immediately, it was said. It was reported that the Turkish vessel Chankaya went down in the same locality simultaneously.

The refugees did not have entry papers either for Turkey or Palestine, and the Struma had been ordered to leave the harbor, the dispatch said. The captain of the ship had repeatedly declared the vessel was not seaworthy.

ELGIN MARKSMAN, 14, SHOT TO DEATH WHEN EXAMINING OLD GUN

Melvin E. Struckman, 14 years old, was shot and killed yesterday in the Edward H. Abbott Junior High school, Elgin, when examining an old pistol given to him three weeks ago by a schoolmate.

Melvin Struckman.

Young Struckman, who was to have received an expert marksman's merit badge and his first class Boy Scout pin tonight at a special court of honor in Geneva, was regarded as a juvenile expert on firearms. He was the only Elgin youth ever to qualify for the Scout marksmanship badge.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Struckman, 319 Washington street, Elgin. Since he was 8 or 9 years old he had hunted with his father, an Elgin fireman, and his grandfather, Charles Struckman, retired Elgin detective.

SINGAPORE FELL DANCING GAILY, SAY REFUGEES

A BRITISH PORT, Feb. 24 (AP).—Woebegone refugees from Singapore, standing in the midst of their few salvaged belongings, said tonight the island fortress which surrendered in six days "was caught lying down."

"It was a case of the 'Singapore mind' to the end," dryly remarked N. Hamilton of Dunfermline, Scotland, an engineer. "We had two or three air raids before we left. They were revelations. Most of the lights in the city were ablaze when the Japanese planes came. Dances and parties were in full swing. Even the Japanese raiders came over with navigation lights on."

A naval officer who survived the sinking of the battle cruiser Repulse off Malaya and went to Singapore corroborated Hamilton's story.

"I found no air raid shelters," he said. "What a contrast I found later in Java. The Dutch are determined to fight to the end. They have made use of natural volcanic defenses in their island."

Tragedy Rides Lifeboat with 34 Men 9 Days

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 24 [Special].—The terror and tragedy that rode for nine days and nights with 34 men overcrowded into a lifeboat, with some going mad and leaping into the sea, was unfolded today with arrival of a copy of the boat's log.

The gripping sea saga was couched in the laconic phraseology of a bluff merchant skipper, but the succinctness of his account only emphasized their desperate plight as tragedy after tragedy beset them after their ship, the freighter Lahaina, was sunk by a Japanese submarine 800 miles off the Hawaiian Islands on Dec. 11.

Packed in 20-Foot Boat.

Shells from the submarine smashed all but one of the Lahaina's lifeboats before setting her afire and sinking her. A hail of flying steel surrounded Capt. Hanso Matthiesen and his men as they pulled away from the stricken ship in a 20 foot lifeboat.

The heavy human freight and their scanty provisions weighted the lifeboat's gunwales to the water line. Aboard for the 34 men were a case of eggs, half a case of apples, 25 pounds of carrots, a case of ship's biscuits, a quarter case of lemons, 5 loaves of bread, and a pound of butter and 10 gallons of water.

The log chronicles life aboard the tiny craft from the time they left the ship at 1:45 p. m. on Dec. 11, four days after the attack on Pearl Harbor, until 6 a. m. Dec. 21, when the skipper brought the boat thru a reef on the Island of Maui.

Hawaii—800 Miles Away.

After the Lahaina sank at noon the following day, the captain set his course for Hawaii, 800 miles away. Crew watchers were established and men were assigned to oars, there being no wind and only a gentle swell. Dinner that night was one raw egg and half a cup of water per man.

At 10 p. m. the thunder of aircraft engines overhead was heard and Capt. Matthiesen fired a Very signal pistol, but there was no response. The log said that "morale was still high in spite of disappointment." Supper the next night was one ship's biscuit and half a cup of water.

"After supper," the log read, "Hillard Moore, second cook, went out of his mind and became violent, endangering the lives of all hands. He was secured and lashed to the bottom of the boat. Crew showing signs of restlessness caused by ravings of Moore."

"Dinner, One Carrot."

By midnight the next day Moore had calmed and a few hours later was freed of his bonds, the log continuing: "No complaints from crew, but all hands wet and cold . . . dinner, one carrot per man to conserve water."

"Moore suddenly became violent and was hastily secured," the log began on Dec. 18.

Moore was dead at 4 a. m. the next morning and before breakfast was "committed to the deep with appropriate ceremony."

Mauna Loa Sighted.

"Daybreak sighted Mauna Loa," the thankful skipper writing the name of Hawaii's huge volcanic peak in capitals.

With the sail hoisted and the course set for the sighted Maui, Albert Lundquist, a seaman, suddenly shouted "now stop me," and jumped overboard, the skipper briefly noting that "no rescue could be made because of heavy combers, altho sail was doused."

Altho the thunder of surf on the Kanului coast could be heard, the tragedies had not ended. Shortly after midnight, Concezio del Tinot, oiler, jumped overboard in an attempt to swim to shore. He could not be rescued.

The next morning the skipper found a hole in the reef and landed, but still another life was to be lost. Herman Freedman, son of Louis Freedman, 4343 W. 13th street, Chicago, after surviving the perilous nine days at sea, died shortly after the lifeboat reached shore.

Subs Torpedo Two Tankers; Fear 16 Dead

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 24 [Special].—The navy today announced the torpedoing of two U. S. tankers with an apparent loss of 16 lives. The Cities Service Empire, 8,103 ton tanker of New York, was torpedoed with a probable loss of 11 lives. Twenty-nine survivors were landed at Fort Pierce, Fla.

Earlier in the day it was announced that the American-owned 5,287 ton Republic, of Houston, Tex., was torpedoed with a loss of five lives.

The captain of the Cities Service Empire was among seven persons reported killed by the torpedo blast and resulting fire, while four others were missing and presumed lost, survivors said. Seven of the survivors were burned or otherwise injured and were admitted to hospitals at undisclosed points.

Says 3 Torpedoes Struck.

Three torpedoes struck the Cities Service Empire, the first two in quick succession and the third after an interval, according to Frank Heap, 38 year old seaman from Quincy, Mass., a member of the ship's crew.

Heap said that he was in his bunk when the attack started and that in attempting to reach the deck he found one stairway blocked by wreckage. He went up by another stairway and found the starboard side of the ship in flames, he declared.

"We tried to lower a lifeboat but it caught on fire, so we took a raft to the other side and lowered it," he related. "Twenty-three of us finally got aboard.

Says Discipline Was Perfect.

"The discipline of the men was perfect," Heap said. "We left the ship in the exact order we were supposed to. The first assistant engineer was first on the raft. He got on to take charge and see that the raft didn't push away from the ship. A fellow with a broken arm was next and then some other injured men followed."

Heap, who suffered a badly cut and bruised nose, said that he slid down a rope and reached the raft safely and that the third assistant and the chief engineer were the last to board the raft.

"We were on the raft three and one-half hours before we were picked up," Heap said. "I didn't have anything on except my shorts, but the weather wasn't bad. We weren't worried because we figured help would come."

Land 28 of Republic's Crew.

The navy did not make public either the time or the location of the attack on the Republic, which was operated by the Petroleum Navigation company. Twenty-eight survivors, two of them slightly injured, were received at an unidentified community where residents gave them dry clothing and food, it was said.

Capt. Alfred H. Anderson said there were two explosions close together and that he did not see the torpedoes. Three men were believed killed in the engine room and two messmen were missing and believed drowned.

Six Rare Pigeons Among 24 Missing from Zoo

Twenty-four pigeons, six of them rare, vanished from the Lincoln park zoo yesterday. Floyd Young, zoo director, is convinced they didn't fly away. Some one broke a window in the log house where the birds were kept with ducks, geese and wild fowl.

KILLER FLEES LOOP THEATER AFTER SHOOTING

Police Seek Youth She Had Dated.

A pretty girl was shot to death late yesterday afternoon as she sat watching a movie thriller in the Palace theater at 159 West Randolph street. Her slayer and companion—a young man dressed in gray—melted away in the darkness of the theater, and disappeared just before police arrived to block all exits.

For nearly 12 hours the mystery of the sensational crime, which sent dozens of movie patrons scurrying from their seats, was complicated by the lack of identification of the victim. Not until shortly before 3 o'clock this morning was she identified.

She was Miss Dorothy Broz, 17 years old, of 2124 Scoville avenue, Berwyn, daughter of Frank J. Broz, well known as a real estate dealer and community leader in the western suburbs.

Miss Broz was once named the "All-American girl" at the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, which she attended.

Police Seek Berwyn Youth.

Immediately with the identification, police speeded squads out on a search for a young man with whom Miss Broz was known to have gone out on several occasions. His name was not revealed, but it was learned his home also is in Berwyn. He was sought for questioning.

Miss Broz's body was identified at the county morgue by her uncle, Emil J. Broz, 1919 Allport street, an assistant corporation counsel, who acted in place of her parents, who were prostrated.

Altho they knew of the shooting from newspapers and radios, they did not suspect the victim was their daughter until after midnight when she failed to return home. This fact, plus a description of her clothing, confirmed tragic suspicions, and they asked Attorney Broz to view the body.

Considered a Home Girl.

The lawyer was met at the county morgue by Coroner A. L. Brodie and his police investigators, Sergts. Ollie Karwoski and Francis Donohue. After taking a brief statement from Broz, the coroner asked police to apprehend the Berwyn youth.

According to Broz, his niece was considered strictly a home girl with a wide circle of friends, but, so far as was known, no enemies who might have wanted to kill her.

This description deepened the police conviction that the apparently motiveless murder was the result of an impetus puppy love affair, with a mixture of jealousy added.

Slaying Was Melodramatic.

The slaying was executed in melodramatic fashion—in a theater on Chicago's gay Rialto, within sight of many of the hundreds of patrons while a mystery movie, "Sealed Lips," was unfolding in light and shadow on the distant screen.

Up in the balcony, where sweethearts usually sit, sat Miss Broz and the young man who soon was to kill her. They were almost alone. Here and there were little islands of other spectators. A few minutes before they had laughed hilariously at the mad comedy "Hellzapoppin'," which closed with a roar and a bang. Now they were grim eyed at the mystery drama.

Suddenly a shrill, frightened cry echoed thru the theater. The time was 4:27 p. m. The cry came from the balcony.

"Help, O help me! He's got a gun."

Drew Little Attention.

The plea and the warning came from Miss Broz. Only a few of the balcony spectators turned. The cry was reminiscent of the noisy comedy just ended. But those who turned saw Miss Broz leap from her seat. Then they heard a shot.

Then they saw Miss Broz collapsed in the aisle, and the grayish figure of a young man standing above her and to one side. In his hand he held a revolver. That much they could make out in the dim light. In another second he had passed upstairs to the nearest exit, then turned north, and down a main stairway.

Pursuer Starts Too Late.

Thomas Bresnahan, 6408 South Seeley avenue, a sales manager, and his wife, Louise, recovered from their shock to pursue the killer, but the few seconds' start he had frustrated them.

An alarm was sounded. Theater attachés called traffic police from Randoph and La Salle streets. They

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—The Office of Price Administration today announced new passenger car quotas by states and counties from a national total of 145,500 that are to be made available for purchasers between March 2 and May 31.

The few who are eligible to buy—only those lacking a usable car for services held essential to the community and the country—must obtain certificates from local ration boards.

Cook county, Illinois, is allotted 3,942 automobiles for sale during the three month period. Allotments for other Illinois counties of the metropolitan area are: Lake, 178; Du Page, 169; Will, 138; Kane, 181, and Lake [Indiana], 316.

8,789 Allotted Illinois.

The Illinois allotment is 8,789 passenger cars. For other Chicagoland states the figures are: Indiana, 3,970; Wisconsin, 2,923; Michigan, 8,289, and Iowa, 2,071.

Quotas for sale after May 31 will be announced before that time. A total of 340,000 cars, less than a 10th of normal peacetime requirements, are to be rationed this year. The nation's stockpile is 480,000 units and no more are to be built until after the war. Some are being held for sale in 1943 and thereafter.

Based on Registration.

In general, the quotas were determined, according to the OPA announcement, by using 1941 registrations as a guide. However, in many localities the extent of local war and armament activities was a factor. This factor as well as others, such as population, area, and exposure to potential air and naval attack, played a part in setting up state reserves. This accounts, it was said, for a large reserve [1,652 cars] provided for California, a state of long distances and a long coastline. Each state is given a reserve in addition to its county quotas.

As a further example Illinois is given a reserve of 454 whereas Michigan is given a reserve of 917. In Michigan, with its automobile industries converted to armament plants, will be a half million or so arms workers dependent upon motor transportation for this vital activity. The higher registration in Illinois is reflected in the 8,789 in this state's quota as compared with Michigan's 8,289.

Must Last for Duration.

"The liberal quotas established for the first three months," commented Price Administrator Leon Henderson, "reflect our previously announced policy of permitting distribution of new passenger automobiles other than those held in the 'stockpile,' roughly during the period of a year.

"The decision to release a large number of cars has not been made lightly. Some automobile transportation is essential to the operation of our economy. New automobiles are extremely scarce commodities—total stocks which must last for the 'duration' represent only about six weeks' supply measured in terms of 1941 demand.

Reserves Listed.

PROPOSAL TO CONVERT BIG AUTOS TO BUSES FOR DEFENSE STUDIED

Plans for conversion of large passenger automobiles into buses to carry one million defense workers to their jobs were discussed yesterday by Henry Pope Jr., state rationing administrator, and officials of the Chicago Motor club.

A conference with J. J. Cavanagh, general manager of the Motor club, J. H. Braun, secretary and general counsel, and James H. Bulger, vice president, brought an estimate of 25,000 cars which could be made available in Illinois for such conversion. A minimum cost of $100 would be necessary to convert an auto for bus purpose, and an increase of 30 per cent in operation costs over normal operation would maintain, it was estimated.

George W. Anderson, supervisor of Motor vehicles for the Illinois Commerce commission, expressed an opinion that operation of such transportation service would be legal without commission hearings.

HAWAII DEFENSE IS STILL WEAK, SENATOR WARNS

West Coast Also Called Poorly Guarded.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—Sen. Rufus C. Holman [R., Ore.] told military witnesses before the senate appropriations committee during hearings on the 32 billion dollar supplemental defense appropriation bill that Hawaii and the west coast were inadequately defended.

Sen. Rufus C. Holman.

The record of the hearing, made public today, showed that Holman read excerpts from a letter giving the opinion of "one of the foremost citizens of Honolulu" that even if the defense of the territory were doubled "the situation still will be unsafe."

"In other words, in the mind of a very sensible man," Holman said, "The Hawaiian Islands are not adequately defended, and I don't think the military men will say they are adequately defended. I don't think the coast is adequately defended. We have had it passed off with the expression that it is as good as we can do—but it isn't as good as we can do."

Holman also complained about an aluminum fabricating plant and rolling mill being located in Spokane, Wash., instead of Fairview, Ore., and the slowness in getting production of munitions under way.

Holman, who said he "was being given the run around" by government officials in transfer of the aluminum plant to Spokane, went into the subject during testimony by Maj. Gen. R. C. Moore, deputy chief of staff, and R. P. Patterson, war undersecretary. of war.

He said the government had bought 160 acres of land for $62,804 and had spent $10,000 clearing the site when decision was made to change the site to Spokane. He said every day's delay cost in production of sheet metal enough to build 40 bombers or 96 pursuit planes. He said he estimated 60 days' delay cost 2,400 bombers.

PLAN TO SPEED COLLECTION OF PAPER SALVAGE

Winnetka and Western Springs Lead Drive.

With thousands of tons of waste paper accumulating in the basements of Chicago and suburban householders who are eager to contribute it to the salvage campaign, plans were announced yesterday to speed paper collection and turn it back into manufacturing channels.

At present only about half of the 60,000 tons of paper used in Chicago every month is salvaged and returned to the mills where it is made into paperboard for packing shells and bombs and hundreds of other items many of them for use of the army and the navy.

Two suburbs, Western Springs and Winnetka, have been particularly successful in their paper salvage drives. Volunteers have collected the paper and sold it to waste material dealers, who sell it to the mills.

Dealers Collect Bulk.

In Chicago the bulk of the collections is thru the city's 3,000 junk dealers and various charitable agencies such as the Salvation Army and the Catholic salvage bureau, which are expanding their operations.

Janitors in apartment buildings have been requested to save salvageable materials, which they sell to the dealers. Men employed by Oscar Hewitt, city commissioner of public works, on the work relief program are gathering paper from the streets.

Hewitt proposed that this program should be extended to include house to house collection calls once a week by the reliefers, but the Chicago Relief administration turned down the proposal, saying there were not enough able bodied persons on the rolls to supply the required labor. Such a program would need only 600 men a week; there are more than 55,000 cases on relief.

It is planned to enlist the city's school children as collectors for a week, but officials admitted such a drive would be only temporary.

2,000 Offers Daily.

Nathaniel Leverone, state salvage director for the War Production board, said the switchboard at State 8787, salvage headquarters, receives an average of 2,000 calls a day from householders who have paper, indicating the citizens' desire to cooperate. Most of the calls are from persons who have less than 100 pounds of paper saved, and in such cases it is unprofitable for junk dealers to make special calls.

Representatives of the paper industry say mill inventories are too low to assure steady production of the vast amounts required for military and civilian purposes.

It is estimated that 20,000 tons of corrugated paper boxes are used every month to pack lend-lease supplies sent to England, Russia, and China. There is no way to recover that paper.

Gets Quick Results.

In Western Springs, D. W. Elliott, 1348 Walnut street, an insurance executive, produced quick results when he was appointed chairman of the waste paper conservation committee. He obtained an empty shack, formed a working committee of townsmen, and had one of the committeemen contribute a scale. Then, thru the Boy Scouts, of whom he is district chairman, he had letters delivered to 1,400 homes in the suburb. These letters listed types of salvageable paper and asked that each householder bring his to the shack between 9 a. m. and 4 p. m. on Saturday.

Elliott weighed the paper and paid 55 cents a hundred pounds, about 80 per cent of the ceiling price for paper. On each of the last two Saturdays the residents brought in 8 tons and the drive is going ahead. Boy Scouts called for other bundles. The 20 per cent profit realized by the committee is given to the village civilian defense office for expenses.

In Winnetka, the salvage chairman, James Mann, asked householders to pile old papers and 69 other varieties of scrap on their lawns. The piles were collected by volunteers and sold to waste material dealers. The money will be used for charitable purposes.

HELD ON ARSON CHARGE.

Sibrand Bloom, confessed firebug, was held for Lake county grand jury action by Police Magistrate Ford Wilson in Zion last night on one charge of arson, three charges of maliciously starting fires, and one charge of burglery.

stood guard at the doors. Within a few minutes half a dozen squads were on the scene and completed the barricade. However, the killer had flown.

For hours, until closing time, police remained on guard, watching all departing patrons and searching for any one answering the slayer's description. This search lasted until nearly 1 a. m. After the theater had closed all lights were turned on and a seat to seat search was made for the gun or other telltale clews. None was found.

Dressed in Gray Suit.

The best description of the slayer was given by the Bresnahans, who were sitting 25 feet from him and his attractive victim. They said he was young, and dressed in a light gray suit without hat or overcoat.

Police voiced some criticism of the theater management for not immediately halting the show and turning on the lights so that the killer, if he were still in the theater, might have been captured. Even while police were in the theater investigating, patrons continued to purchase tickets and enter, many of them—like many patrons on the first floor—unaware of the real life tragedy which had just taken place.

It was established that Miss Broz arrived at the theater at 1:48 p. m. Ticket Taker George Hatley and Usher Joseph Stauder said they believed that she was with another girl. Two ticket stubs were found in Miss Broz's purse, indicating that she had a companion. Other theater employés recalled having seen her at the theater almost daily during the last two weeks, often accompanied by a young man.

HOUSE VOTES REPEAL OF CONGRESSIONAL PENSIONS, 389 TO 7

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 [Special].—The house of representatives voted 389 to 7 today to instruct its conferees to agree to a senate bill repealing pensions for the President, Vice President, senators, and representatives.

The vote came after scores of congressmen denounced what was termed a campaign of "misrepresentation" to the public concerning the pension bill and after Republican members sought to enlarge the scope of the repealer by including heads of government departments. The original pension bill put approximately 250,000 political appointees under the pension system.

Rep. Robert Ramspeck [D., Ga.], house sponsor of congressional pensions, voted for the repealer after reviewing the bill's tumultuous history and defending its purposes. The seven who voted against the repealer were Democrats, including Majority Leader John W. McCormack of Massachusetts and Pat Boland of Pennsylvania, the house whip.

KNOX TELLS NAVY REINFORCEMENTS ARE IN OFFING

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Declaring that the United States "is now engaged in the greatest naval war in its history," Secretary of Navy Frank Knox tonight promised reënforcements for outnumbered American forces on a "not too far distant" day.

"You men of our naval service are now being asked, in most cases, to fight a foe who outnumbers you in men and equipment," Knox told guests at the Naval Relief society fund raising dinner and short waved to ships and stations. "It is not necessary to add that you can never be outmatched in courage and devotion to your country.

"But I can promise you here and now that the day is not too far distant when you will not be outnumbered.

Discussing the future, Knox declared:

"All our battle accomplishments of the past can be viewed in the light of mere skirmishes compared to the mighty tasks which lie ahead of us—tasks which you fighting men of our fleets will be called upon to perform."

PEOPLE INSULTED BY 'BRASS HATS,' WRIGHT CHARGES

Washington officials and "brass hats" have insulted the common people of America by falsely accusing them of complacency about the war, State Treasurer Warren Wright said last night in a radio broadcast in his campaign for the Republican nomination for United States senator.

He said common people have to pay the bills and fight the war, which they regard as a struggle for freedom and independence and not as a Democratic, Republican, New Deal or Old Deal war.

"Too often when men are sent to Washington to occupy high positions," he said, "they lose touch with the people back home. They forget about the people they are supposed to represent. Let me say to you, senators, cabinet members and brass hats:

"You had better come back to your home folks and find out what it's all about. The mother who has a son fighting with Gen. MacArthur is not complacent. The father with a boy in Iceland understands what this war is all about. The people of this country are not on trial. It is the officials and the politicians controling the country for the moment who are on trial."

Wright assailed Sen. Wayland Brooks, who is seeking renomination on the Republican slate, criticizing Brooks' voting record, accusing him of absences when votes were taken on several important measures.

FIRE CAUSES $3,000 LOSS.

A fire fed by barrels of cottonseed oil yesterday caused estimated damage of $3,000 to the one story brick building of the American Specialty Foods company at 3440 South Ashland avenue.

HARRY ASH GETS INTO RACE FOR STATE SENATE

Candidate on G. O. P. Ticket in 29th District.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

A voters' revolt at the polls was predicted yesterday by Attorney Harry A. Ash in announcing his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state senator in the 29th district on the near north side.

Harry A. Nash.

"Tidal waves of dissatisfaction and protest sweep the country, crying out against Democratic incompetence, misdirection, and the dissipation of America's strength," said Ash, who for eight years was inheritance tax attorney for Cook county.

Rebel at Allied Losses.

"The nation is getting impatient, sick unto death of acting as the 'liquidating receiver' for a crumbling, fumbling empire.

"We hold bitter thoughts of our warships twisted and tangled beneath the waters of Pearl Harbor. We are weary of successful failures, brilliant evacuations, and masterly retreats. This state of affairs drives us to honest American anger, and now America demands a change."

Ash said his state program is "Cut the tax bills in half. Destroy the wasters of tax funds before they destroy us," he said. "Upon the floor of the state senate I shall vote to cut appropriations, except those needed for the aid and comfort of the state's poor, aged, and sick dependents.

"In Chicago the Democratic political machine controls the city hall and has been in control since 1933. The result: Chicago has 20 million dollars in unpaid bills; Chicago has no credit for current expenses, and it has the highest tax rate in Chicago's history.

Democrats Control County.

"In Cook county, the same dominant Democratic machine controls the county government and all the county offices. The result: Cook county has 7 million dollars in unpaid bills; it has no credit for running expenses, and it has the highest tax rate in the county's history.

"By vivid contrast, the Republican state government now has the largest reserves in history. Its credit is excellent. Its bonds command premiums.

"Under Gov. Green's leadership the state has reduced its sales tax from 3 per cent to 2 per cent, with additional reductions pledged and in sight. I pledge our excellent governor my loyal support in the state senate.

"My district, the 29th senatorial, is Republican. In the 1940 Presidential election it was overwhelmingly so, and as such, it is entitled to a Republican state senator."

But Women Are Two-Faced!

Women are two-faced . . . and the men love it. Women are doing a grim job of meeting higher taxes, facing additional war burdens, selling Defense Bonds, serving the Red Cross . . . but they don't look it! They look as pretty and feminine as the pampered darlings of yesterday. And they've forgotten what extravagance means.

Thanks to Mandel's—they get a whole wardrobe . . . for what they once paid for one outfit . . . elsewhere.

We like these two-faced women . . . and we have a hunch they like us, too.

CHURCHILL BARES SINGAPORE LOSS OF 100,000 MEN

Not a Soldier Escaped to Tell the Story.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Prime Minister Churchill revealed in the house of commons today that at least 100,000 British troops had been lost in the fall of Singapore.

Almost at the same time, Lord Cranborne, colonial secretary, was telling the house of lords that the reason for the lack of news from Singapore was that the entire garrison had surrendered, and it was impossible for the officers to communicate with the government.

Churchill announced in his speech opening the war debate that the army at the great naval base, which he recently estimated at 60,000 men, had been reënforced by 40,000 men in nine convoys so that the British troops who surrendered numbered "certainly more" than the 73,000 counted by the Japanese.

He estimated that the Japanese had 26 divisions—at least 390,000 men and perhaps 500,000—in the southwest Pacific area, and added, "we have not so many."

No News from Singapore.

It was because he did not know anything more about the fall of Singapore than he had read in the papers that he agreed to give a statement without a secret session of parliament, the prime minister said. He added:

"Before I left for the United States early in December, most of the principal orders had been given and in fact we managed to reënforce Singapore by over 40,000 men, together with large numbers of anti-aircraft and anti-tank artillery, all of which were withdrawn from other points where they were needed or even actively engaged.

"This was especially true with regard to modern aircraft. Unfortunately before enough of these latter could arrive in the Malay peninsula, altho there was no delay in giving the orders and many varying methods were adopted by the commanders, the airfields in Singapore Island were already under fire of Japanese artillery from Johore, from which we had been driven out.

Might Have Been a Success.

"Nevertheless the speedy reënforcements of Singapore by not less than nine convoys would be judged a splendid achievement if the resulting defense had been crowned with success."

Lord Cranborne, asked in the upper house why so many troops were locked up at Singapore, declared Singapore had been expected to withstand a long siege. There were on the island adequate stores of munitions, food, and water, and enough troops to make Japanese landings a very hazardous operation, he said.

By delaying the action in Singapore, it was hoped that "it might be possible to repair the loss which we and the United States suffered during the early stages of the war. Even a few weeks might have made the whole difference; therefore, from the strategic point of view, it was clearly right to hold Singapore if Singapore could be held."

Forgets His Speech.

The prime minister entered the house of commons at the end of the question hour and put his hand in his pocket while a look of dismay appeared on his face. He hastily whispered to his parliamentary secretary and they both left the chamber, to return shortly, smiling. He had put his speech in the pocket of the wrong coat.

Besides detailing the new setup of the government, which actually gives him two deputies to carry on the routine of parliamentary and cabinet labors and which he said would operate much more efficiently than the famous Lloyd George cabinet of the last war, the prime minister:

1. Reported a big rise in ship losses in the last two months;
2. Predicted that a "considerable period of punishment is ahead of us";
3. Repeated that he would still "take the blame if things go wrong";
4. Expressed regret at the loss of "loyal colleagues" who were forced out by the government's reconstruction and who, he said, were no more responsible, individually, for the setbacks than the cabinet as a whole;
5. Stated that "it had always been my hope that the United States would enter the war against Germany without Japan being involved on the other side."

He repeated with new emphasis the improvement in the British war situation, which he said was enormous, "not only in the last two years, but in the last few months," owing to the "wonderful strategy and power of Russia," which brought loud cheers, and "the accession of the United States and its measureless resources to the common cause."

"Our position is, in fact, improved beyond any measure which the most sanguine would have predicted," he said.

Allies Are Outnumbered.

He warned that the allies are outnumbered by the Japanese on the sea, on the land, and in the air, that reënforcement will be difficult because of a "most serious" increase in shipping losses in the last two months and that Britain's navy flotillas which convoy troops and guns from one part of the empire to another are "strained to the utmost."

Thus, as a result of Japan's entry into the war, Britain must reckon with "an evident prolongation of the war"—perhaps until 1943 or 1944.

But he announced that he shortly would submit a scheme for postwar reconstruction because "we cannot be sure as in the last war that victory may not come upon us unexpectedly."

Even without sensational victories, he suggested a successful conclusion of the war might come thru the effects of attrition.

"It would not be necessary even to push back the German lines over all the territory they have absorbed. Germany might be defeated more fatally in the fourth or fifth year of the war than if the allies had marched into Berlin in the first year."

He refuted the accusation that he is running a one man war, and explained, "I do not conduct the war from day to day myself. It is conducted by a chiefs of staff committee."

Cites 4,500 at Prize Fight.

Following the prime minister's address, speakers in both houses stressed that the government must now rest on results. Earl de la Warr, Laborite, warned that "the public is not prepared any longer to be mesmerized by words or satisfied by brilliant and sustained defeats." James Griffiths, Laborite, said the "disquiet of the nation" over recent events was "accentuated by widespread feeling that an all-out effort had not been made by the country." As a symptom of this spirit he cited yesterday's spectacle of 4,500 people attending a prize fight, and the fact that greyhound racing is still going on.

"I speak for the working classes," he said, "and resent the suggestion that the working man needs circuses."

Commander Sir Archibald Southby, Conservative, said "it has become increasingly obvious that neither the country nor the house is satisfied with the policy or strategy of the war."

Demands Burma Be Saved.

He suggested that "if we had no hope of saving Singapore, then Burma became of such overwhelming importance that we should have devoted all material and equipment we possibly could to Burma. If we have to choose between Surabaya and Burma—a terrible choice—I hope we choose Burma."

John H. Martin, Laborite, complained that it is disturbing that Japan should sink two British capital ships by torpedo attacks in an afternoon, while it took four days to dispose of the Bismarck, which also was unprotected by air.

Sir George Schuster, Liberal, quoted official reports regarding India as one of the great arsenals of democracy which could raise an army of a million men. The public, he said, is now asking where the million Indian soldiers are.

Capt. Leonard D. Gammans, Conservative, demanded an explanation of why 40,000 men were sent to Singapore at the last moment. "We must have known when we lost control of the air that putting these men into Singapore was just handing them over to the Japanese," he protested.

He wondered why Churchill's promise of ever increasing bombing of Germany was not fulfilled, saying he doubted if the weather was responsible for the lull in these operations.

BOMB BLAST IN ANKARA PERILS PAPEN AND WIFE

German Envoy Only Fifty Feet from Explosion.

ANKARA, Turkey, Feb. 24 (AP).—A bomb thrown at Franz von Papen, the German ambassador, exploded only 50 feet away from him on an Ankara boulevard today, but both the ambassador and his wife escaped with minor shock.

One man was blown to pieces and an official announcement said he apparently was the bomb tosser.

He was seen in the vicinity a moment earlier carrying a package wrapped in rags. Two young girls were slightly injured and the Von Papens were thrown to the pavement.

Suspect Plot on Envoy.

"The closeness of the explosion to the ambassador and his wife strongly suggests," an official announcement said, "that an attempt might have been made on his life. Police are energetically investigating the case."

Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu hastened to the German embassy to inquire about their welfare, and Prime Minister Refik Saydam sent his private secretary.

Von Papen, Hitler's ace diplomatic trouble shooter in this war, was military attaché at Washington early in the last war and was expelled as a conspirator.

Raid British Bookshops.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Feb. 23 [Delayed]—(AP).—Istanbul police raided two British bookshops today, arrested the English managers, Arthur and Thomas Colley, father and son and long term residents of the country, and carried off some printed matter.

A French business man, Andre Musat, likewise an old Istanbul resident and head of the "Free French" committee in Istanbul, was arrested later.

Press Assails Allies.

The newspaper Vatan asserted that "nations which stand for justice" are becoming disillusioned with the peace and war aims of the democratic nations.

This disillusionment, the paper said, resulted from the statement of Sir Stafford Cripps, lord privy seal, who was reported here as saying Russia should be guaranteed "strategic frontiers" after the war.

YOU MUST SOLVE PROBLEM, INDIA TOLD BY BRITAIN

Lord Cranborne.

LONDON, Feb. 24 (AP).—The British government declared itself "in favor of India's political freedom" today, but then indicated it was the responsibility of Indian leaders to "devise some scheme which would be satisfactory to all."

The statement of policy was made in the house of lords by Lord Cranborne, colonial secretary and government leader in the upper house since the cabinet shakeup. He announced that "his majesty's government welcomes the message of Chiang Kai-shek to the Indian government.

Must Devise a Scheme.

"We are glad that there should be the closest understanding between the Indian and Chinese people. Chiang Kai-shek urged India to rally to the cause of liberty and so do we," said Lord Cranborne. "If the Indian leaders would get together and devise some scheme which would be satisfactory to all, the Indian problem would be satisfactorily solved. It is hoped that this visit of Chiang Kai-shek will help them to take such a step."

Liberals in commons and lords' lobbies rejoiced in optimistic predictions that a major change in India policy would be announced soon, but less optimistic quarters pointed out that a large percentage of British troops in the far and middle east were Indians recruited from the warrior races of India.

Troops Are Mohammedans.

These troops are largely Mohammedan, who would be vastly outnumbered in a popular election of a democratic government in India by the Hindus. These quarters said the effect on Indian Moslem troops fighting abroad would not be "beneficial," to say the least.

The Indian question was brought up immediately in the debate by Laborite James Griffiths, who asserted the country expects "the setting aside of all vested interests" and a "new approach to India."

Cathedral Collapses in Italy; Several Are Killed

[Copyright: 1942: By the New York Times.]

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 24.—Several persons lost their lives and many were seriously injured when the nave of the cathedral of Gioia del Colle in southern Italy collapsed Sunday, says a report from Rome. Civil defense workers, the army, and the fire department are still searching the ruins of houses around the church which were destroyed when the tower fell on them.

JAPAN'S PLANES ASSAULT JAVA'S MILITARY BASE

Machine Gun Autos; Set Fire to Oil Drums.

BANDOENG, Java, N. E. I., Feb. 24 (AP).—Japanese bombers machine gunned automobiles in the streets and fired oil drums in this army headquarters area today. Civil and military leaders of the East Indies declared the moment of mass assault on Java was approaching. They pledged their people to fight "with faith and an iron will," and urged reënforced counterassaults by united nations' naval forces.

It was the third attack on Bandoeng, inland site of the Dutch army headquarters and important military installations.

Ten bombers dropped from the clouds in two waves of five, gliding silently toward their objectives without apparent fighter support. They dropped light bombs which caused only small craters.

Oil Drums Catch Fire.

Some oil drums caught fire at one point, causing enormous smoke clouds which made the damage seem greater than it actually was. A communique described the damage as "very slight," tho some houses were hit. A few civilians were injured.

Anti-aircraft guns barked soon after the alert sounded and united nations' fighters took to the air. At least one enemy bomber was shot down and several others were damaged. One other bombing was listed as probably shot down near Malang, in eastern Java.

Communiques preserved silence about the situation of the invaders and the defenders on Bali to the east and Sumatra to the west. Both islands are in part overrun by the enemy.

Call for Stronger Sea Force.

The Dutch were urging that stronger allied naval forces be concentrated in the southwest Pacific for even wider counteroffensive action than that which destroyed, damaged, or put to flight the Japanese sea units which attacked Bali last week.

Writing in the Batavia newspaper Java Bode, H. V. Quispel, head of the information section of the Dutch navy department, expressed belief that the allies could hold out in Java, but only if allied sea forces are quickly and strongly reënforced in order to relieve pressure on this island and avoid strangulation of allied positions in the area.

From the governor general of the Indies, A. W. L. Tjarda van Starkenborgh, came the broadcast promise: "We will fight with all the power that is in us."

"We face the coming military operations with faith and an iron will," he said.

"A will for offensive operations must be in us, to push ahead every time an opportunity offers."

JAPAN CHUTISTS LAND NEAR DUTCH TIMOR'S CAPITAL

CANBERRA, Feb. 25 [Wednesday] —(AP).—Japanese parachute troops have landed near Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor, and a strong naval force has been sighted off Dili, capital of the Portuguese half of the island, the Australians announced officially today. Transports in Dili harbor were on fire, the communique said.

Because of this steady Japanese advance southward and a belief that Australia and New Zealand eventually will be attacked, important secret decisions have been taken by chiefs of Australia's fighting forces in consultation with a New Zealand mission and members of Australia's advisory war council, it was announced.

One person was killed and five injured when Japanese planes dropped 70 bombs on Port Moresby, southern New Guinea Island outpost less than 400 miles off this continent's northern tip.

Japs Claim Two Ship Captures.

TOKIO, Feb. 25 [Wednesday].—[From Japanese Broadcasts]—(AP).—Japanese warships operating against Koepang, capital of Dutch Timor, have captured the Dutch freighter Tobelo and the tanker Semao, Domei News agency reported today.

TOWNS IN WAR NEWS—SKETCHES TO HELP READER

Bandoeng, reported under the fire of Jap planes, is one of the most important cities of Java. It lies 100 miles east of the western Java shore and about midway between the northern and southern coasts. Its population exceeds 200,000. The Netherlands Indies government maintains a technical college in this city.

* *

Malang, near which a Japanese bomber was supposedly shot down by Dutch forces yesterday, is a small town south of Surabaya, or Soerabaja, the biggest base of the Netherlands Indies' navy in Java.

* *

Port Moresby, in southern New Guinea, also was attacked yesterday by Japanese planes, altho no vital targets were hit. The seat of government of the British territory of Papua, it lies on the eastern shore of a bay affording ample anchorage space for all types of vessels drawing up to 24 feet. To mariners entering the bay the government house on a high hill makes an important landmark. The climate is regarded as unhealthful for Europeans.

AXIS SCOUTING PARTIES ROUTED BY BRITISH UNITS

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 24 (AP).—British desert patrols scouting axis positions southwest and south of Tmimi routed small enemy parties today. The British reconnaissance south of El Mekili disclosed no change in that area, an army communique said. The RAF attacked targets in the Martuba area.

Down Two Malta Attackers.

VALETTA, Malta, Feb. 24 (AP).—British anti-aircraft batteries bagged a German bomber, and a hurricane pilot downed a fighter today out of axis formations making their daily raids on Malta.

Claim Harbor Works Hit.

ROME, Feb. 24 [from Italian broadcasts—(AP).—Axis aircraft keeping up attacks on the British Mediterranean base of Malta repeatedly hit harbor installations and air fields during the latest raids, the Italian high command said today.

JAPS POUR FIRE BOMBS ON YANKS IN PHILIPPINES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—The war department this morning announced that in the Philippines there has been no ground activity on either side for 24 hours, but said enemy aircraft had dropped "a considerable number of incendiary bombs behind our lines."

Japs Tell of Raids in Mountains.

TOKIO, Feb. 24 [from Japanese casts]—(AP).—Axis aircraft keeping up bombers caused widespread damage in assaults against United States positions in the Samat mountains of Bataan peninsula during the last two days, the news agency Domei reported today.

A LIEUTENANT, 24, MAKES IT HOT FOR JAPS ON BATAAN

'Frenchy' and Some Wire Hold the Line.

BY CLARK LEE.

WITH GEN. MacARTHUR ON BATAAN, Feb. 22 [Delayed]—(AP).—Even the Japanese on this sector of the front know "Lieut. Frenchy"—Lieut. Roland G. Saulnier of New Bedford, Mass. Several times a day Frenchy inspects his young Filipino troops in their fox holes and trenches and calls out:

Whenever they face problems, his troops call for Frenchy. Whenever fighting starts he's in the middle of it, this 24 year old who is one of the most colorful figures in the American forces in the Philippines.

Loses Pigeons When War Begins.

Altho he was born in New Bedford, his parents were French-Canadians and he attended French schools. He drove a delivery truck at Cape Cod, went west in 1939, worked as a cook, joined the National Guard in California, and then came to the Philippines in 1940.

Frenchy was a pigeon fancier when the war started, but he soon lost his pigeons and joined the Philippine army. He organized a bus convoy which brought hundreds of troops to Bataan peninsula. Now he commands a battalion.

Frenchy led his green troops in his and their first encounter with the enemy in the recapture of Moron early in January. A few days later his position was surrounded. He and his troops were driven from Moron and had to jump from a 30 foot cliff.

Soon the Japanese drove thru his line with about a thousand men, establishing a pocket which had to be wiped out. It took 17 days to do it but the last Japanese finally was killed.

Kills Seven Japs by Himself.

Early one morning his position was attacked and he and a private were pinned in their fox holes four hours while the Japanese attempted to dislodge them with hand grenades. Frenchy killed seven Japanese then.

Frenchy finally reëstablished his lines and erected barbed wire which has kept the Japanese out despite frequent attacks. The Japanese now have dug in outside the wire.

F. D. R. PARRIES QUERIES ON AID FOR MacARTHUR

Unaware of Dispute on Re-enforcement.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—President Roosevelt today was asked if dispatches from the Bataan peninsula, which tell of the need of bombers by the defending forces, did not indicate that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is at odds with the army high command on the question of reënforcements.

The President leaned back, knit his brows and answered that the best answer he could give was to cite his own rule of conduct—not to speculate on what he didn't know anything about.

Questioned at Conference.

The question was put to the chief executive at his press conference. He was reminded that all dispatches from the Bataan forces must pass thru censorship instituted by Gen. MacArthur and that the fact censors had passed such stories would indicate MacArthur was in sympathy with them.

A story saying that the defenders were trying to raise funds for the purchase of a bomber was cited as a specific instance. Another recent story said that the defenders are asking for six planes now rather than 60,000 next year.

Mr. Roosevelt said that it some one would tell him how he could get a bomber to MacArthur, the general could have a bomber.

Parries All Inquiries.

"Could not a plane be flown in," the President was asked.

With a shrug of his shoulders, the President asked where could such a plane be landed.

The suggestion was made that a navy bomber could land on the water.

How long would it stay there, was the President's retort to the suggestion.

U. S. AND BRITAIN SIGN DRAFT OF AN ECONOMIC UNION

Hints at Cancellation of Lend-Lease Debt.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—An economic union of the United States and Great Britain, open also to participation by their allies in this war, is provided in an agreement between the British and American governments, the conclusion of which was announced today by the White House.

The new relationship contemplates the lowering of tariff walls between the countries and the elimination of other restrictions on the free flow of commerce, as well as national and international action to stimulate production, trade, and employment.

The immediate occasion of the agreement was the necessity of taking some action providing for eventual payment by Great Britain for the ships, planes, tanks, and other arms and food being lent and leased by the United States.

2 Billions in Transit.

Congress has appropriated 13 billion dollars to finance the lend-lease program and about 2 billion dollars worth of materials already has been furnished or is in production.

The agreement provides that the lend-lease settlement shall be postponed until after the end of the war, when such defense articles as are still in existence shall be returned to the United States if the President considers them of use in this hemisphere.

In casting up the indebtedness of Great Britain for lend-lease aid, full allowance shall be made for "all property, services, information, facilities, or other benefits or considerations" furnished by Britain to the United States after March 11, 1941, the date of the lend-lease act. This is an indication that the British intend to present a large bill to this country as an offset to the lend-lease bill rendered by the United States.

Hints at Outright Cancel.

The agreement states that the settlement should be "deferred until the extent of the defense aid is known and until the progress of events makes clear" the final terms and conditions and benefits which will be in the mutual interests "of the two countries, and will promote the establishment and maintenance of world peace."

Such considerations, the provision implies, might impel the United States to cancel the lend-lease debt.

The United States, under the terms of the agreement, is to continue to furnish lend-lease aid and Britain is to contribute to American defense such aid as she "may be in a position to supply."

Britain's alibi for failing to pay her first World war debt to the United States was that high American tariff walls made it impossible to get dollar credits. That contingency this time is met by the provision of the agreement that the terms of the final lend-lease settlement "shall be such as not to burden commerce" between the two countries "but to promote mutually advantageous economic relations between them and the betterment of world-wide economic relations."

Aim at Greater Consumption.

To that end, the agreement provides, the settlement shall provide for action by the United States and Great Britain "directed to the expansion, by appropriate international and domestic measures, of production, employment, and the exchange and consumption of goods, which are the material foundations of the liberty and welfare of all peoples; to the elimination of all forms of discriminatory treatment in international commerce, and to the reduction of tariffs and other trade barriers; and, in general, to the attainment of all the economic objectives set forth in the joint declaration made on Aug. 12, 1941, by the President of the United States of America and the prime minister of the United Kingdom."

The joint declaration referred to is the so called Atlantic Charter proclaimed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill at their high seas meeting.

Negotiations are scheduled for an early date by the British and American governments to determine the best means of attaining the economic union of the two countries and of such "like-minded governments" as desire to join the confederation.

Blame Fighting Serbs for Belgrade's Lack of Bread

BERNE, Switzerland, Feb. 24 (AP).—The fighting carried on by Serbs was blamed by the Budapest Pester Lloyd today for a shortage of bread for the last several weeks in Belgrade. The fighting Serbs have blocked communications, but the situation was reported somewhat improved when authorities managed to get a few cars of corn into the old Jugo-Slav capital. The bread shortage, however, was expected to continue for some time.

TELL OF FLIGHT FROM JAP COAST BY DUTCH VESSEL

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 24 (AP).—The odyssey of a Dutch freighter after its escape from Japanese waters at the outbreak of war in the Pacific was related today by its crew.

Its members told, with sanction of the 13th naval district headquarters, how the freighter Wilhelmina turned back, only a few miles from Yokohama, upon hearing the radio report of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

Heads for Alaska.

The ship, facing rough seas in the North Pacific, headed with its cargo of coal for an unnamed Alaskan port. Rations were short, the polyglot crew members related, but the ship kept pounding along toward the haven of United States waters. It completed its dramatic voyage here.

Radioman Nicolas Ostrooumoff, a Russian who received the first report of the Japanese attack, said the Wilhelmina reported false positions to the Japanese by radio to safeguard the flight.

Two Japanese aboard the vessel—the radio operator and the supercargo—were confined to their quarters. [A first report of the incident several weeks ago indicated that the crew mutinied against Japanese officers.

Four Whites Aboard.

A veteran Dutch skipper, Capt. Jan Vollers, commanded the ship. Aboard were three other white men, 53 Chinese and the two Japanese.

It was the radio skill of Ostrooumoff that enabled the ship's captain and crew to learn of the Pearl Harbor attack.

The ship's radio was a Chinese set, about 20 years old, but it couldn't pick up the official broadcasts from the Dutch East Indies. So he fashioned a coil out of wire and a cardboard cylinder to give the set extra tuning range.

"I was listening in the morning of Dec. 8—this was Japanese time, remember," explained the 50 year old Russian, "when exactly at 10:01 I heard the warning.

"I am not permitted to give you the exact words, but in English they mean that war with Japan had broken out. I hastened to the captain with the message, and we decided to flee at once."

Lieut. F. D. R. Jr. Rests After Appendicitis Siege

New York, Feb. 24 [Special].—Lieut. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., United States Naval Reserve, son of the President, is not expected to return to active duty before the end of March, it was learned at the naval hospital in Brooklyn today. Lieut. Roosevelt underwent an appendectomy at the hospital on Feb. 10.

GESTAPO FUNDS WIND UP IN U. S. WAR TREASURY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—Adolf Hitler unwittingly has made a cash contribution to the United States treasury for prosecution of the war against Germany and her axis partners, the justice department disclosed tonight. A total of $16,367.90 deposited in a New York bank to pay salaries of the former New York branch of the German gestapo [secret police] will be transferred to the treasury department by the justice department tomorrow.

"The money was slipped into New York over a period of nearly a year and was supposed to pay the wages and running expenses of a group of Nazi agents," the justice department said. "It was sent by circuitous means to William G. Sebold in New York. Sebold was supposed to be a gestapo agent. Instead he was a confidential informant of the FBI. Thru their joint efforts the activities of Frederick Joubert Duquesne and a ring of 32 other Nazi agents were revealed. The last of this group was convicted of espionage in New York in January."

HOUSE TAKES UP WAR POWERS BILL VOTED BY SENATE

Members Voice Fears of Inflationary Perils.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rep. Frank Keefe.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—The house today began consideration of the latest war powers bill giving the Roosevelt administration new and enormous powers over American life. Passed by the senate on Jan. 28 without a record vote, the measure is expected to be put to its first test in the house Thursday when the chamber begins balloting on amendments.

Besides conferring unquestioned powers on President Roosevelt to take over any machinery deemed necessary for arms production, and authorizing him in the name of defense to seize any real property and all personal property on the premises, the bill would empower federal reserve banks to buy government obligations directly from the treasury.

Danger of Inflation Seen.

Existing law requires that the 12 reserve banks purchase government bonds in the open market. By eliminating this safeguard, it has been charged, the bill would authorize printing press money and invite inflation.

Reserve banks, it was explained, issue currency against the government obligations they hold. With this currency they can buy more bonds, against which more currency can be issued for the purchase of still more bonds—the start of the inflation spiral. This process would be limited only by the present statutory debt limit of 65 billion dollars, soon to be boosted by congress for war financing.

Despite the insistence of administration spokesmen that the direct purchase scheme is to be used to stabilize the market for federal securities and not to raise money for arms production, the fears of the house over the possibilities of inflation were reflected in the early debate.

Greater Threat than Debts.

"I wonder if there is not even a greater threat of inflation from this bill than now exists thru the continued deficits of the present administration," said Rep. Frank Keefe [R., Wis.].

A statement by Rep. Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex.], chairman of the judiciary committee, that the proposal had been endorsed by the American Bankers' association drew an immediate reply from Rep. Charles S. Dewey [R., Ill.], recognized as one of the chamber's foremost fiscal experts.

"The bankers' association said it would not oppose the legislation," the Illinoisan declared. "That is scarcely an endorsement. It is merely an indication that the association recognizes the wartime necessity of the measure and is willing to go along in the belief that the new powers will be used conservatively."

Hodgepodge Under Fire.

Other members criticized the catch-all character of the bill, which is divided into 16 unrelated sections, each a proposed amendment to some other war power act or other law already on the statute books. The legislation, said these members, ought to have been split up and referred to various committees acquainted with the various questions, instead of being dumped in one lump into the lap of the judiciary committee.

The only safeguard in the measure against misuse of the new powers is a proviso that they can be terminated by passage by a joint resolution, which does not require the President's signature. Otherwise the bulk of the powers will expire automatically on Dec. 31, 1944.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Feb. 24 (AP).—The enemy submarine which poured shells into an oil field last night in the first attack upon United States soil in the present war caused damage of only $500.

Oil field officials estimated the loss today as land, sea, and air forces kept sharp vigil for a possible reappearance of the undersea craft, described by eye-witnesses as monstrous.

Approximately 25 five inch shells from the submarine's deck gun, fired from an angle approximately one-half mile off shore, raked the beach and grounds of the oil field, seemingly intended for two huge storage tanks. The only object hit, however, was a gear housing in one well's pumping machinery that readily can be replaced.

It was struck by a fragment of a shell that first struck a pier, ricocheted about 150 yards, hit a steel beam on the end of another pier, then plowed into the oil well machinery.

Large Shell Fragments.

O. C. Nelson, refinery foreman, said he collected 200 pounds of shell fragments, mostly from shell craters that measured from 18 inches to 3 feet in depth and 5 feet across.

Official Washington discounted the importance of the attack. Western congressmen, however, were loud in demanding that all Japs be put in concentration camps.

President Roosevelt told his press conference that the incident was an example of political warfare and that the reaction might be the opposite of what the enemy intended.

Rep. Alfred J. Elliott [D., Cal.] told the house that "we must move the Japanese in this country into a concentration camp somewhere, some place, and do it damn quickly."

Highly Successful: Tokio.

TOKIO, Feb. 25 [Wednesday]—[from Japanese broadcasts]—(AP).—Imperial headquarters announced today that a Japanese submarine had shelled military objectives on the California coast Monday night, "achieving highly successful results."

HEAR U. S. SHIPS HAVE MUNITIONS OVER 10 YRS. OLD

Age Not Vital, Admiral Tells Inquiry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—Many warships of the navy are carrying ammunition manufactured 10 and 11 years ago, the house naval affairs committee learned today. They were told, however, that explosives do not deteriorate with age if they are kept under proper temperatures and other conditions.

The committee had summoned Rear Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, chief of the bureau of naval ordnance, for questioning concerning the charges of a radio broadcaster that a naval lieutenant with the American fleet in the southwest Pacific had complained about defective ammunition.

The lieutenant was quoted by the radio man, Martin Agronsky, National Broadcasting company correspondent, now in Sydney, Australia, as stating that the antiaircraft ammunition aboard his ship was old and only 30 per cent efficient. This handicapped the ship in fighting off the attacks of Japanese aircraft, the lieutenant was alleged to have charged.

Asks Commander for Report.

Adm. Blandy said he had asked Vice Adm. William A. Glassford Jr., commander of united nations' naval forces in the southwest Pacific, to report to him on the charges. The committee adjourned its inquiry pending the reception of this report.

Blandy said that the age of ammunition does not mean that it is ineffective. A preliminary inquiry indicated, he told the committee, that the ship in question was supplied with ammunition prepared in 1930 and 1931 and issued to the vessel at Cavite in 1937 after thoro tests.

Reports Test at Targets.

The ship engaged in four target practices, he said, and the commander never has reported its ammunition as ineffective. Blandy added that a plane carrier equipped with similar ammunition recently shot down a four engined enemy bomber and badly damaged another.

Blandy said he believed the vessel is commanded by a former naval academy classmate of his whose last shore duty was in the ordnance bureau. He said he was convinced the officer would have reported promptly any defective ammunition. If the ammunition were proved inefficient, it would be replaced as quickly as possible, he said.

Chairman Carl Vinson [D., Ga.], advised the committee that the report on the ammunition would be made public when it was received.

CUBA SAYS FREIGHTER REPORTED TORPEDOED IS SAFE IN U. S. PORT

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 24 (AP).—Cuban navy headquarters today announced the sugar freighter Kofresi, which last night was reported torpedoed off southern Cuba, was safe at a United States port unloading her cargo.

Eight More Ships Sunk: Nazis.

BERLIN, Feb. 24 [from German broadcasts]—(AP).—A German high command communique today said German submarines operating in the Atlantic and off the American coast had sunk eight more ships totaling 63,000 tons.

WARNS INDUSTRY ARMY MAY TAKE EVERY FIT MAN

Hershey Sees Greatest Need Since Civil War.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

American industry must prepare itself for the most trying days in its history and against the eventuality that every able bodied man in the nation may be called to the armed forces.

This was the warning last night of Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service, speaking before a dinner at the Hotel Sherman of more than 1,000 members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association and the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association.

Recalls Civil War Days.

Industry is facing its greatest challenge while the nation's need for man power is the greatest since Civil war days, Gen. Hershey asserted. He added that some industries will have to go.

Stressing the need for wise decisions on the part of local selective service boards, Gen. Hershey said the armed forces must be given all the men they need, but he added that if vital men are taken out of factories it will slow the army's ability to equip and train the men it gets.

"There is not an inexhaustible supply of able men," he said. "When we select men for the armed forces we take them for the war and six months. Unfortunately, however, when we select men for you we can assure you only of the six months. It is vital that you train some overage man or woman as a successor to every able man in your employ, because all able men may have to go."

Up to People to Decide.

On the point that some industries will suffer he said:

"If you say you want newspapers, movies, and the radio, you must remember it takes men and women to operate them. If it takes able bodied men and women to run them you must either say that you can do without newspapers, movies, and the radio, or you must prepare to allocate to them the men and women needed.

"The people must decide what things are fundamental or indispensable. They must decide how to allocate the personnel to them."

New Idea in Recruiting.

Referring to the broadening of the draft age limit from 20 thru 44 years, he asserted that the man power of the country may be likened to cream, rich milk, skim milk, and sediment. Both the army and industry are wont to recruit horizontally, taking only the cream and rich milk, he said.

"It will be different now," Gen. Hershey added. "We will all recruit vertically, taking the skim milk and sediment, too."

Gen. Hershey was met at the station by C. A. Livingston of the Manufacturers' association and by Lieutenant Colonels Victor A. Kleber and Stanley R. McNeil of Chicago selective service headquarters. Both were promoted yesterday from the rank of major.

MEXICAN FORCES ON ALERT AFTER CALIFORNIA RAID

WITH MEXICAN ARMY PACIFIC OBSERVATION POST, Feb. 24 (AP).—Mexican naval, air, and land forces stationed south of the border were placed under special alert orders today following the Japanese submarine shelling attack yesterday near Santa Barbara, Cal. Mexican planes patroled the coast of Lower California.

Mexican and United States military authorities conferred at Tia Juana, Mexico, and perfected emergency coastal defense plans.

"If the enemy expects to frighten or divide Mexico and the United States by raiding our coastal areas, he is badly mistaken," said Gen. Juan Felipe Rico, commander of the northern district of Lower California. "Nothing can divide the Mexican and American peoples."

'BURMA ROAD OF THE AIR' PLANNED TO SUPPLY CHINA

CHUNGKING, Feb. 24 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China has returned from his visit to India, a government spokesman announced today, after a flying trip foreshadowing the establishment of regular air transport as a new addition to China's supply lines of war material.

The need for such new routes has been emphasized by the closing of Rangoon as the "feeder" port for the Burma road. But the spokesman reiterated that China is self-sufficient in food, has enough clothing to get along, can manufacture her own light arms, and has a quantity of heavy equipment waiting to be shipped to the front for use against the Japanese.

"But we are anxious to establish air transport with India as soon as possible in order to carry essential but not bulky war materials," he added, including medicinal supplies in this category.

50,000 NEEDED TO HELP IN VAST RATIONS SIGNUP

Believe Registration Will Be Held Late in March.

Nearly 50,000 Chicagoans, including the city's 14,500 school teachers, the county's 4,000 teachers and more than 20,000 American Legionnaires, block captains or other patriotic citizens, will be needed for the four day sugar ration registration of 4,277,000 men, women, and children in the Chicago metropolitan area next month.

This was announced yesterday by Michael F. Mulcahy, metropolitan rationing administrator, after a meeting with school and other authorities in the city council finance committee chambers. Mulcahy asked for the use of all school buildings in the city and county. The registration, altho specifically for sugar ration books, will be the basis for issuing permits for any other commodities which later may be rationed.

Last Week in March.

The registration is expected to be held during the last full week in March, starting on Wednesday and being completed on Saturday. If this program is carried out, it was suggested, actual rationing of sugar probably will not start until after April 1.

Present at the meeting with Mulcahy were James T. Gaffney, assistant superintendent of city schools; Noble J. Puffer, county superintendent of schools; Oscar E. Hewitt, commissioner of public works; Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the council finance committee; Sheriff O'Brien, and County Clerk Michael Gaffney and Puffer were asked to obtain authority for use of the schools and teachers by 11 o'clock this morning, when another meeting will be held and replies sent to the Office of Price administration in Washington, D. C.

Sign in Alphabetical Order.

"We have worked out a system whereby no one of the four days will see a greater rush than any other," Mulcahy said. "People will go to the schools to register in alphabetical order. We will have to rely on the newspapers, radio stations, and storekeepers to notify the people how and exactly when they must go for their registrations.

"The 18,500 city and county teachers alone will not be able to do the job. We will have to have more than 20,000 additonal men and women to help out. We expect to get these principally from among the block captains and American Legion members."

Alderman's Suggestion.

Ald. Bowler said he thought a simpler way to carry out the registration would be thru the block captains. "Each captain could go into the homes in his block and register those there," he said.

It also was suggested that the draft machinery, now operating smoothly after three registrations, be used.

Mulcahy vetoed both suggestions, however. He said the OPA has specified that schools be used.

INDIA WILL STAND ON SIDE OF ALLIES, SAYS AGENT GENERAL

Sir Girja Shankar Bajpai, first agent general for India in Washington, D. C., said last night that his country, despite the demand for self-government, will stand firm on the side of the united nations in the present war. He spoke at a dinner meeting of the Economic club in the Stevens hotel.

"India feels that if she plays her part in war alongside you [America], Britain, and China," he said, "fulfillment of democracy for us will follow as a matter of course."

He asserted that India, which had 170,000 men under arms when the war began in 1939, now has 1 million soldiers and an additional 50,000 to 60,000 volunteering monthly. One-fourth of the force of 1 million has fought or is fighting abroad, he said.

India, Sir Girja said, lacks provision for manufacture of the internal combustion engine, so it must have tanks and airplanes from its allies. It is now producing rifles, machine guns, trench mortars, and field artillery.

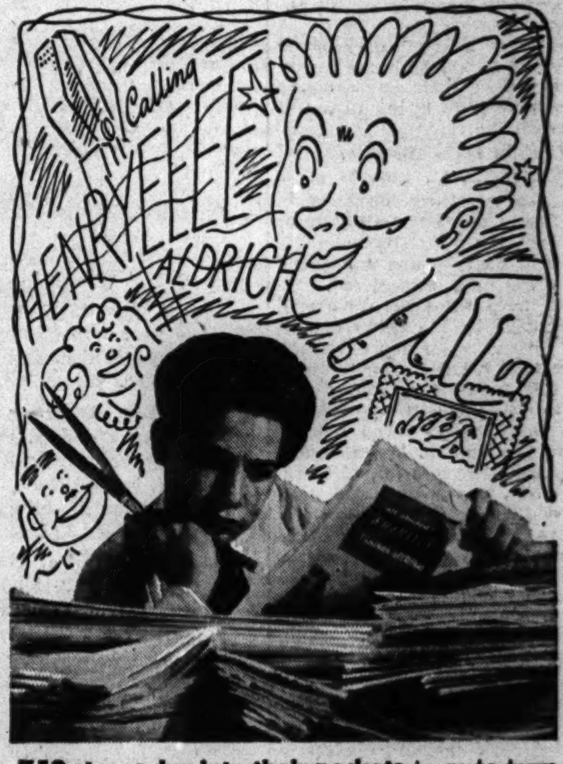
FATHER'S DAY
DAILY BUGLE

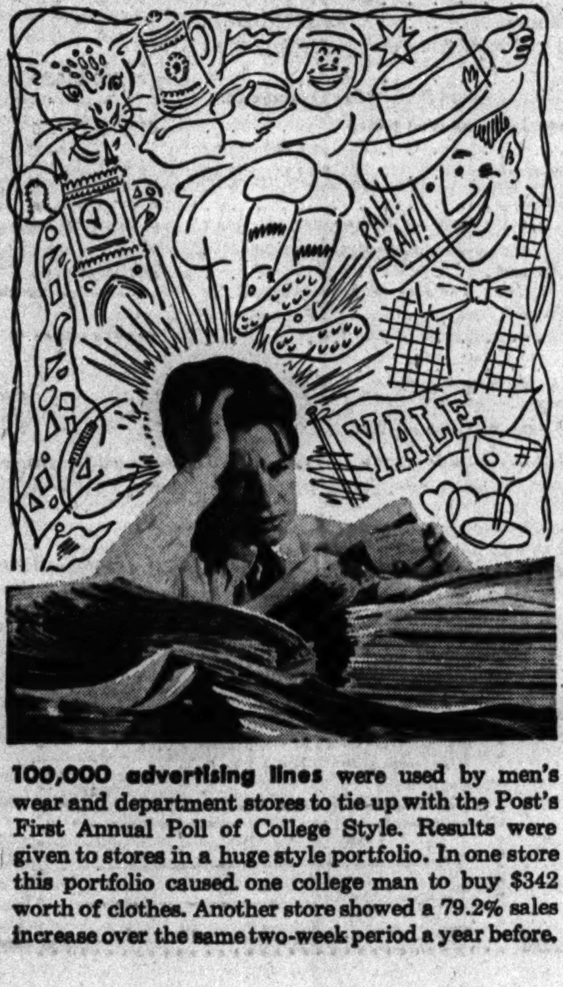
Dirty trick . . . to ask our office boy to add up all newspaper advertising (over a million lines) in the last 8 months, done by retail stores to feature merchandise advertised in The Saturday Evening Post. (Last June, men's stores in 550 cities ran their own ads to feature the Father's Day-Benchley-SEP promotion.) 89 Post advertisers got extra publicity that way.

Daily Breeze

In July 7,000 dealers ran big newspaper advertising to tie up with the Post-Ed Wynn promotion "5 Cool-Off Inventions to Beat the Heat." Grocery, drug and department stores had been whooping for just such a promotion—to take the slump out of summer sales. Result: Sales went up with the thermometer and Post-advertised heat-beaters got a break.

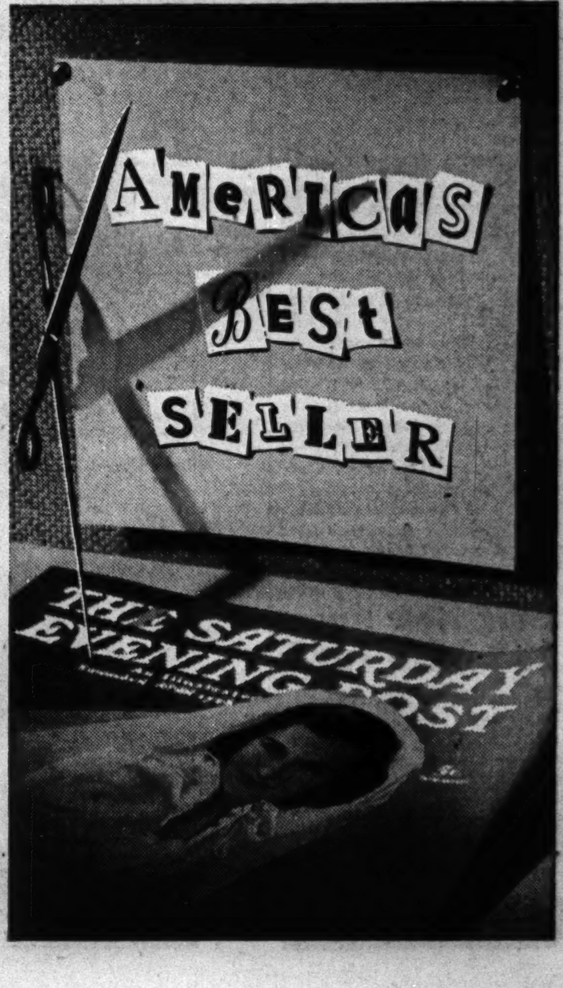


750 stores dug into their pockets to go to town with the Post-Aldrich Family promotion. The plot: six ideas to keep homes young with 48 different products, home furnishings and electrical appliances. The combination of Henry Aldrich and the Post certainly started sales moving. And more than 48 Post-advertised products got a profitable whirl.



100,000 advertising lines were used by men's wear and department stores to tie up with the Post's First Annual Poll of College Style. Results were given to stores in a huge style portfolio. In one store this portfolio caused one college man to buy $342 worth of clothes. Another store showed a 79.2% sales increase over the same two-week period a year before.

7,000 USED POST DISPLAYS TO BOOST Xmas sales—and gave Post advertisers an extra push. Featuring these gift ideas from the December 6 Post were 100 leading department stores—whose annual volume runs to 640 million . . . Retailers ran 154,027 lines of advertising . . . They find it pays to spend money to funnel Post families into their stores.



43 SAVED FROM CLIFF IN WRECK OF 2 U. S. SHIPS

Lieut. Comm. Ralph Hickox.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Feb. 24 (AP).—On a swaying bosun's chair slung over a 200 foot cliff, 43 men from the United States destroyer Truxtun and the United States naval supply ship Pollux were rescued after their vessels were smashed to bits against the Newfoundland coast in a raging storm.

While at least 189 other seamen perished, residents of the shore village of Lawrence dragged the 43 to safety from a ledge just above the water, to which the survivors were clinging.

As the story of the rescue reached here, it was learned a third United States ship had struck shore in the same blinding storm that ran the doomed two off their course. But the third craft floated clear and managed to make harbor.

Blame Gale and Tides.

The news that 43 had been saved from the lost ships was the first word of the number rescued.

Shipping men expressed belief tonight that the fast setting tides probably combined with a gale to sweep the ships off their course in murky weather.

The survivors and the recovered bodies, it was understood, were taken to Argentia.

Many of the sailors dragged alive from the sea were reported battered and suffering from exposure. The weather was bitterly cold when the vessels grounded.

Reports from the scene told of heroic rescue work by Newfoundlanders living along the shore. One dory loaded with fishermen was reported to have been lowered over the side of a cliff into the foaming breakers, capsizing as soon as it hit the water. The occupants were saved.

Villagers Rush to Aid.

When word reached the villagers of St. Lawrence that the two ships were in distress, men, women and children set out across three miles of snow covered hills to the scene. Reaching the edge of a cliff above one of the ships they found a cluster of men clinging to its precipitous face.

Using the bosun's chair, a rough wooden seat slung from a rope, they began hauling the men to safety. Fishermen tried to rescue others in the surf by means of a dory lowered from the cliff. But the little boat was swamped as soon as it hit the breakers.

The crew of a small government coastal vessel also aided in the rescue. The men worked their way overland after unsuccessfully trying to put to sea to reach the scene.

Captain Loses His Life.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—One of the worst sea disasters in United States naval history—loss of a destroyer, a supply ship, and 189 officers and men — was announced today by the navy department.

Seldom have ships been battered into wreckage by the deliberate action of enemy guns more quickly than the 1,200 ton destroyer Truxtun and the 6,085 ton freighter Pollux were dashed to pieces by wind and wave.

From the Truxtun seven officers, including the captain, Lieut. Comm. Ralph Hickox, 38 years old, of Washington, D. C., and 90 men were lost. Three additional deaths were expected to be reported later. The Truxtun normally carried a crew of around 145.

The two vessels, forming a portion of a convoy, were voyaging along the south coast of Newfoundland near St. Lawrence bay, at the mouth of Placentia bay, when the disaster happened, the navy reported.

Visibility Nearly at Zero.

Wet, heavy scud had cut visibility virtually to zero, and altho it was daytime, navigation aids were obscured. The seas, driven by gale winds, were crashing thunderously against rocks and hidden reefs, and it was bitter cold. Then both ships ran aground.

Under the pounding of the waves, the vessels began to break up immediately. Oil from their fuel tanks spread over the churning surf.

"Heroic efforts to swim lines ashore failed because of the inability to handle them when they became oil soaked," the navy's communique related.

Breeches Buoy Rigged Up.

Presumably efforts also were made to launch lifeboats, but since no mention was made of any getting thru, it appeared the boats probably were lost, dashed to bits on the rocks and reefs. Finally, the navy said, "a breeches buoy was rigged to a ledge at sea level, but some of the survivors were washed away before they could be pulled to the top of the cliff that lined the rocky shore."

The destroyer Truxtun was an old World war type vessel launched in 1920. She was of the same construction as the four stack destroyer Reuben James which went down with 100 officers and men off Iceland last fall after being torpedoed.

The Pollux, on the other hand, was a new ship, completed in 1940.

Chicago Sailor on Board Destroyer Lost in Gale

A Chicagoan, Thaddeus Sujka, 18 years old, 7009 Justine street, was aboard the destroyer Truxtun, and his father, Roman Sujka, a foreman, was anxiously awaiting word concerning him last night. Sujka, a seaman second class, enlisted in the navy in Chicago last July. He returned home early in December on furlough and rejoined his ship in Boston on Christmas.

WRECK OF SHIPS SHOWS PERIL OF NEWFOUNDLAND

Question U. S. Base Sites in Stormy Area.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 24.—The destruction of two United States navy ships with heavy toll of life in a gale off the Newfoundland coast, today focused attention on the relative merits and demerits of building major American defense bases in that area.

Construction of both army and navy bases is well underway on the bleak, ice-scoured landscape of Newfoundland. This is one of the sites acquired by the United States in the prewar deal involving the swap of 50 American destroyers for bits of British colonial property in the western hemisphere.

But it was the possibility of just such a tragedy as the navy revealed today that in the beginning caused some military experts to ask whether it was wise to concentrate all the defense eggs in the Newfoundland basket.

Maritime Provinces Considered.

Flying fields and harbor facilities would be much safer, more practicable and more operable in the Canadian maritime provinces of Nova Scotia or New Brunswick, it was argued. Newfoundland is a strategically located island mass athwart the Gulf of St. Lawrence but has many drawbacks that tend to nullify geographical advantages.

Bad weather is the mother of most of Newfoundland's ills. The weather makes air operations in winter and spring difficult and naval operations arduous. It was low visibility and the high wind which resulted in the smashing of the two navy vessels on the rockbound coast.

Currents Cause Fogs.

Fog makes up east of Newfoundland where the icy flow of the arctic current comes down from the north and mixes with the warm gulf stream from the south.

Newfoundland is blanketed so much of the year by this fog rolling in on the east wind that the pine trees are stunted from lack of sunlight and nothing grows but the most hardy potatoes, cabbages, and turnips. To the Gloucester fisherman, fishing for cod off the Grand Banks, "Newfoundland" is synonymous with the word, "fog."

The frosty wind whips down from the north, northeast, and northwest with such savage fury that at times it is necessary to halt the frail, little narrow gauge railroad train on strips of high protected ground such as the quaintly named elevation, "Gaff Topsails."

Then the train crew actually scrambles out in the gale and lashes the wheels to the tracks to keep the cars from blowing over.

Discusses Base Sites.

Hanson W. Baldwin, well known military critic, treating hemispheric defense in his book, "United We Stand," pointed to Newfoundland's deficiencies. He said the country's greatest usefulness was as a strong advanced naval and air base with anchorages, fuel, and ammunition supplies for destroyers and submarines and naval patrol planes.

"Our main base in the northeast should be in Nova Scotia or New Brunswick—the former for a naval base, the latter for an air base," Baldwin wrote. "Halifax is one of the best natural deep water harbors along the coast and can accommodate an entire fleet; and at any time is an important shipping center.

"The logical site for the main northeast air base is Moncton, New Brunswick, eastern terminus of the Trans-Canada Air lines, where a fine, extensive, level field, susceptible to easy enlargement, is already available. Moncton, unlike Nova Scotia, is fog-free most of the year."

ESTIMATE 14 MILLION TONS OF SHIPS LOST BY ALL NATIONS IN WAR

LONDON, Feb. 24 (AP).—About 14 million tons of merchant shipping of all nationalities have been lost thru sinkings from the outbreak of the war thru 1941, the chamber of shipping of the United Kingdom said today.

During the last six months of 1941, the chamber's annual report said, the average monthly sinking of British, allied, and neutral merchant shipping approximated 180,000 gross tons, or a total of more than 1 million for the period.

The report gave the total sinkings from the war's start thru 1941—for united nations and neutral shipping—as 8,300,000 gross tons. During the same period, enemy losses totaled "not less than 5 or 6 million tons," the report said.

The allies held a great advantage in replacement of lost tonnage, the chamber's report added, because of the tremendous building program of the United States, which provided more than 1 million gross tons of dead weight in 1941.

MOTHER TOLD TOKIO MESSAGE CONCERNING SON

Ensign E. A. Wood.

Because a cross-country truck driver was listening to a short wave broadcast while driving from Cleveland, O., to Milwaukee, Wis., Mrs. E. A. Wood of 938 Rosemary terrace, Deerfield, yesterday learned that her son, Ensign Edwin Allen Wood, is in a Tokio prison camp. The driver, who did not give his name, heard a broadcast from Tokio Monday night in which the Japanese were radioing a message from Ensign Wood to his mother.

The driver stopped in Deerfield and delivered the message to Mrs. Wood. Ensign Wood said he was taken prisoner by the Japanese two days after the sinking of the Penguin, a navy mine sweeper at Guam. He added he was healthy, getting along well, and receiving fair treatment, and for more information directed his mother to contact the bureau of navigation in Washington.

Mrs. Wood, who is head of the Red Cross in Deerfield, had not heard from her son since a month before the Guam attack. She is the mother-in-law of Vern Hansen, W-G-N announcer.

Your Life Insurance in Wartime

In time of war, the security underlying your life insurance takes on a new meaning. More than ever before, security for the family is paramount.

While supporting that security, your life insurance dollars, invested in Government Bonds, are helping to buy planes, tanks, ships, guns, and all the other implements of war. Thus your life insurance dollars are helping to safeguard American lives and liberties.

At the end of 1941, Metropolitan had a total of $1,214,931,424.25 invested in United States Government Bonds . . . about 22% of the Company's assets. In addition, $104,982,562.49 was invested in Canadian Government Bonds.

In both the United States and Canada, life insurance dollars are helping to finance your defense housing, transportation facilities, the production of power, and the industries which are pouring out the steel, chemicals, oil, food, munitions, and other materials needed for the war. Each month more and more of your life insurance dollars are flowing from the channels of peace into investments that serve war uses and war industries.

Because of public appreciation of life insurance, increased efficiency of our agents, and the better national income during 1941, lapses and surrenders were at the lowest rate recorded in the Company's history.

In fulfilling its obligations to policyholders during 1941, Metropolitan paid or credited to policyholders and their beneficiaries more than $567,900,000. Of this amount, more than $383,700,000 was paid or credited to living policyholders.

Metropolitan is a mutual company. Its assets are held for the benefit of its policyholders and their beneficiaries. In the meantime, these assets are, as always in the past, being used to help meet national needs.

BIDDLE AGREES TO LIMITATIONS ON CENSOR BILL

Admits Measure Extends Beyond War Secrets.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—Attorney General Francis Biddle, sponsor of a censorship bill making it a criminal offense to publish government documentary information marked secret or confidential, told a senate judiciary subcommittee today he would not oppose an amendment restricting the measure to war secrets.

Biddle admitted the bill introduced in the senate and the house at his request is not confined to information respecting the war effort and expressed his opinion that it should not be so restricted.

He said he would have no objection, however, if the committee limited the bill to records of particular government departments, such as the war, navy, and state departments. He did not specify the character of government information other than war secrets which, in his opinion, should be concealed from the press and the public.

Approval Believed Remote.

Members of the subcommittee, consisting of Senators Warren R. Austin [R., Vt.], chairman; Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], and Wall Doxey [D., Miss.], indicated the bill in its present form has no chance of approval.

As introduced, the bill provides that whoever, without authority, publishes or otherwise divulges the substance of any document, letter, record, memorandum, etc., declared to be secret or confidential by any rule or regulation of any department or agency, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned for not more than two years, or both.

Biddle was not asked and he did not say who wrote the bill. At a press conference last week he said he had not seen it and did not know what was in it when he sent it to congress with letters urging its passage.

Biddle conceded the validity of editorial suggestions that department and agency heads could evade criticism of themselves by issuing blanket regulations making all records subject to their jurisdiction "secret" or "confidential."

Favoritism Danger Seen.

Sen. O'Mahoney observed that the bill would permit department heads to favor friendly newspapers and punish others, or to issue a ruling that information shall be given to "red headed persons but not to others." Biddle agreed this would be possible.

"It is probably true that the bill would make news gathering more difficult," the attorney general said. He denied, however, that it would abridge freedom of the press, which, he said, "never has been free to disclose government secrets."

Biddle acknowledged that newspapers have coöperated completely with the existing censorship.

STRIKE SETTLED IN THREE HOTELS; 130 BACK ON JOB

A strike of 130 employés of three north side residential hotels, which resulted in great inconvenience to about 1,000 guests, was settled yesterday afternoon and the workers—principally maids and kitchen help—were back on their jobs in the late afternoon.

The settlement was announced by Byron Cain, trustee of the hotels, the Belden-Stratford, 2300 Lincoln Park West; Webster, 2150 Lincoln Park West, and Parkway, 2100 Lincoln Park West. Cain said that he and James Blakely, secretary-treasurer of the Hotel and Restaurant Employés International and Bartenders International league, local 593, had reached an agreement on certain moot points and that the union members had approved it.

"The employés are going to work and we will continue to negotiate for a new contract," Cain averred. He declined to discuss the nature of the terms.

A total of 49 persons who attempted to picket the hotels had been arrested by the state's attorney's police in the two days of the strike. All were charged with disorderly conduct and released in bonds yesterday.

MOTHER-IN-LAW SAYS FBI HOLDS AN EX-COUNTESS

Orange, N. J., Feb. 24 (AP).—Mrs. A. G. Reimold said tonight she had been informed her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Abraham G. H. Reimold, the former Countess Erica von Haacke of Silesia, Germany, had been taken into custody by the FBI in Palm Beach, Fla. She said her son, president of the Woburn Degreasing company of Kearny, and his wife lived here, but were wintering in Palm Beach.

The arrest followed simultaneous FBI raids at the Reimold homes here and in Florida, the elder Mrs. Reimold said. FBI agents in Newark said they had no comment.

In Miami the FBI announced the arrest of one Italiah and one German alien, both members of the nobility in their homelands and both socially prominent along the Florida Gold Coast. Special Agent R. G. Danner said the names would not be made public, but added that a raid in Orange, N. J., had netted cameras, a gun, literature, and other matter.

THE QUESTION.

Do you have time enough to do everything you want to do?

WHERE ASKED.

THE ANSWERS.

Arlene Sablotny, stenographer, 710 East 89th street—I've always wanted a chance to do some experimenting with color photography in natural sunlight, but by the time I get home from work the sun is gone. Sunday at home is a day that's too busy for things like that, so there never seems to be time to develop the hobby.

Charles Denny, shopman for steamfitter, 6404 Ellis avenue—What I wouldn't give for just one month of time to spend in that little home town in the prairie of North Dakota where I grew up. Every summer I'm determined to go there, but summers pass and I never seem to manage it.

Selma Raskewitz, cashier, 11220 Stewart avenue—As long as there's a living to be made I might as well give up hopes of ever finding enough time to seriously study art. Even if I set aside a few evenings for the lessons, I know there wouldn't be time for the much needed practice.

Esther Dethmers, stenographer, 10823 Normal avenue—For years I have gathered and saved clippings, photos, and other material with the idea of mounting them all in a good looking scrapbook. But whenever I have any spare time I start some other little job and never can seem to find time for that.

Mrs. Mae Meyer, homemaker, New York City—All of my time is devoted to touring the country with my little actress daughter. Instead of dashing into a store and quickly buying what we need I'd like to take off one whole day and spend all of it leisurely shopping for the things I've wanted to get for both of us for a long time.

Russel D. Acton, patent attorney, 5431 Kenwood avenue—It's impossible to do all the things I'd like to do so I pick out the things that appeal to me most and then without budgeting my time or being too much of a clock watcher I manage to spend just enough time on my flying lessons, photography, and workshop to keep them all interesting.

EDITORS DISCUSS CIVIL DEFENSES WITH GOV. GREEN

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 24 [Special].—Gov. Dwight H. Green discussed civilian defense problems with about 50 Illinois editors and publishers in the executive mansion today, talking over ways and means of journalistic coöperation with the state council of defense. At the close, the newspapermen adopted a resolution praising Green for his efforts.

At the governor's suggestion, the group, which represented several organizations such as the Illinois Press association, will appoint from their membership to the publicity committee of the state council, so that each section of Illinois will be represented.

The governor who suggested that newspapers coöperate with the civil protection committee of the council, and had William F. Waugh of Chicago, its chairman, explain the setup for air raid warnings and the communication system which is being developed in coöperation with the army. Green also asked editorial help for the council's victory gardens campaign.

ROTARY'S CREDO FOR WAR, PEACE TOLD BY HAAKE

Rotary's credo for war and peace was given at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club of Chicago in the Hotel Sherman yesterday by Dr. Alfred P. Haake, managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers and director of the American Economic Foundation's "Wake Up America" program.

America must strive for and accept nothing less than clear-cut victory, shunning a negotiated peace, he said. While accepting wartime limitations on freedom, this country must insist upon a return of all rights after the war is won, he added.

FINDS OCD BUSY AT EVERYTHING EXCEPT DEFENSE

Sen. Byrd Assails Setup; to Quiz Landis.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—Notwithstanding the resignation of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and the reorganization of the Office of Civilian Defense, the OCD still has many persons of "extremely varied qualifications" on the pay roll, according to Sen. Harry F. Byrd [D., Va.].

Sen. Byrd announced today that the joint committee on nonessential federal expenditures, of which he is chairman, will investigate the OCD. James M. Landis, OCD director, will be the first witness at a public hearing Friday.

"Little Goes to Real Defense."

On Feb. 10 Sen. Byrd called upon the OCD to furnish his committee a list of all employés receiving over $2,500 a year, together with a statement of their duties.

"This information," said Sen. Byrd, "gives the appearance of a highly complicated, costly organization, little of which actually goes to real defense. Not all of the expenditures of this agency fall within the classification of national defense, it seems.

"Scrutiny of the 22 page list of employés shows actors, baseball players, football coaches, track men, tennis players, newspaper and magazine writers, radio and advertising writers, social workers, army and navy officers, doctors, engineers, nurses, ex-public officials, lawyers and others in nearly every walk of life among those employed for promotion of civilian defense.

An "Arts Council" Included.

"Duties assigned to these officials of extremely varied qualifications do not always appear directly connected with national defense. Moreover, there appears to be a notable duplication of effort, when other branches of the federal, state, and local governments are taken into comparison.

"For example, within the organization there is an arts council division, headed by a well known movie actor; a racial relations section, a planning program division, a youth activities section, a labor relations section, group activities section, and a physical fitness section. These are only some of the 30 sections of the eight OCD branches."

The movie actor referred to by Sen. Byrd's statement is Melvyn Douglas, a radical friend of Mrs. Roosevelt. Altho originally listed at $8,000 a year, he insisted later that he was serving without compensation.

POLICE ORDERED TO GUARD GARY DUES PICKETING

Preparations were made yesterday for a police guard tonight when the CIO Steel Workers Organizing committee will throw dues picketing lines around the sheet and tin mills of the Carnegie Illinois Steel corporation in Gary. The request for the guard was made to Mayor Ernst L. Schaible of Gary by James M. Darbaker, general superintendent of the mills, who said he wanted to insure the picketing being peaceful.

Frank Grider, subdistrict director of the SWOC, at a conference with Mayor Schaible and corporation officials yesterday afternoon promised there would be no violence. He refused, however, to cancel the order for the pickets, who are expected to continue their patrols for several days.

The purpose of the picketing, Grider said, is to prevent mill employés who do not have paid-up dues cards in the SWOC from entering the plant to work. Paid-up members will be allowed to enter, he said.

DUTIES OF MARINE CORPS.

"The marines have landed and have the situation well in hand."

Nearly every one is familiar with this slogan of the United States marine corps. Since 1775, the year of its establishment by the Continental congress, this integral branch of the navy has played an important rôle in the nation's wars.

The wide scope of its possible activities is demonstrated in the oath which marines take at the time of their enlistment, in which they swear to obey the orders of the army, navy, and marine corps.

Historic Rôles Recalled.

In the latter part of the 18th century and the early part of the 19th century, when naval battles were often decided in fierce hand-to-hand encounters, the marines comprised the boarding parties which subdued the crews of enemy ships during the French naval war and which later swung over the sides of the Constitution and defeated the Tripolitan pirates.

They have seen action on land as well as sea. They fought Indians in Florida. They fought confederate forces during the Civil war. They battled in Cuba during the Spanish-American war. They fought side by side with the army during the first World war.

Marine units are attached to all battleships, aircraft carriers, and other types of fighting ships. Aboard ship they do guard duty and, in case of attack, man anti-aircraft and machine guns. They have their own quarters aside from the sailors, and have nothing to do with any other ship duties.

Serve as Landing Force.

One of their most important and dangerous duties is to provide landing parties for invasion of hostile shores. These men, specialized for landing parties, comprise the fleet marine force. This force includes infantry, artillery, tanks, engineering, signal and chemical troops, and an air arm.

Marines at some time or other have served in every part of the world, and, in the words of the marine hymn, "if the army or the navy ever gaze on heaven's scenes they will find the streets all guarded by United States marines."

[Tomorrow: Training for Defense Work.]

QUESTIONS.

J. J. asks: "What is the minimum height and weight for enlistment in the army?"

ANSWER: The minimum height is 5 feet. The minimum weight for a man of that height is 105 pounds.

D. O. writes: "I have heard that the army is going to train airplane mechanics in aircraft schools. How can I enlist for this training?"

ANSWER: You probably are referring to the training given men for the army air corps ground crew. Enlistment in this branch of service has been closed until further notice.

R. D. asks: "What is the duty of the chemical division of the army?"

ANSWER: The chemical warfare service "takes part in battle to assist the advance of troops by the use of smokes, chemicals, and burning materials. It also develops chemical protective equipment such as gas masks and clothing."

8 CONGRESSMEN ARE UNOPPOSED IN PRIMARY RACE

Light Filings Credited to Effect of War.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 24 (AP).—The April 14 primary election will be just a formality for eight incumbent congressmen, who are unopposed for renomination, a survey of the complete list of candidates disclosed today.

Forty-seven other incumbents in state, legislative, or central committee posts also are unopposed in the primary which has attracted the smallest number of candidates in years. Lewis Vogel, chief clerk of the secretary of state's election department, attributed the light filings of nominating petitions to the war, which is keeping many younger men from running for office.

Unopposed Congressmen.

Incumbent congressmen who are unopposed are Charles S. Dewey [R., Chicago], Leo Allen [R., Galena], Anton J. Johnson [R., Macomb], Robert M. Chiperfield [R., Canton], James M. Barnes [D., Jacksonville], C. W. Bishop [R., Carterville], James V. Heidinger [R., Fairfield], and Lawrence F. Arnold [D., Newton].

At least three candidates are virtually certain of seats in the Illinois general assembly because of lack of opposition in the primary.

They are former State Rep. Dennis J. Collins of De Kalb, who is unopposed for the Republican senatorial nomination in the 35th district and finds no one running for the Democratic nomination, and State Representatives Emmet McGrath [D., Brookfield], and Leon Schuler [D., Aurora].

McGrath and Schuler were the only Democrats seeking the nomination and if only two Republicans are nominated in each of their districts are certain to be elected, since three representatives are elected from each district.

Wieland Not Opposed.

Six state senators will find no opposition in the primary. They are Francis J. Loughran [D., Chicago], James B. Leonardo [R., Chicago], A. L. Marovitz [D., Chicago], O. E. Benson [R., Ottawa], Norman G. Flagg [R., Moro], and Louis J. Menges [D., Caseyville].

Highlighted by the surprise candidacy of Ralph E. Church of Evanston for the Republican senatorial nomination against Sen. Wayland Brooks and State Treasurer Warren Wright, the flurry of state candidates' filings just before the midnight deadline last night produced prompt reverberations today.

Barrett Hits at Kelly-Nash.

Edward J. Barrett, independent Democratic candidate for state treasurer, attacked as "unsportsmanlike" and as "an attempt to confuse the voters" the filing against him of two Chicago candidates, Edward J. Callahan and John H. Condon. Their petitions were filed shortly after Barrett entered the race for treasurer against W. D. Forsyth of Springfield, who has the backing of the Kelly-Nash Chicago Democratic organization. Barrett said his campaign would be based on a protest against slate-making by the Kelly-Nash organization.

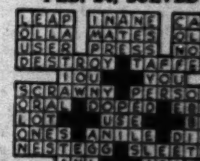
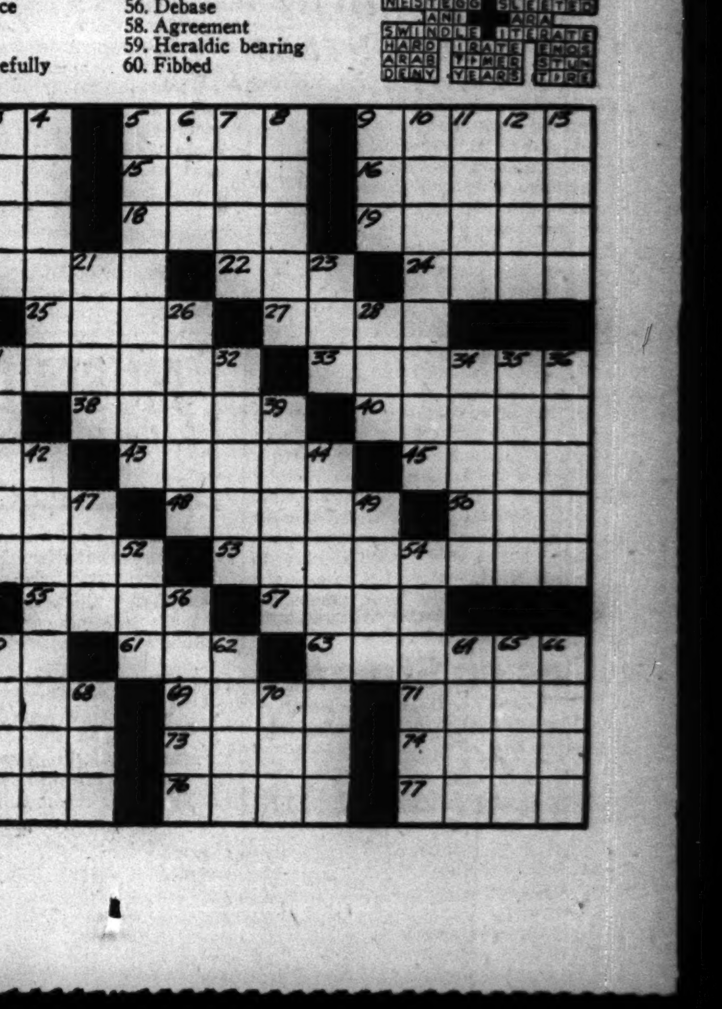
PUZZLE OF TUESDAY, FEB. 24, SOLVED





29 FACE TRIAL AS MEMBERS OF BOOTLEG GANG

Alcohol Tax Evasion Is Estimated at $200,000.

The grand jury yesterday returned six indictments charging 29 persons with conspiracy to manufacture and transport alcohol. Those indicted were said to have been members of two gangs which operated in Chicago and nearby states and to have defrauded the government of $200,000 in revenue tax.

The indictments were returned before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. United States Attorney J. Albert Woll and his assistant, Maurice J. Walsh, who prepared the cases for grand jury action, said the gangs were the biggest that have operated here since prohibition.

Tax Evasion $150,000.

One set of indictments charged that Joe Tarallo of 2946 Wallace street headed a gang of 20 persons operating at 2540 Canal street. Federal agents raided a huge still there several months ago. Tax evasion by this gang was estimated at $150,000.

The second gang was led by Frank Rocco, 2531 Flournoy street, and William Skally, 1006 North Kedzie avenue, according to the indictments. They and seven others were named. Three stills operated by the gang were raided in recent months by federal agents.

At 2223-25 South Millard avenue, raiders found 12,000 gallons of mash. At 1844 North Damen avenue the agents found a still of 1,000 gallon capacity, 10,500 gallons of mash, and 2,500 pounds of sugar. A third still and 9,000 gallons of mash were found at 2517 Belmont avenue.

False Bottom Cans Used.

Tarallo and several confederates also are charged with having transported alcohol in false bottom cans. These were so constructed that they contained one quart of alcohol and 19 quarts of water.

James Callozzo, 23 years old, 2519 Lexington street, a member of the Tarallo group, was arrested three weeks ago and identified in the holdup slaying of a tavern patron at 2058 Washburne avenue on Jan. 10.

DIVORCE SOUGHT IN WOODSTOCK BY MRS. DILLING

Suit for divorce was filed yesterday in Woodstock, McHenry county, in behalf of Elizabeth Dilling of Kenilworth, author of "The Red Network," against Albert W. Dilling, a Chicago attorney. The suit charged cruelty and misconduct. Mrs. Dilling said she owns a farm in McHenry county.

According to the suit, the Dillings were married in Laporte, Ind., in 1918 and separated finally last Jan. 13 after previous separations and reconciliations. The suit charges Dilling with indiscretions with a Mrs. "X" in 1922 and with a Mrs. C. in 1941. It asks that Mrs. Dilling be given custody of a daughter, Elizabeth, 16, and money for support, and also asks that Dilling be enjoined from doing bodily harm to Mrs. Dilling.

In the suit Mrs. Dilling describes herself as author of books and pamphlets "of political and national importance" and adds that she has no means of support. Mrs. Dilling came into national prominence last March when she visited Washington as head of the Mothers' Crusade to Defeat H. R. 1776, the lend-lease bill, and was fined for disorderly conduct.

U. S. DESTRUCTION OF WHISKY IN '23 TO BE REVIEWED

Government destruction of the "liquid" assets of the old Grommes and Ullrich corporation, whisky dealer, will be reviewed by the house of representatives committee on claims, it was indicated yesterday.

Hoyt King, clerk of the federal district court, said Rep. Dan R. McGehee [D., Miss.] had requested files on the case after one of the company's stockholders, Harry S. Tansey, former Municipal court bailiff, had filed a claim for $81,000 plus interest against the government.

The company in 1923 passed out thousands of cases of choice spirits to stockholders in return for their investment. Tansey charged that prohibition agents unlawfully destroyed 1,722 cases—one for each share of stock—belonging to him. Ten stockholders, including Tansey, were freed by a federal court jury in 1923 on charges of conspiring to violate the prohibition laws.

PAY ROLL CLERK WHO TOOK $4,100 GETS 1-10 YEARS

Kenneth Sinclair Wilcox Jr., 28 years old, of Winthrop Harbor, who with a companion took $4,100 from the till at a loop department store where he was a temporary pay roll clerk and then went on a drinking spree in St. Louis, Mo., was sentenced to 1 to 10 years in prison on a charge of embezzlement by Chief Justice Robert Jerome Dunne in Criminal court yesterday. The court recommended that Wilcox serve not less than one nor more than three years. His companion, Donald Nelson, 19, still is a fugitive. Wilcox said he awoke after a night of heavy drinking and found Nelson and all except $300 of the money had disappeared.

READY TO SEIZE GOONS IN BEATING OF MEAT DEALER

Police Have 4 Witnesses to Identify Them.

Oakley Lester, 38 years old, a meat dealer from Elgin, underwent an operation in an Elgin hospital yesterday as a result of a beating suffered Monday at the hands of two union labor goons who objected to his working on the Washington's birthday holiday.

At the same time the police were moving to obtain an indictment of the thugs. Sergt. George Barnes of the detective bureau labor detail saw the injured man and announced his condition was so serious it would slow down direct action against the two union labor men who have been identified by four witnesses as the sluggers.

Ready to Sign Complaints.

"It is just a matter of procedure," said the sergeant. "I am willing to sign the complaint myself. But Lester has engaged an attorney, Robert L. Kemler of Elgin, and Kemler wants to ask the state's attorney to indict the attackers.

"This investigation definitely will not be dropped. Commissioner Allman has told me to follow it thru and I'll do just that. Kemler and I will visit the prosecutor's office and ask his help.

"The men who did this job can't get away with it. The Chicago police will not stand for such actions. Lester's jaw was broken in two places. His nose also was broken. He won't be able to leave the hospital for a week or 10 days at least. So far as I know there has been no intimidation of witnesses, and if any is attempted we will know how to deal with that."

Victim Pushed from Store.

The attack began Monday in the store of M. Rothschild & Sons, 224 North Peoria street, wholesale meat dealers. The sluggers, said to be members of local 710 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters [AFL], pushed Lester out when he said he was following the government's suggestion that it was patriotic to carry on thru the holiday. Lester was beaten on the sidewalk.

Physicians said the goons apparently used brass knuckles; that they did not believe the severe injuries could have been inflicted with fists alone.

18 Taverns Are Closed by License Revocation

Mayor Kelly's office announced yesterday that licenses of 22 business places, 18 of them taverns, have been revoked for offenses ranging from permitting gambling to allowing a free for all fight.

RETURN TO CRIME BLAMED ON DEBT OWED BY FRIEND

A parolee and an ex-convict returned to crime, they told police yesterday, because they were faced with paying up a small loan note which they had co-signed for a friend. The pair are Elmer Owens, 27 years old, 3119 Montrose avenue, on parole from Pontiac where he had served a robbery sentence, and John Jaeger, 27, of 1633 Fullerton avenue, who was discharged from parole in 1939 following a robbery term. They were seized by Lieut. Kyran Phelan of the detective bureau, who said they admitted 14 holdups. They began their robbery career six weeks ago, they said, after the friend for whom they had signed a $200 note was arrested and thus unable to continue payments.

Blame Hitler, Hirohito, and Benito!

... Don't Blame Your Grocer!

AS YOU KNOW, our Government is rationing tin beginning March 1st.

So that means for a time—after present warehouse stocks are exhausted—some of the famous Heinz "57" Varieties will not be available in their familiar tin containers. However, stocks are large enough so that your "57" favorites will probably be on most grocers' shelves for several months at least . . . and after that we have every confidence they'll still be there—but newly packaged.

However, if there should be a period when a few are missing, don't blame your grocer! And don't blame your Government!

Pin full responsibility on Hitler, Hirohito and Benito—and be glad that less tin for us means more bullets and shells for America's guns!

After all, there's no need to fear a shortage of essential foods. America's reserves and resources are too great for that. Unlike most warring nations, we must sacrifice temporarily only our modern, convenient way of enjoying some of the things we like to eat.

For instance, most of the famous "57" Varieties of Heinz quality foods are not affected. There will be no scarcity of the Heinz Baby Foods that are helping the busy mothers give their children the wholesome, nutritious foods young bodies need. Heinz Tomato Juice . . . Heinz Ketchup and Chili Sauce, Pickles, Relishes, Vinegars, Jellies, Peanut Butter, Apple Butter—all these and many more of the "57" are ready to help you keep right on setting the finest table in the world.

What about the future?

Progress due to research helps us face it with confidence. Our Research Laboratories have expanded steadily, until now they have twice the personnel and equipment they had during World War I. And because we have been working constantly on the development of new packages, new products and new methods, this crisis does not find us unprepared!

The House of Heinz steadfastly adheres to its established principle of maintaining, and endeavoring to improve, the high quality of its products.

Now or years from now, when you see the Heinz keystone label you can be sure that it guarantees wholesome, delicious foods of finest quality. That has been true for more than 73 years and will always be true.

Until all this is over and we can go about our daily work in peace and security, we know you will cooperate with your grocer and with your Government in the biggest job of all—winning the war!

—Stephen Decatur.

THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR.

Mr. Roosevelt's radio address on Monday evening was an able political speech. Thruout the country there had been dissatisfaction with the conduct of the war. Mr. Roosevelt had been charged with overriding the advice of his military men, with dispersing our forces, with reluctance to put an end to wasteful expenditures, with refusal to replace incompetent officeholders, and these criticisms were by no means partisan in origin.

The President's speech was calculated to silence such critics as Sen. Tydings by intimidating them. The aim was to brand all who have expressed dissatisfaction with the management of the war here or in Britain as defeatists, rumor mongers, and the dupes of enemy propagandists. If Mr. Roosevelt succeeded, it was not because of anything in the speech which could be regarded as a direct reply to the points which responsible critics had raised.

Mr. Roosevelt's discussion of the losses at Pearl Harbor will serve for illustration. He mentioned rumors that the casualties were of the order of 11,000 or 12,000 and that the entire Pacific fleet had been destroyed, as if these stories had been reported by responsible spokesmen or widely accepted as true. He gave the precise figures of the human losses but employed an evasive formula when he discussed the damage to ships. Many were not in the harbor during the attack, he said. We have lost only three ships permanently. The others have been repaired and have rejoined the fleet or "are still undergoing repairs." They will be better fighting ships, he said, when they come out of dry dock than they were before, but if so, extensive rebuilding seems to be indicated and that may take a long time. The phrase "still undergoing repairs" recalls another phrase, "on hand or on order," used many months ago when the President was attempting to persuade the people that rearmament was proceeding at a satisfactory pace.

The administration had been suspected of minimizing the losses at Pearl Harbor, but the weight of the criticism had been directed less at that than at the apparent fact that the lesson of Pearl Harbor had not been learned. The burocrats in Washington who bear a heavy share of the responsibility for the defeat remain in positions of power. The fleet was at Hawaii for purposes of international politics and, as we now know, at the sacrifice of important strategic considerations. There is reason to fear that such mistakes may be repeated.

Mr. Roosevelt himself has had no military experience. He has never seen an active battlefield or a soldier killed. As a strategist he is an amateur and the speech revealed it, particularly in the passages concerning the dispersion of forces. Accordingly, it is to be hoped that the President is now seeking sound military advice. The country will be happy if he will surround himself with army and navy men of experience and judgment and will consult them and not his political advisers when questions of strategy arise.

There can be and there will be no dissent from the President's declaration of the national determination to see the war thru to victory. Those who have found fault with the conduct of the war have done so precisely because they were persuaded that the way things were going the war would be needlessly prolonged and might be lost. It would be a poor kind of patriotism which would remain silent under such provocation.

WHEN THE JAPANESE GOT LICKED.

It can hardly come as a surprise to most people who have watched the Japanese climb over one after another of their neighbors' fences to announce, "This my garden now," that the Nips began jumping claims many centuries ago. They have been so successful at it that it is now a proud Japanese boast that the armed forces of the empire have never once suffered defeat. Aside from what may happen in future, this seems to require correction in the interest of historical accuracy.

Back in 1555 the Gen. Tojo of the day was a military dictator named Hideyoshi. This gentleman cast a covetous eye on China and Corea, as many of his successors were to do. His ambition to embark on a career of conquest has been attributed to several mixed motives. He wanted to give employment to his restless troops. He was grieving over the death of a dearly loved child. And he considered it an affront to his lowly birth that the lands across the Japan sea withheld expected tribute.

Hideyoshi, not at all in the later tradition of Port Arthur and Pearl Harbor, sat down and gave advance notice of his intention to attack. In a letter to the ruler of Corea, "as a father to a son," he stated, "I will assemble a mighty host and, invading the country of the great Ming, I will fill with the hoar frost from my sword the whole sky of the 400 provinces. Should I carry out this purpose, I hope that Corea will be my vanguard. Let her not fail to do so, for my friendship with your honorable country depends solely on your conduct when I lead my army against China."

The Coreans, who had a better notion than Hideyoshi of the resources of the Middle Kingdom, replied that for Hideyoshi to contemplate the invasion of China was like measuring the ocean in a cockleshell, or like "a bee trying to sting a tortoise thru its shell." Hideyoshi, however, was not discouraged, and, continuing his correspondence with the Coreans on the same plane of rich imagery, boasted, "I shall do it as easily as a man rolls up a piece of matting and carries it under his arm."

Two armies were loaded on transports, one under Konishi Yukinaga, a Christian general, and the other under Kato Kiyomasa, a Buddhist valiant. The Coreans, having refused to march with the Japanese, were the object of an attack that was to be preliminary to the conquest of China. The invading army managed to ravage Corea, but the important element of sea power, which the Japanese have not neglected in our own day, was neglected in that campaign.

The Coreans of the 16th century were masters of the sea, and their great admiral, Yi Sun-sin, employing armor clad vessels for the first time in history, sank many transports and disrupted Japanese water communications. In that distant day, also, diplomats of the stripe of Nomura and Kurusu, skilled in the arts of deception, were not in the employ of the Japanese, but of their enemy. For a long time the Japs were outwitted by the emissaries of China, who appeared to offer submission, but eventually disclosed that the purpose of the negotiations was to recognize the Japanese emperor as a vassal.

In 1597 and 1598 the Japanese fared better both by land and by sea, and after a great battle in which 38,700 Chinese and Coreans were killed pickled the ears and noses of their slain adversaries and sent them home in tubs to be buried near the shrine of Buddha at Kyoto. But this gruesome monument, as the historians observe, was about all that the Japanese got out of the campaign, altho the Satsuma warriors did improve their visit in Corea by acquiring skill in pottery making from the Coreans. Even in those days, it would appear, the Nips were an imitative little race.

A sense of failure weighed heavily on Hideyoshi at the last. His dying words were: "Don't let my soldiers become ghosts in Corea."

Here, then, is one time when the ever victorious tradition of Japan did not meet specifications. It is noteworthy that able and resourceful use of sea power by Yi Sun-sin was responsible for the defeat inflicted upon the Japanese. Our navy might consider going to school at the feet of this Corean genius.

ANOTHER GOON OUTRAGE.

Two goons set upon Oakley Lester, an Elgin meat distributor, and broke his jaw and nose because Lester had called at a Chicago wholesale market to buy meat on Monday, which the union of meat truck chauffeurs had declared a holiday. Employés of the meat company told police that the criminals were business agents for the union, a local of the teamsters' organization.

What the teamsters' union does about holidays is its own business, to be settled with the employers of its members. Lester, it happens, operates his own business and thus is not eligible for union membership, but that has no bearing on the matter. The union attempt to enforce its edict on nonmembers is completely lawless, and being a lawless act leads naturally to violence.

The assault on Lester was thus doubly heinous. It was not only a criminal act, but a criminal act in pursuit of a lawless end. The criminals are known. The public will watch their prosecution with interest. They deserve no more mercy, because they pretended to act in the name of a labor union, than if they had committed their crime in the course of a robbery. Chicago must be made unsafe for goons.

MICHIGAN'S ST. CHARLES.

Michigan currently is suffering from the same kind of misguided humanitarianism in the conduct of its vocational school for delinquent boys at Lansing as the citizens of Illinois have long noted in connection with the Illinois State Training School for Boys, near St. Charles. A penal reform study group headed by a clergyman is demanding that the superintendent of the school resign and that most of his staff go with him.

The complaint against the superintendent, Maj. Robert E. Marsh, who resigned yesterday after holding his job for 20 years, is not that he permitted young hoodlums to run hog wild over the state, as our St. Charles officials have done, but that he kept them strictly in line. There has been no coddling at the Lansing school, and that is what the dogooders are crying about.

The reform group bemoans the fact that the Lansing inmates are not encouraged to cultivate hobbies and are no longer permitted to leave the school to attend football games at Michigan State college. The report is loaded with numerous recommendations that reflect the same social welfare outlook that recently led to a revision of plans for the second unit of the Sheridan branch of the Illinois school. This was planned as a penitentiary structure to accommodate incorrigibles from St. Charles, but it is now to be built without cells and gun turrets and will be as homelike as the interior decorator can make it. The fact that seven St. Charles inmates and parolees were sentenced to prison terms in the Kane county Circuit court in a single day this week has failed to alter the convictions of our humanitarians as to the best way of dealing with the state's freshman class of criminals.

Since Gov. Van Wagoner of Michigan has allowed Maj. Marsh to quit, Illinois could do much worse than to offer the major a job running its school. Maj. Marsh's principal fault seems to be that he kept his wards back of the fence on the Lansing reservation, where they belong.

Once more we are indebted to the society page for an illuminating account of how matters are faring among the ladies and gentlemen planning the grand strategy of the war from Washington. Mrs. Lister Hill, wife of the Alabama senator, was explaining how she burst into tears after christening the new battleship Alabama. We quote from a Washington dispatch:

"The emotional experience is just something that broke me down before I knew it," she said. "I told Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox that I certainly didn't expect to weep at this ceremony. He answered: 'I always do, every time I see a battleship launched.'"

It would appear that the impact of Pearl Harbor has caught up, albeit a little late, with the secretary. But he is succeeding in still getting his new battle wagons assigned top priorities, while the despised airplane, which is responsible for his tears, has only just managed to get equal treatment, after a long struggle.

ARE SHIPS FIRE TRAPS?

[Topeka Daily Capital.]

Authorities say there is nothing to indicate sabotage in the burning of the Lafayette, nee Normandie, at its pier in New York harbor. Sparks from a welder's torch ignited the flames which swept the palatial ocean liner for nearly four hours, leaving it in ruins, resting on the mud of the Hudson river's bottom.

Curiosity impels at least one observation. If a few sparks from an acetylene torch could almost instantly convert one of the world's biggest ships into a raging inferno, what sort of chance would American boys being transported by such a boat have if a demolition or incendiary bomb hit it in midocean? This is a question that a million American mothers are sure to ask. Can, or will, the naval officers answer it?

A TRAGEDY AT RIO.

The book review pages and literary magazines will presently be full of surveys of Stefan Zweig's career, which came to a self-determined end in Rio de Janeiro. We have been reading his work whenever encountered in English translation for a dozen years, always with pleasure, and feel that we have lost a friend of the midnight lamp. Therefore we will say hail and farewell before the deluge from the professional critics.

• • •

Stefan Zweig's suicide was an international shock among bookmen. His writing had been translated into 22 languages: Bulgarian, Catalan, Chinese, Czech, Dutch, English, French, Georgian, Hungarian, Italian, Japanese, Lettish, Lithuanian, Norwegian, Polish, Rumanian, Russian, Serbian, Spanish, Swedish, Ukrainian, and Yiddish. In English, his titles stood at 15 in 1933; perhaps ten more have been added in the last nine years.

• • •

He was a complete man of letters in the best European tradition, and an admirable representative of Viennese culture in its pre-Nazi form. He had a cosmopolitan point of view which should have made transplantation an easy matter. The tragedy at Rio seems in the mood of his romantic novels of Austrian life, such as "Beware of Pity."

• • •

As a playwright, American audiences should remember him from "Volpone," an adaptation of a comedy by Ben Jonson, Shakespeare's colleague. This was staged by the Theater Guild in 1929; Chicago saw it at the Blackstone theater with Alfred Lunt, Dudley Digges, Ernest Cossart, Henry Travis, Helen Westley, and Margalo Gillmore in leading rôles.

• • •

His best biography, to our taste, is "Joseph Fouché," a study of the sinister life of Napoleon's secret service minister. This is not a work of original research, but it is fascinating to read. . . . His rarest item in English is a bibelot called "The Old Book Peddler and Other Tales for Bibliophiles," translated by the late Theodore W. Koch, librarian at Northwestern university.

• • •

Stefan was not related to Arnold Zweig, another German novelist of the circulating library shelves. He was, however, among the first to acclaim and popularize the latter's "The Case of Sergeant Grischa."

"WHEN EGYPT RULED THE EAST."

(A new book by two distinguished Egyptologists.)

In tombs, an' dust, an' muckle moil
The Egyptologists, wi' toil
An' patient fabrication slow
Frae hieroglyphics row on row,
Fashion a picture clear an' plain
O' ancient kings lang deid an' gane.
The stately Pharaohs, lords o' earth,
Thru a' thir days ne'er had a dearth
O' human fodder grown tae feed
The gods o' power, war, an' greed.
The royal shades that haunt the Nile
Perchance may crack a wee bit smile,
Or chortle tae thirsels wi 'glee
At mad Europa's fantasy,
Or jealously admire the skill
Wi' which oor race has learned tae kill
On land, in air, an' on the water—
They were but amateurs at slaughter.
On Egypt's borders mill the hosts,
While grimly watch Pharaonic ghosts—
Rameses, Amenhotep, Seth—
The white man bites himsel tae death.

The February Blues.

The year has retreated to low ebb. Here in Chicago, this melancholy month fulfills its destiny of expiation. It wraps itself in the chill white sheet of penance and is still; at length the tears stream and, tired out by weeping, the unhappy month subsides into the dismal sloshing of water and mud and snow.

Chicagoans slither about in the gray slush; each step sinks abruptly as spray gushes and dun-colored pools are pressed from the sickly snow.

[And on our warmer shores brown hawks are watching, brown wolves are stalking, and helpless Americans are slipping in the slush of laxity.]

February is drawn in charcoal. It is the cold flat gray of stone that is being worn away by the dripping of water.

A prickling smell is in the February air, a smell of soot and the smoke that clings to earth to get away from the scowling sky. The morning is dark; the day is dull; the birds are dumb.

Yes, in February, the year has positively touched its plinth. C. G. F.

VICTORIAN MANSION.

The dark wood may be lusterless,
The floor be scarred, the mirror scratched,
The velvet hangings grayed with dust,
The window curtains patched.

I see the chandeliers ablaze,
The Persian rugs upon the floor,
The shining, polished surfaces,
The hospitable door:

Within the mirror lurk the ghosts,
Within the mirror: secret hoard
Of memories untouched, unspoiled
By sign advising Room and Board.

Coppie.

"Banzai," the Japanese equivalent of "hurrah," came into common American use during the Russo-Japanese war, and is now in the Big Dictionary. Its literal meaning is "10,000 years" or "forever." A close parallel is the French "vive" when used as an exclamation.

The honeymoon was over and the bride discovered that her tall husband slept with his feet sticking out over the foot of the bed. When questioned he said, "I don't want those cold things in bed with me." Silly, isn't it?

GIVE A TIRED HEART COMPLETE REST.

While acute heart failure does not mean sudden death, the situation calls for immediate help.

Most of us recognize the signs which tell us that the circulation is out of gear. As a rule, the victim is short of breath and there may be a hacking cough. When the veins of the neck are observed it will be noted that they are overly filled and that they stand out prominently. Nausea and vomiting are common accompaniments, and a sense of fullness in the upper abdomen—with pain—may be complained of.

Now, all of this indicates that the vital fluid is out of balance. The output from the pumping organ is less than normal and too much remains within the tissues.

For some reason, the strength of the left ventricle is not adequate to meet the demands of the circulation. In other words, the powerhouse is dispatching less blood per minute than it should. What happens is perfectly clear. It is like a bottleneck on a busy highway. Fluid collects wherever it can. In consequence, the extremities may become puffy, the liver engorged, and the lungs overloaded.

One of the earliest precautions is to save the lungs. We must not allow blood to dam back—to become stagnated in these structures. The fact that the legs swell is of relatively little moment. They can stand it. If we find the patient with a slight cough [particularly with a bloody, frothy sputum], struggling for air, and with the features cyanotic [bluish], we must realize that the oxygen requirements of the cells are not being met. A generous portion of the circulation has been trapped somewhere.

In order to safeguard the respiratory apparatus, the ideal procedure is to place the sufferer in an old fashioned Morris chair or well propped up in bed. Within a short time inhaling and exhaling will be smooth and effortless.

This can be done before the doctor arrives. I am sure that many patients have been well nigh wrecked because members of the family have insisted that the one who is ill should lie flat in bed. With wisdom we can yield to the desires of the victim who exclaims: "I just can't breathe lying down."

Of course, we must not assume that all dyspnea [shortness of breath] is due to heart disease. Trouble within the lungs, the bronchi, the pleura, etc., may bring on almost identical symptoms. However, if the sitting position brings relief we may assume that cardiac failure is responsible.

The prime consideration is to protect an already fatigued organ from further strain. It will take all of the energy which the patient possesses to restore the fluid balance to an even keel. Not an atom of vitality should be wasted in unnecessary movements—even the taking of a few steps.

For the first day or two food may be forgotten entirely. No one will starve if no edibles are provided for several days. And the chances are that the invalid will require but little to drink. Enough liquid must be administered, however, to replace the normal body loss by evaporation, etc.

We must remember that the comfort of the patient is our chief concern. Sometimes he knows best.

SMALL BUSINESS MAN'S PLAN.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—I am a small business man. I have been manufacturing a custom built line, now nonessential, for general use. With the hope of doing my bit, I have been trying for work on defense contracts. Too small to be a prime contractor, I have tried to secure subcontractor work. I have talked with many of the engineers at the War Production board and before that with the OPM, but to date I have yet to see any part of a contract. The reason is clear. I have only limited machinery for my line of business. Many of the requirements demand other machinery, which at present time is hard to get.

I have met and talked with many men like myself. The many plans that are being considered do not take us into consideration. Let us get together ourselves. Those of us who may have only one machine, but one that is essential to doing some of this necessary work, might pool our facilities and see if we can't get into production. W. S. RYMER.

MARTINIQUE.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Last year the United States made a military pact with France concerning Martinique. That was before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. Today there are more than 130 planes on that island doing no one any good but Hitler. Besides these planes there is an airplane carrier there. MacArthur needs planes and we need more airplane carriers to strike at Japan.

What are we waiting for, another Pearl Harbor or another Singapore? Only last year Britain seized 200 Germans going to Martinique, and they weren't going there for their health. Martinique is only 1,200 miles from the Panama canal. The French are becoming more and more restless in the Mediterranean, and I think it's about time we became a little more restless in Washington.

ROBERT L. FRAUENREDER.

DONALD DUCK.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 21.—So Walt Disney is to be paid for the Donald Duck cartoon after all—the money to be taken from another appropriation, tho congress, representing the American people, refused to sanction this expenditure.

I am not so much concerned about the money—why worry about a mere $80,000 in this age of billions—as by the fact that the government has chosen a medium generally considered adapted to the mental capacities of the juvenile set to enlighten the taxpayers. This indicates the administration's honest estimate of the taxpayers' intelligence.

ERNA D. STRASSBURGER.

QUOTING TENNYSON.

De Motte, Ind., Feb. 20.—"Better fifty years of Europe than a cycle of Cathay" wrote Alfred Tennyson, England's poet laureate of his day, in a matchless poem. Nevertheless, current events seem to flow in reverse order, since China [Cathay] appears to be "holding the line" against all comers. C. W. FREY.

TIRE SUBSTITUTES.

Freeport, Ill., Feb. 20.—When I was a kid, and my bicycle tire went to pieces a long way from home, I wrapped a clothes line around the bare rim and got home very comfortably on it.

People who talk about there being no middle ground between pneumatic tires and walking show very little resource. Even a roll of rags will serve better than a pair of legs.

Also there are ways of making tires last longer: Around 1905 there were very neat looking shoes of chrome tanned leather, studded with steel nailheads or buttons, that could be buckled over a sick tire to take all the surface wear. In these days when a certain fringe in Washington is looking for an excuse to import hides from Argentina, this would kill two birds with one shot: We could double the life of our remaining tires and use up the hides.

Along about 1907 I was experimenting with truck tires to improve on the wood and rubber blocks that were then in use. I built a pair of balloon tires with metal cord sides and an air tube 10 inches in diameter, also some fairly light weight spring jobs. The pneumatics were too expensive for the market of the day, and the spring tires with leather covers were not good enough to compete with the pneumatic tires on passenger vehicles, but I could get several hundred miles out of one, and it was a lot better than walking. A. M. MACFARLAND.

HOME DEFENSE ANTI-AIRCRAFT UNITS.

Berwyn, Ill., Feb. 21.—There are many young men such as myself who are physically able for military service but cannot enlist because of dependents and who could not support their families on the $4 a day that the state militia provides. But we could be preparing to perform a more valuable service during an aerial attack than running around with a fire bucket. I should like to see an anti-aircraft unit formed in each community under the sponsorship and control of the state militia. If the enemy should bomb this country, I personally want to be shooting at them, not cleaning up after they are thru. GEORGE A. PARKER JR.

PLAN FOR VICTORY.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—It has occurred to me, in my search for excuses for the asinine capers of Washington, that maybe it is all done to make the enemy laugh themselves to death.

IDLE RESOURCES WON'T WIN.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—A radio commentator drew a comparison between the resources of the axis powers and those of the allies. There is one thing that the commentators, the coördinators, the collaborators, the agitators, the prevaricators, and all the rest of the "ators" seem to have overlooked, and that is this: The axis powers are using their resources while our resources are waiting until the family dispute is settled as to what organization or group shall do the work, what the pay shall be, how much of it shall be collected as union dues, taxes, charity, and what have you, and how very little the civilian can eke out a living upon and still pour vast sums into the national pot to prosecute a war that threatens to have all our petty bickerings decided by a foreigner holding a bayonet at our back. One angleworm on a barbed hook thrown into the lake will catch more fish than thousands of worms squirming around upon the land. A. W. MOORE.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

INSURANCE—OLD AGE AID.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—[Legal Friend of the People].—1. A destitute resident of Michigan is in a county hospital.

2. This person is past 68 years of age and has an insurance policy for $1,000 on which a loan has been obtained. He has a dependent wife.

3. In the event of death can the county claim any of this insurance and if so what portion?

4. If this person had been on direct relief could relief officials claim any part of this insurance? M. P.

1. In general, if a person has unneeded income with which he can pay premiums on a $1,000 policy, this would tend to indicate that he doesn't need the full old age assistance.

2. You do not indicate whether he has concealed the existence of the insurance policy from the case workers.

3. In general, rights in an insurance policy would depend on the wording of the policy, but see preceding answers.

A Scholarly Life of Columbus as Man of the Sea

"Admiral of the Ocean Sea," by Samuel Eliot Morison. [Little-Brown, $3.50.] Published yesterday. March choice of the Book of the Month club.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

It was Christopher Columbus who bore the comprehensive naval designation which gives the title of this biography its emphatic maritime flavor. As one finishes Mr. Morison's carefully detailed pages one sees the admiral as a sort of 15th century counterpart of today's explorers of the stratosphere, new fabulous and mythical creatures, half men, half machine, interdependent for life one upon the other. [An idea of the modern flyer you have permanently stamped upon your mind by Antoine de Saint-Exupery in "Flight to Arras."]

In this scholarly but popular life Columbus is primarily a ship-man, one with it, both master and servant, in the same way that modern stratosphere flyers are one with their ships.

It is of Columbus the sailor, but not the frustrated discoverer, that this biography tells. The long days and nights at sea during the four voyages, the thrills of the landfalls here are recreated by a professor of history at Harvard who took the trouble to voyage himself over the sea lanes that Columbus marked, into the inlets that welcomed the Columbian flagship, as well as to dig out every possible scrap of data concerning his hero from source material to the wildest theorizings about Columbus's ancestry and life.

Mr. Morison finds his hero's life closing, but certainly not always having been lived, "on a note of frustration." Says the author: "He had not found the strait, or met the Grand Khan, or converted any great number of heathen, or regained Jerusalem. . . . And the significance of what he had accomplished was only slightly less obscure to him than to the chroniclers who neglected to record his death." But Christopher Columbus lived a rich and rewarding life at sea, and Mr. Morison gives that life glamor in the most entertaining as well as the most scholarly biography written to date of Columbus the mariner.

A larger two volume edition includes exhaustive notes, amplifications of the technique of navigation, and an exhaustive discussion of the origin of syphilis.

Prize of $10,000 Offered in New Novel Contest

A Poet Writes a Novel About Francois Villon

"Rogue's Legacy," by Babette Deutsch. [Coward-McCann, $2.75.] Published yesterday.

Thirty-odd years before Christopher Columbus made his first voyage across the ocean sea in search of its "islands and mainlands" [which he believed to be Japan, China, and neighboring lands], a vagabond "master of arts and man of letters" lived in Paris, fled as a murderer, came back after five harrowing years of low and high living, and, just escaping the hangman's noose, died all alone on a lonely road as an exile from the city he loved and the immoral life which he made immortal in poetry.

Francois Villon has been one of literature's and operetta's perennial subjects. Babette Deutsch, a distinguished American poet, plays another tune to his memory in "Rogue's Legacy," a novel. It adds nothing to the legend of Francois Villon, but it does remodel the hero nearer to a poet's proportions. Frustrated lover he is here, tragically [after his fashion] true spirtually to his Katherine, even in the dramatic moment when, a broken man and scorned, he snatches her purse "to remember her by." No common thief and ne'er-do-well lives in these pages—nor the cheery and irrepressible adventurer of other tales. Villon is here the poet who must write, one "who could not write verses when he was bored; he needed an ecstasy of joy or misery." If fate did not provide either of those ecstasies, he made them for himself.

Mrs. Spoor Gathers Hundreds of Books for Men in Service

Mrs. John A. Spoor, widow of one of Chicago's most famous book collectors, has been the most enthusiastic individual worker in the Victory Book campaign to provide books for soldiers, sailors, and marines. Each day for the last three weeks she has delivered from 25 to 100 books to the campaign headquarters, and she has collected a fund with which books have been purchased.

Already they are on their way to their destination.

What have you done to rival Mrs. Spoor's enthusiasm? Any number of volumes up to 50 should be delivered to the Chicago Public library, any of its branches, or to your favorite book shop. If you collect more than 50, telephone Randolph 5520 and a truck will call for them. A million books is Chicago's quota.

Long, Colorful Novel Depicts Vivid Heroine

"Bride of Glory," by Bradda Field. [Greystone, $3.] Published today. March choice of the Literary Guild.

Emma Hamilton, as likely an emotional volcano as the real Vesuvius which smoked its dominance of the bay of Naples, where she first met the man who made her a historical figure, is the heroine of Bradda Field's vast novel, "Bride of Glory," with its 963 action packed pages.

It is with something of a shock that the reader realizes that by page 814 Emma has just received Horatio Nelson's first kiss, one of the most important osculations in English history. The time, and the pages, have passed so quickly that the reader hasn't noticed that either has been piling up, except for the crick in his arm from holding up a couple of solid pounds of book.

The, by that time, very constant reader begins to worry for fear one of the world's great romances is to be relegated to an epilog. But he needn't worry, for "The Bride of Glory" ends with this prophetic sentence: "There will be another volume showing Emma in a new guise. I name it 'Guardian Angel.'" When it is finished this fictional life of Emy Lyon, chargirl who became the most talked of woman of her day, the confidante of a queen, and the darling of the greatest naval hero of English history, may well be the longest novel in modern English literature. "Bride of Glory" is as long as three ordinary novels already.

But length is a fault which no reader will complain of here. For Bradda Field has managed to keep the tempo swift-paced from the beginning to the end, her reader as fascinated as tho the story were one he had never even had a clew to before. She has written that most popular of seductive books, a perfectly nice and dignified story about a naughty girl.

History gilds each wanton act, and forms the rococo design of the minutely traced background against which the heroine moves. The story may be about Emma Hamilton, but the plot is less what happened to Emma than what happened to England and to Italy in the eventful latter days of the eighteenth century.

"Bride of Glory" may be classed as fiction, even as "pure fiction," but it brings to life an historic period even more vividly than it reanimates a person.

9,337 New Titles Brought Out by Publishers in 1941

There were 9,337 new titles brought out by American publishers in 1941, as compared with 9,515 in 1940. Fiction accounted for 15 per cent of all titles; juveniles, 9 per cent; sociology and economics, nearly 8 per cent; history, more than 6 per cent; religion, a little under 6 per cent; biography, more than 5 per cent, and general literature, science, and education, each more than 4 per cent. These interesting facts came out of the Publishers' Weekly, the magazine of the book trade.

"Athene Palace," by Countess Waldeck. [McBride, $2.75.]

Here is a vivid and entertaining picture of Rumania, the overripe plum which fell into Hitler's lap late in 1940 and helped prove, according to the author, that Hitler's new order will not work.

The countess, a strange figure reputed to be a journalist, arrived at the Athene [correctly, Athénée] Palace, Bucharest's Grand hotel facing the royal palace, on the day France fell in June, 1940, and stayed there thru January, 1941. In those seven months she learned a vast store of information about Rumania, its patriots and double dealers, and the strange characters who inhabit grand hotels.

Countess Waldeck found almost immediate entrée into many important axis and allied circles in Bucharest and tells of them, mainly the Germans, with an acid tipped pen. She outlines why former King Carol's régime and the Iron Guardist Fascist organization had made Rumania ready to accept even the Nazis. Her picture of the Germans' vaunted new order will not amuse Berlin, for she finds the Nazis muddle thru, and not very well. The Iron Guardist revolution provides a terrifying portion of the book, which is far better than most of the "I saw" books which have come out of Europe since the war began.

Three Southern Novels Arrive, All of Interest

"Fire in Summer," by Robert Ramsey. [Viking, $2.50.]
"Dearly Beloved," by Harry Sylvester. [Duell, Sloan & Pearce, $2.50.]
"Sugar in the Gourd," by Evelyn Hanna. [Dutton, $2.50.]

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

After a respite that seems to have refreshed the publishers as well as the public, new southern novels again are in the bookstalls.

"Fire in Summer" is the story of a man whose being is saturated with rage. Cold fury wells up from within him and it rules his every action and thought—with a few exceptions. There was the time, for example, that with a knife sticking into his back, he loaded his shotgun to kill Vince Benner. He wasn't angry then, according to his young son, in whose words the story is told with vividness and charm. He was just calm and cold.

It is a first novel, powerful and earthy, and is reminiscent in spots of Faulkner, Caldwell, and Roark Bradford—but the work has a personality and freshness that is all its own.

"Dearly Beloved," whose locale is the Potomac-Chesapeake bay country, near Baltimore, is a remarkable novel. Its theme is the intraracial work of the Jesuit priests who have been devotedly at their task there since the first of them were brought over by Charles Calvert, Lord Baltimore.

Progress and advancement have done nothing to dissolve the animosity between colored man and white man in the section. The conflict so stirringly told by Mr. Sylvester carries implications much bigger than this one novel.

"Sugar in the Gourd" is an absorbing tale about one kingdom of the Georgia peach empire.

The hundreds of acres of peach trees stretch away on all sides of the great white mansion in which Claire and Sabina Frost—extrovert and introvert daughters, respectively, of the peach king—battle for the love of a handsome young fellow from Boston. They both get him—at various times. It's nice writing and to one who knows nothing about peach plantations it sounds pretty authentic.

Irwin Shaw's Tales of Fantastic People Told with Fine Skill

"Welcome to the City," by Irwin Shaw. [Random, $2.]

These are stories about a number of sad but wonderful people told with nonchalant skill. There's Dutcher, the Hollywood writer whose week-end in Tia Juana with a dumb but lovely lady is spoiled because he keeps thinking of more important things; there's Billy Elk, a real Indian, who seems to live in Central park; there's Bertha Zelinka, who looks too much like Garbo for her own good, and other convincingly fantastic figures that only Irwin Shaw could have written about. Shaw has been mentioned as one of the better younger writers. You won't get any argument on that from this reviewer.

Among Current Mysteries

One That's Different.

"The Widening Stain," by W. Bolingbroke Johnson. [Knopf, $2.]

A large university library is the setting for this story, which is an adequate mystery superimposed on an informative novel. Two of the university faculty, a French instructress and an elderly professor, are done in in these academic precincts. There are dissertations on cheese and limericks, much data on valuable books, and excellent character analysis before Gloria, the attractive library cataloguer, hits on the solution. It's definitely something different for the mystery lists.

Mystery-Romance.

"Murder with Southern Hospitality," by Leslie Ford. [Scribners, $2.]

Natchez during the famous Garden tour is the scene of this mystery-romance in which a couple of overpowering clubwomen are themselves overpowered and the breezy hero finally tucks the fairest flower of the old south into his buttonhole. True love triumphs against slightly over-exaggerated odds, but read it for the background and you'll be hospitably rewarded.

Quartet of Murders.

"Lady in Danger," by Susannah Shane. [Dodd-Mead, $2.]

A somewhat synthetic countess invites nine oddly assorted guests to dinner aboard her yacht and some one drops rat poison into the dinner. None dies—then—but within three days four have been murdered so cunningly that each could have been a suicide. Christopher Saxe, free-lance investigator, intrigued by the fact that each of the persons involved carries an identical gold cigaret case, clears up the whole thing.

Book on Honolulu, in Seaport Series, Is a Timely One

"Tropic Landfall," by Clifford Gessler. [Doubleday-Doran, $3.50.]

The fifth volume of the American seaport series—"Tropic Landfall"—is timely, for it pictures America's great Pacific outpost, Honolulu. War struck as the book was going to press, so the author has written a brief prologue covering the Dec. 7 attack.

His chapter, "Guns Guard the Port," however [written before war began], ironically quotes army and navy authorities as saying that attacks on Hawaii would be futile.

In addition to a history of the port going back to the day of its discovery by white navigators, the author has exciting chapters covering sea disasters to ships sailing to and from Honolulu, wrecked mariners who have made port in small boats, and the contacts with the islands of notorious sea captains.

"Pursuit of a Parcel" . . . By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull

[Copyright: 1942: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

GRILLING.

Delia would have closed her eyes again, but the door opened and Ina Long came in with a cup in her hand. There was strong broth in the cup, and as soon as the savory smell reached her the whole scene came alive and was real. Because she was hungry.

Nothing connects you with actuality more promptly and surely than hunger, the oldest and most primitive sensation of all.

Delia fixed her eyes upon the steaming cup. For the moment it was more important to her than where she was and how she had got there. She rose on her elbow, and the room went round. The savory smell came nearer, and then the cup was at her lips and she was gulping down the broth. It was lovely and hot. She drank it all, and the room was steady again.

The woman who had held the cup to her lips took it away and put it down on the chest of drawers. Delia drew herself up against the pillows and looked at her.

She saw a girl who might be five years older than herself, and who would almost certainly have been pretty if she had not given the impression of having just been put thru a wringer. She had the limp, white look that wrung-out linen has. She must have been crying for hours and hours to make her eyes so red. They might have been rather a pretty blue before she started, but they looked now as if all their color had been washed away. She had fair brown hair which hung dejectedly about her shoulders, and she wore a brightly flowered overall.

Delia said, "Who are you?" and Ina Long said "Ssh!" and ran to shut the door. She had pushed it to when she came in. She opened it now and looked out before she latched it. Then she came back and knelt down by the bed.

Delia was looking at her in a puzzled way.

"Why am I here?"

"They brought you."

"Who?"

"They'll tell you—I can't. But O, whatever they want to know, you'll tell them, won't you?"

It sounded quite incredible. Delia went on looking at her. Perhaps she hadn't quite waked up. It was a comforting thought. She said:

"I don't know what you mean—I really don't."

And then all at once she did. With a jolt which made her feel as if she had fallen downstairs, she remembered the telephone message, and running down the drive, and the chloroform pad pressing down on her nose and mouth. When you have had a fall you have to pick yourself up again and go on. . . . She shut her eyes and took a minute.

She emerged from the confusion with the solid conviction that she had been made a fool of. Cynthia hadn't telephoned. The man with the accent hadn't been one of Cynthia's young men at all. The people who had stolen the parcel had discovered that there wasn't anything in it, and they had carried her off because they thought she knew where the contents were. It was really quite simple. Well, they wouldn't get them. That was quite simple, too.

She opened her eyes, saw Ina looking at her in a frightened way, and said:

"All right— I've got there—they want to know something. What is it?"

"I don't know."

Delia smiled suddenly.

"Nor do I. They won't get a lot forrader on that, will they?"

"Ssh!" Ina leaned close to whisper. "You'll have to tell them. It won't be safe for you if you don't. You don't know what they're like. Do you think I'd be doing this if I could help it?"

"Why are you doing it?" said Delia promptly.

"Because I've got to. And Ernest will never forgive me if he finds out—he'll never forgive me!"

Her eyes were wet again. Delia caught her by the wrist.

"Don't cry! You've got to tell me things. Who is Ernest?"

"My husband. We've only been married a year. He's got a practice here, and he was called out in an air raid last week and he got hurt. He's in a hospital—I can't tell him anything. I couldn't if he were here—but of course then they wouldn't have dared. They've been using his car—they've got ways of getting petrol—they said he would never know. But he will—he'll find out—and he'll never, never forgive me."

Delia tugged at her wrist.

"You're not to cry! Why are you doing it?"

"Because I can't help myself. I'll tell you, because you've got to see it's no good fighting them. My people were Germans. They came over before I was born, so I'm British. But my sister isn't—she's a German subject, and she married over there. I've only been over on visits, but she lives there. She's there now.

"They said if I didn't help them, they'd get her put in a concentration camp. She isn't strong and it would kill her—they would see that it did—they said so. They haven't got any heart or conscience. The only thing you can do is to give in. But they never told me they were going to bring you here. They only said they must have the car, and if any one heard it going out or coming it, I was to say that I had taken it." Her voice faded out on the last word.

She snatched her wrist away and sprang up. It was the third stair from the top that creaked when you stepped on it. It had creaked then—just then when she was speaking. She had picked up the cup and was half way across the room when the door opened.

Delia saw it open, and then she saw the man who had called himself Mr. Brown and Cornelius Rossiter standing upon the threshold. She still believed him to be Cornelius Rossiter, and because of this she was not really afraid, because Cornelius was in some sort Antony's brother, and it was impossible to be really afraid of Antony's brother.

He held the door with formal politeness for Ina Long. When she had gone out he shut it behind her. Then he pushed the basket chair beside the bed and sat down.

"Well, Miss Merridew—I hope you are feeling better."

Delia said, "Yes, thank you." She became aware that her shoulders and arms were bare. She shivered a little and said, "Will you please give me my jumper? It's just there, at the foot of the bed."

He gave it to her and she huddled it round her, making a scarf of the sleeves. It went thru her mind that this was an excessively odd way of beginning a conversation with a man who had chloroformed and abducted you.

He waited until she had settled herself against the pillows. Then he said:

"I am glad that you are feeling better because I want to have a talk with you. You have been a long time coming round and my business is very pressing. I told you that the other day. It is a pity you did not tell me the truth then—it would have saved us both a great deal of trouble."

Delia looked at him with innocent candor.

"Why do you think I haven't told you the truth?"

And all at once she was frightened, not because of anything he said or did, but because of the look in his eyes. It might have been there all the time—perhaps it had been—she didn't know, but quite suddenly it frightened her. It was a relief when he spoke.

"Miss Merridew, you are not now in your house at Fourways. You are in a house where I give the orders. It would be better if you remembered that. There will be no more lies and pretendings because I have not time for them. Last Monday afternoon one of your uncle's clerks handed you for safe keeping a parcel which I had sent to Antony from Holland. I did not know when I sent it that I should so soon have to come away myself.

"The contents of the parcel were very important. It was a matter of life and death for me that I should have them as soon as I arrived in England. I found out that you had the parcel, and I came to you expecting that for Antony's sake you would help me. Instead you deceive me, you obstruct, you make difficulties, you withhold my property. Because it is a matter of life and death and I must have it, I am obliged to take it from the bank by force. But when it is opened the cylinder is no longer there. What have you done with it?"

Delia continued to regard him. Her eyes widened.

"But I don't know. Antony said there wasn't any cylinder."

"What are you talking about? Do you think you can put me off like that? You had better not try. You opened the parcel."

BICYCLE MAY HOLD ANSWER TO YOUR TRAVEL PROBLEM

Hostels Expected to Play New Vacation Role.

Northfield, Mass., Feb. 24 [Special].—Now that the number of automobiles crowding the American highways is to be reduced, the bicycle will take on an unprecedented importance in our national life. It will provide the answer to many vacation problems this year and for the duration.

So, at least, reasons Monroe Smith, executive director of the American Youth Hostels, Inc.

"The lure of the open road is not dependent upon gasoline or automobile tires or automobiles," Mr. Smith said today. "Those who need recreation and rest will find it despite shortages of any kind."

Means Saving on Materials.

He asserted that hostel travel is done either on horseback or under one's own power—hiking, bicycling, or by canoe. It requires little of the metals, rubber and oil needed by the government. More than 150 bicycles can be made from the materials used in making one automobile. Bicycle tires are being made from reclaimed rubber, the finish is nonmetallic, and all unnecessary parts have been eliminated. Other forms of hostel touring require even fewer materials.

"Furthermore," the director said, "these forms of travel are both healthful and cultural. And they provide an enjoyable and worthwhile means of recuperating from the strain of the present day crisis."

The American Youth Hostel organization was founded by Monroe and Isabel Smith in 1934. Originally its activities were confined to Northfield. Since then it has spread to many parts of the United States.

Founders Tell Its Purpose.

Its purpose, as proclaimed by the founders, is:

"To help all—especially young people—to a greater knowledge, understanding, and love of the world by providing for them youth hostels and by assisting them in their travels over bicycle trails, footpaths, and byways, and to enable youth thru hosteling not only to enjoy the cultural benefits of travel but also to win them to a keen appreciation of the out of doors that they may thereby develop happier, stronger, cleaner, and more wholesome lives."

Hostels, as nearly every one knows by this time, are inexpensive, overnight accommodations, usually set up in farm buildings, with the farm folk acting as "house parents." Each establishment has separate sleeping rooms for boys and girls, and a common kitchen and dining room. Bunks, mattresses, blankets, and cooking equipment are provided. Each hostel is sponsored by a local committee representing schools, churches, and civic and outdoor clubs.

CANADA PLANS DRIVE TO DRAW TOURIST TRADE

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 24 [Special].—All the way from the Atlantic to the Pacific, Canada will be ready this spring, summer, and fall to welcome crowds of visitors from the United States.

As a means of telling the people "south of the border" about the dominion's facilities for rest, recreation, and vacation, the nine provinces have combined forces in a campaign of advertising and publicity. A $260,000 advertising program will be started next month by the Canadian travel bureau.

With the idea of formulating the tourist appeal in keeping with wartime developments and the needs of both countries, the ads will be placed on a month to month basis.

Gasoline is to be rationed thruout the dominion, but travelers from the United States will be treated the same as Canadians. Official intimations have been given here that the rationing program may be placed on a more flexible basis for the summer months.

Canadian Firm to Offer Lake and River Cruises

The war will not interfere with the plans of the Canada Steamship Lines for the summer operation of indepedent and all expense cruises on the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence and Saguenay rivers. Word to this effect was received yesterday by A. P. Williams, general agent for the Chicago territory. Rates will be about the same as last summer and there are to be only minor changes in the schedules.

Ryersons Head West in Spite of Attack on Coast

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE shelling of the coast near Santa Barbara, Cal., did not interrupt the plans of the Joseph T. Ryersons and their daughter, Miss Mary Ryerson, who departed last night as scheduled for their home in Santa Barbara. Nor do Chicagoans with homes there, or relatives along that part of the coast seem particularly upset. Mrs. Ryerson thought the shelling might be a reprisal for the arrest of a Japanese official in Goleta, a Santa Barbara suburb.

"Fancy Elwood getting into the news," said Mrs. John Russell Holmes, whose parents, the Seller Bullards, have a ranch near Santa Barbara. "That's where we go to vote." The Bullard home is a large white house high on a hill about two miles from the scene of the shelling. Mr. Bullard missed the excitement as he is here in Chicago, and Mrs. Bullard probably still is on a visit to San Francisco, her daughter thinks.

Mrs. Fuller Mitchell Is Living Near Goleta.

Mrs. Fuller Mitchell is living about seven miles from Goleta, but her sister, Mrs. King Mitchell, and their parents, the Charles Garfield Kings, do not seem particularly disturbed by the Japanese attack. Mrs. King Mitchell's son and his wife, the junior William H. Mitchells, currently are in Tucson, Ariz. The John J. Mitchells and the Lucius B. Mannings are at their ranches in the Santa Barbara area. Mrs. E. Crane Wilson just has returned from a visit in Santa Barbara with her son, Milton Wilson, and his wife and their family.

The James Ward Thornes no longer have a residence in Santa Barbara, for they sold their house there last spring. Mr. and Mrs. Thorne are not going west this winter. The Arthur Meekers are other Chicagoans who have a home near Santa Barbara. Their's is in Montecito, a Santa Barbara suburb. Their daughter, Mrs. Francis V. Lloyd, and her daughter, Miss Nancy Lloyd, are in their Santa Barbara home at the moment, however. Mr. and Mrs. Meeker will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on March 10.

Celebrities to Be Feted at Casino Club Today.

The Casino, that smart little club in East Delaware place, will be alive with celebrities late this afternoon, because Mrs. Walter R. Kirk and Carleton S. Smith have merged the teas each was planning for today. Mrs. Kirk is entertaining for members of the Ballet Theater group, which opens tomorrow night at the Civic Opera house, and had planned to have her guests come to her home to meet Dolin, Baranova, Markova, and the other dancers and ballerinas of the group. However, Mr. Smith already had invited so many of the guests Mrs. Kirk wished to have that the two teas have been turned into a sort of joint affair at the Casino.

Mr. Smith, who is in and out of Chicago on speaking engagements with the army morale division, had previously obtained the Casino for a party for Gregor Piatigorsky, violoncellist, and Miss Kitty Carlisle, chanteuse. Mr. Piatigorsky is to play the Hindemith concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra tomorrow night and Friday afternoon.

Pouring tea for Mr. Smith's "half" of the party will be Mrs. John Alden Carpenter and Mrs. Byron S. Harvey. Mr. Smith is making the Ambassador East his Chicago headquarters for the next two or three weeks. He will be a guest of William Allen White at Emporia, Kas., when he speaks at army posts near Kansas City. The Ballet Theater group will be at the opera house only thru Sunday.

Announcing Engagement of Helen Wieboldt Today.

Interesting romantic news is contained in the announcement Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Frederick Wieboldt of Glencoe are making today of the engagement of their daughter, Helen, to William Wilcox Hoxie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vivien Walter Hoxie of San Francisco, Cal.

As Mr. Hoxie is not here, Mr. and Mrs. Wieboldt are not giving a party to announce the engagement. Miss

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Oil for Business Machine.

"The most important lesson I learned in business," remarked a woman in an executive position, "I learned in my very first job. An error in the accounts proved to be not mine, but the fault of one of the junior members of the firm. Unreasonably nettled at the idea that I should be suspected, I told the junior executive in no uncertain terms that he was to blame.

In the army they call it "insubordination." My superior officer called it "impertinence." And there was a great hullabaloo.

What I didn't know then is that no one likes to be told of a mistake. If, in business, it is necessary to point out a blunder, the situation calls for tact."

Importance of Accuracy.

Government contracts are bringing to the attention of many clerical workers the imperative need of accuracy. If one figure is off in a calculation or in a letter the contract is returned for correction. A recent contract flew back air mail from Washington because of a 3c error.

This answers a question very generally raised: How much does the average business girl, not specializing in auditing, have to know about figures?

The consensus is that she has to know a considerable amount. In one large business office each typpist is held responsible for any column of figures appearing in a letter she types. When she returns the letter she is required to return an adding machine tape with it, proving the accuracy of the column she has typed.

Most common mistakes in figures, according to an experienced auditor, come from transposition [writing 72 instead of 27], or from what is termed "making a slide." For instance, writing $86.05 instead of $860.50; $528.30 instead of $5,283.

This same auditor points out that in searching for transpositions she looks for figures divisible by 9. For the difference in all transpositions is a figure divisible by 9 [the difference between 72 and 27; between 84 and 48; between 61 and 16].

In a Book Store.

Overworked words in the book business:

"No, thank you, I'm just browsing."

"My friends tell me I should write a book."

Who's Soft?

An Alabama White Collar Girl adds a paragraph to the "Who's a Softie?" discussion as to whether the farm woman or the city worker has the toughest job. "In addition to the washing and ironing under difficult circumstances the Alabama farm woman must cook three, not one, hot meals a day, the first about 4 o'clock in the morning . . . keep the farmhouse clean, feed the chickens and stock, milk the cows, churn, and do a thousand other things we would never think of doing. Her job is never done."

Find Young Fry Turn Combative in Time of War

The fact that the rugged individualism of young fry from 6 to 13 years old tends to advance from the comparative to the superlative degree in wartime was noted yesterday by parents attending the opening session of a child development study course at the Association for Family Living.

Youngsters of this age group, unlikely to demonstrate shrinking violet tendencies under any conditions, when fired by war talk, suddenly take on the vigorous characteristics of zooming bombers, streaking torpedoes and deafening howitzers, all present agreed. Prejudice crops up to victimize companions of the racial strain of enemy countries and is expressed in any degree from teasing to free for all combat.

Mrs. Stina E. Hillman, conducting the discussion, told the group that parental admonition would accomplish little without a positive program to divert such explosive energy.

On the score of prejudice, she said parents must teach their children to differentiate between individuals and acts or ideas toward which they have no responsibility or even sympathy. The class will meet each Tuesday until March 17. Next Tuesday the group will study parent-school cooperation in child guidance during war time.

Soviet Embassy Party a Leading Topic in Capital

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—The principal topic in the army and navy set today was last night's reception at the soviet embassy in honor of the 24th anniversary of the creation of the Red army.

The function gathered the high command of the United States army, navy, and marine corps and officers of the united nations, some 800 strong, to drink toasts to pledges of aid to the soviet army and to victory.

Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson and Max Litvinov, soviet ambassador, sipped thimblesful of vodka to the success of Russian arms.

The reception was one of the highlights of the busiest social season the capital has known and brought the greatest assemblage of the war to date of the allied military high command under one roof.

Society reporters said there was "enough gold braid in the embassy to go around the world."

Conversation lingered over the affair today because an invitation to the function was regarded in American army and navy circles as a social victory.

A wide variety of liquors was offered at the bar. At the refreshment table was sturgeon, flown from Russia by way of Alaska. There was also the inevitable caviar of all embassy functions.

There was a four tiered cake, surmounted by the Red flag, bearing the hammer and sickle, and the red star.

Chief among navy officers who attended the affair were Rear Adm. James O. Richardson, Rear Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, Rear Adm. Emory S. Land, Rear Adm. Herbert Seymour Howard, and Rear Adm. George T. Pettengill. Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Frank Knox were out of town.

The affair was largely a service party. No other members of the cabinet or little cabinet were invited except in the war and navy departments.

Uniforms were in preponderance. In addition to the American services, the military attachés of all the united nations and neutral nations were represented.

The diplomatic section of capital society came in full strength, headed by Lord Halifax, British ambassador. Other members of the diplomatic sector present included Richard G. Casey, Australian minister; Leighton McCarthy, minister of Canada, and Count Robert Van der Straten-Ponthoz, the Belgian ambassador.

The soviet embassy staff said 775 invitations to outsiders were issued and 60 members of the embassy were in attendance. It was estimated that almost every one who received an invitation put in an appearance, except for a few persons out of the city on business.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES By MARCIA WINN

Of Things Known Long Ago.

We think it all new and strange under the sun, the shortage of tires, the possible shortage of permanent wave machines, the dearth of rubber girdles, wool, paper, metals and essential oils for perfume, but from Mason Warner, who apparently is as assiduous a student of the Bible as he is a traveler, comes Scriptural word to the contrary. We quote from Isaiah, III., 18-24:

In that day the Lord will take away the bravery of their tinkling ornaments about their feet, and their cauls, and their round tires like the moon.

The chains, and the bracelets, and the mufflers.

The bonnets, and the ornaments of the legs, and the headbands, and the tablets, and the earrings.

The changeable suits of apparel, and the mantles, and the wimples, and the crisping pins.

And it shall come to pass, that instead of sweet smell there shall be stink; and instead of a girdle a rent; and instead of well set hair baldness; and instead of a stomacher a girding of sackcloth.

And of Strong Stomachs.

Word from Mr. Warner reminds us of a dinner several years ago at which an Alaskan Amazon known as Queen Bess, so-called because of the many official positions she occupied in those cold regions, was supposed to be guest of honor. But it turned out that the stalwart queen, who was accustomed to mush with her dogs thru the frozen tracts of the north, had been flying to Chicago from Washington and was grounded somewhere by a touch of snow. Thus our hostess asked Mr. Warner, the only other guest who knew the historic conception of the word adventure, to tell of his world travels. This he did, centering them on food he had eaten here and yon: rattlesnake soup in the Rockies, horsemeat in Finland, octopus in Greece. Food came and went at the table, but Mr. Warner still chatted engrossingly of foods far off but remembered still. Finally the maid passed dessert, ice cream in meringue shells. Mr. Warner, then at his most entertaining in an account of a crushed shell omelet in Borneo, took his cigar from his mouth, absentmindedly flicked its heavy crest of ash into his meringue shell, scooped out a portion of ice cream to surmount it and, as the guests gaped in admiring fascination, ate it all. That was three years ago, and Mr. Warner still is a hale and hearty gentleman.

Scoop.

It seems quite proper, when you settle down and mull it over, that the Townsend National Weekly, the little paper published for devotees of the Townsend Plan, should have scooped the entire Washington press on the Congressional pension plan. Ramspeck, its Georgia sponsor, cunningly tacked it, a tiny item, into a routine civil service list for pensions which only the Townsendites bothered to read. And its dénouement brought sorrow only to the lady from Louisiana who had suggested the song, Arms for the Love of America, be changed to Alms for the Love of Our Congressmen.

If you knew Susan (THEN)

YOU'LL HARDLY RECOGNIZE HER NOW

The time came when even Susan realized that something had to be done about her hair! It was tragically straight . . . heavy with soap (that, try as she might she just couldn't rinse out) and of no particular color at all. It really had Susan d-o-w-n . . .

So Susan came to Elizabeth Arden's Salon where a staff of experts did really wonderful things for her hair!

Susan's scalp was tight and dry, her hair lustreless . . . so Elizabeth Arden's Scalp Treatment was just what she needed. Strong brushing, special creams and lotions and stimulating manipulations brought the tingle of health to her scalp . . . bright beauty to her hair.

Susan had a Violet-Aire Shampoo and its zephyr-fresh ingredients wafted away even the most elusive particles of dust leaving her hair soft and gloriously clean.

A permanent wave (the fastest one Susan ever had) gave her soft, strong curls with a born-naturally-wavy look. Its success was a matter of precise analysis, correct selection of lotions and creams for Susan's individual hair texture, and the sure touch of experienced hands.

Finally, Susan emerged a new and dramatic person . . . thrilled with the vitality and healthy lustre of her hair . . . delighted with the most wonderful, wearable hair style ever . . that graces her Service cap by day, is equally smart for evening . . . it happened to Susan—it can happen to you!

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

The dignified and thoughtful book, "H. M. Pulham, Esq.," has been made into that sort of a picture—and is drawing that sort of an audience. . . .

The flashback is, it seems, the thing these days. . . . And so, as in "Remember the Day," "Cheers for Miss Bishop," and other films you will recall, the story is told largely by camera recorded reminiscences of the leading character. . . .

H. M. Pulham, scion of a conservative Boston family, is a Harvard man, as was his father before him. . . . The World war had messed up the carefully laid out plans the latter had made for his only son. . . . H. M., returning to America from the front line trenches, deserts Boston and a niche in his father's business for a hectic career in a New York advertising agency, where he meets Marvin Myles, a clever career girl, who wins his heart and makes him practically oblivious to the existence of Kay Motford, the Bostonese, whom Mother and Father Pulham had hoped would be his wife. . . .

As a childhood playmate Kay had never much appealed to Harry, but she had been, more or less, always in his life. . . .

His romance with Marvin is very sweet and very unsatisfactory. . . . For a visit to Boston convinces Miss Myles that she could never endure life as lived there by the Pulhams. . . . His father's death brings Harry back home—and into the comfortable arms of accustomedness. . . . HERE is where he has always belonged. . . .

And so he marries—whom . . . ?

Idea of it all being, briefly, stay in your own back yard. . . .

The glamorous Hedy Lamarr was never more glamorous than as Marvin. [The rôle has been greatly padded and she is practically always in view.] . . . She has acquired a brisk, casual poise that is most engaging, and her line delivery is charming. . . . Once I thought her merely beautiful. . . . How wrong I was! The exquisite creature can ACT!

Robert Young is natural and believable both as a youth and a middle aged man. . . . Not tiresomely stuffed-shirty as so many players would have been in the part. . . . Ruth Hussey overdoes a bit, I thought. . . . Other portrayals are apt and I liked the direction, staging, photography, and general atmosphere.

See you soon.

Your Handwriting

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER.

The Hartmans—Grace and Paul—specialize in satire in their dances and so we would naturally look for some sharp angles in their writing. If there were just soft curves, we could expect them to be content to go thru the regular routine of graceful poses, but no, we find not only sharp angles, but long, exaggerated strokes that are so much like their exaggerated gestures with which they satirize ballroom dancing.

Grace Hartman

Mr. Hartman's writing is particularly sharp, with stabbing i-dots and dagger-like t-bars. The t-bar in his signature is a lasso. This formation is often found in the handwriting of those who derive enjoyment from making sly digs at people who take themselves too seriously and who have a dry humor, often sardonic.

Both the Hartmans have the typically long strokes found in the writing of those who like physical activity and express this desire in dancing.

Heart Association Asks Returns on Stamp Books

Any one who has not yet returned his dollar for a book of heart stamps issued by the Chicago Heart association, 203 North Wabash avenue, is urged to do so at once. Mrs. Ruth Pearce McEldowney, executive director of the association, reports that the officers desire to close the books on the 1942 sale. The annual stamp sale is the association's principal support in its campaign against heart disease.

Looking at Hollywood

—By John Chapman—

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 24.—The resourcefulness of a Hollywood property department is legend. Too much legend, if you ask Charlie Granucci.

Property men work daily miracles, turning up with just the right things to suit the whims of mentally unhorsed directors, and there have been many stories of their wonders. But, according to Charlie Granucci, there have been times when property men haven't delivered the goods.

It all started between setups on a Columbia stage where William Holden and Frances Dee were making scenes for "Meet the Stewarts," on which Granucci is props. "Charlie," said Director Al Green, "as a personal favor get me the left sides of 10 dozen anchovies."

Granucci didn't bat an eye.

Any property man knows when to go fetch and when to say aw nuts. Granucci said the latter. Green went about his work.

"In the 15 years I've been a property man," said Granucci to Erle Hampton, "I've had requests from directors that were just as screwy—and they weren't gags.

"For instance, there was the time a Columbia company was shooting all night in Sherwood forest. It was 3 a. m. and the director suddenly decides he wants an owl perched on a certain branch of a tree. He tells me to get a stuffed owl right away. Where he expected me to find a stuffed owl at 3 o'clock in the morning in the woods 40 miles from Hollywood, I'll never know. I didn't get it."

One of Granucci's favorite reminiscenses is the time he was on location with a Spanish-American war picture starring Buck Jones. The set was a fort, which was mined with powder and supposed to blow up during a big battle.

Three hundred cavalrymen were poised for a charge. Infantry troops were on the sidelines, ready to rush in for hand to hand conflict. And Granucci, his work finished for the moment, was blessedly dozing in a chair.

Buck Jones, a prankster, couldn't resist a gag. He drew his gun and fired a blank cartridge under Charlie's sitzplatz. The property man leaped three feet—but that was only the start of the action. The cavalry charged, the fort blew up, the foot soldiers fell upon one another. And not a camera was turning.

How was Buck Jones to know that Director Lambert Hillyer had designated a gunshot as the signal to begin?

Club Furniture Asked for Men in Secret Work

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Today we're asking our readers to rally 'round and give some much needed assistance to one of the army headquarters in the locality.

This detachment does not come under the usual grouping, which is one reason why they need materials for recreation. For the same reason, we can give no specific information concerning it.

There are well over a hundred men, assigned to special duties, who are not able to take advantage of many of the facilities offered to the average service man.

They are provided with bunks and a mess, but are completely without recreation facilities. There is available space for this purpose but it is entirely unfurnished. There are no easy chairs or lounges, no radio or victrola, no tables or desks. Lamps, reading matter, writing materials, and games are also woefully missing. They also have made a specific request for a hot plate for the purpose of keeping coffee warm for men who come off duty.

We will be glad to hear from either individuals or organizations interested in aiding this detachment, but we can not reveal the name or address of the barracks. If you have packages you would like to send to these boys, they can be mailed to this office. Furniture or a radio can be picked up, so offers of any such items may be written or phoned to this department.

We can not reveal the details of this particular request, but we hope our readers will be good enough to take my word that this group urgently needs a hand.

Cello Soloist and Composer Share Honors

BY EDWARD BARRY.

A mere composer almost edged out a soloist in the friendly competition for honors at yesterday's Orchestra hall concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Conductor Frederick Stock programmed the Five Symphonic Etudes on the folk song, "El-a-noy," by his first oboist, Florian Mueller, and presented his first cellist, Edmund Kurtz, in the Schumann concerto.

The audience greatly liked the folk song and the resourceful treatment which Mueller had given it—liked it especially at the end, where the tune is combined with a rollicking barn dance rhythm and takes on an exciting new robustness and swagger.

Applause came in salvos, and the shy and scholarly looking composer was compelled to leave his place among the oboes and bow his acknowledgments repeatedly.

Kurtz's contribution to the program was as successful in its quiet way as his colleague's. He played with a grave songfulness that fitted the still, inward looking quality of the concerto very well. His tone was easy and resonant for the most part. Sometimes it took on actual radiance.

The program also included the Bach-Rusch G major Fantasia, the Brahms-Haydn Variations, and two Wagner excerpts — "Voices of the Forest," from "Siegfried," and "Siegfried's Rhine Journey," from "Twilight of the Gods."

Plans for reopening the Auditorium for a spring music festival have reached a stage where some public announcement is in order. Energetic Giovanni Cardelli, the moving spirit in the organization called Opera theater, hopes to present 10 operatic and symphonic performances in the old theater between May 4 and May 16. Verdi's "Macbeth," Rossini's "The Barber of Seville," and Mozart's "Abduction from the Seraglio" are among the operas talked of. Conductors and guest artists whose names have been mentioned include Sir Thomas Beecham, Fritz Busch, Paul Breisach, and Albert Spalding. Nothing is absolutely definite yet.

There are three minor changes in the Ballet Theater's schedule for its engagement this week-end at the Civic Opera house. Friday night "Swan Lake" will replace "Les Sylphides," Saturday night "Bluebeard" will replace "Princess Aurora," and Sunday night "Les Sylphides" will replace "Swan Lake."

One of the most inconspicuous and practical ways of protecting the top of your bridge table or card table of standard size, is to provide it with a transparent pliofilm cover. Covers neatly bound and finished with elastic holdons at the corners fit the table top like a glove. You can get them in green, red or the natural transparent material, if you wish. The cost is well under half a dollar, and they are easily cleaned, of course, by wiping with a wet cloth.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

The crucial play in today's hand could hardly be simpler, yet I fear that 9 out of 10 players would meet defeat, just as this declarer did.

West, dealer.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 hearts	Pass	Pass	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the heart king, and declarer played dummy's ace as automatically as tho it had been a singleton. East blithely ruffed and from that point declarer was playing a hopeless contract. No amount of squirming could help him avoid the loss of two clubs and one diamond.

As noted above, my observation of average and even better-than-average players leads me to believe that most of them in the South position would be equally guilty. Yet the winning play is so simple that it is hard to excuse defeat.

When West opens the king of hearts, surely declarer can spare a few seconds for a survey of his losing tricks. This will disclose that he must lose one diamond and two clubs. Obviously, he cannot afford to concede a heart trick unless he exchanges this loser for one of his other losers. But it immediately should become apparent that that exchange is not only easy but, what is even better, safe! West, it must be remembered, opened the bidding with four hearts. That would make it quite normal for him to have an eight card suit, in which case East would be void. But whether West had six hearts, seven, or eight, why risk having the heart ace ruffed away when that card would be just as valuable at a later stage for the discard of a club or diamond loser? The correct play, obviously, is to duck the first trick in dummy, conceding it to West. On a heart continuation, dummy of course ducks again and declarer ruffs. He draws trumps, ending in dummy, and discards a loser on the heart ace.

On the House

For an inexpensive finish for bathroom and kitchen walls a protective wall-canvas base will eliminate the problem of most plaster cracks. . . . One type of wall-canvas has a wealth of handsome patterns and colors and provides a washable, enduring finish. . . . There are patterns and colors for all types of rooms, but the fact that this wall-canvas is definitely washable and inexpensive and can be used over wallboard as well as plaster construction makes it a very worthwhile consideration for modernization work of many kinds.

Honey in a cake gives more than usual moistness, and I think you'll find that a honey cake may be kept longer without drying out.

Honey Spice Cake.

[2 9 inch layers.]

2¼ cups sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon cloves
½ cup vegetable shortening or margarine
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
1 cup honey
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk

Sift flour with soda, baking powder, salt, and spices, three times or more. Cream shortening thoroly and beat in sugar gradually. Mix until light and fluffy. Beat in egg well. Add honey and blend. Add flour mixture and sour milk or buttermilk in alternate portions, a small amount at a time. Beat smooth after each addition. Bake in greased layer pans at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Cool and frost as desired. Or serve with whipped cream between the layers and over the top.

Polenta is a real economy dish. You can make it from leftover cornmeal mush, or you can cook a fresh batch of the mush to prepare it.

POLENTA.

To prepare the cornmeal mush, sprinkle 1 cup yellow cornmeal slowly into 1 quart boiling water to which a teaspoon of salt has been added, stirring constantly, over direct heat. Then place over boiling water and cook for half an hour, stirring occasionally.

Spoon the resulting mush into a greased baking dish, covering the bottom of the dish. Sprinkle lightly with more salt and paprika. Add a layer of sliced or grated cheese. Put another layer of the mush and another layer of cheese into the dish in the same manner. Brown in the oven and serve hot.

POLENTA WITH TOMATO SAUCE.

This is the most savory version of polenta, and the one suggested in tomorrow's dinner menu. Prepare the cornmeal mush and cheese as just described, and pour this tomato sauce over the combination before browning in the oven: Brown 1 minced onion lightly in 2 tablespoons oil or bacon drippings [add half a minced garlic clove, if you like, too]. Add 1 cup canned tomatoes, 1 stalk celery, chopped, 1 sprig parsley, ⅛ teaspoon thyme, a beef bouillon cube dissolved in ½ cup water. Season with salt and pepper, simmer for half an hour and strain.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

Wonderful with steak! That's this sweet-sour Dutch onion dish. For the recipe, Mrs. L. F. Bousquet, 1421 Robinson street, Knoxville, Ia., wins today's prize of $5.

If you've a recipe that's unusual, an old family favorite, an economy special, or a dish of your own invention, send the recipe to the Mary Meade Recipe contest. Perhaps it will win the $5 prize given daily. Write the recipe in standard form, give complete and clear directions, and put your name and address on each sheet of paper.

Dutch Onions.

[Serves four.]

4 large white onions, sliced
¾ cup boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon flour
3 tablespoons sugar
¼ cup vinegar
1 tablespoon butter

Simmer the onions in the salted boiling water until tender and all liquid is absorbed, keep covered during last few minutes of cooking time. Combine sugar and flour and stir in the vinegar. Add along with butter to the onions and simmer 10 minutes longer, stirring to prevent lumping.

[Send in your favorite recipe.]

Women in War Work

[The Women in War Work department reports on women's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women wishing to take part in these activities.]

The women's division of the Chicago Red Cross war relief drive, headed by Miss Harriet McLaughlin, yesterday reported a total of $285,760 to James B. Fogan, general chairman of the campaign for $3,750,000. Altho the women already have oversubscribed their quota of "not less than $250,000, they have agreed to stay on the job with the hope of collecting a grand total of $275,000.

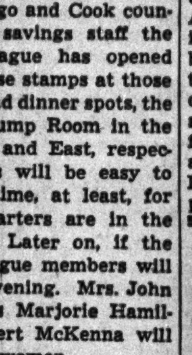
"Never before have women and women's organizations shown such a generous response," Miss McLaughlin said. "Fully 80 per cent of our contributions from persons in all walks of life have been on a level considerably in excess of past donations. We still have outstanding a large number of gifts which workers should be able to clear during the next week and we're hopeful these will bring us to at least 10 per cent over our quota."

The total for all contributions yesterday stood at $3,187,004, or 85 per cent of the Chicago quota, Mr. Forgan announced.

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross yesterday opened its second production depot at 1105-11 Chicago avenue in Evanston, with Mrs. Robert A. Gardner in charge. All production units on the north shore and northwest of Chicago will be serviced from this depot. Mrs. Lester Dunbar of Evanston and Mrs. A. B. Smith of Glencoe, both lieutenants in the motor corps, are in charge of the drivers who will pick up garments and make all deliveries not made by unit members. The main depot is still in the chapter headquarters at 616 South Michigan avenue.

The defense program committee of the Chicago Girl Scouts, of which Mrs. Richard Bentley is chairman, will meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning at Girl Scout headquarters to discuss further plans for adult participation in the Scouts' defense work.

Women in Lake and adjoining counties outside of Cook who wish to help sell defense bonds and stamps should attend a school of instruction for defense savings speakers today, Friday, and March 2 at Lake Forest college. Mrs. Kenneth F. Rich, chairman of the state committee on women's organizations of the Illinois Defense Savings staff, announced yesterday that Prof. H. C. Tomlinson, speech and drama instructor, will conduct the course. This is the first school to be held outside of Cook county and women who attend will be available as speakers for meetings in Lake and adjoining counties.



Miss Esther Beneffel.

Bundles for bluejackets are being made even in the skies these days. Under the leadership of Miss Esther Beneffel, Chicago chief hostess for Transcontinental Western airlines, 200 TWA air hostesses are knitting for the bluejackets. Some have become so proficient that they are giving knitting instructions to passengers. Among the hostesses are Miss Joyce Wolever, Miss Ardyce Dean, Miss Helen Ehrentraut, and Miss Signe Hendrickson.

Under the auspices of the women's committee of Chicago and Cook county of the defense savings staff the Chicago Junior league has opened booths to sell defense stamps at those popular luncheon and dinner spots, the Buttery and the Pump Room in the Ambassadors West and East, respectively. The booths will be easy to man at luncheon time, at least, for the league headquarters are in the Ambassador East. Later on, if the stamps go well, league members will be present in the evening. Mrs. John A. Chichester, Miss Marjorie Hamilton, and Mrs. Robert McKenna will be among the saleswomen.

Mrs. Jewel Organ Coleman, president of the Women's Defense Corps of America, will speak at a meeting of the Chicago unit of the Marine Corps league auxiliary at 8:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Hotel Sherman. The auxiliary is composed of wives, widows, mothers, sisters, and daughters of marines in service or holding honorable discharges. Mrs. Olyse Marchi, national junior vice president, is president of the Chicago unit. A meeting of the league itself will be held concurrently with the auxiliary meeting.

"Rides," reads a sign posted in the shop of St. Luke's hospital and under the title are written names of women who have driven cars to the shop that day and are willing to take passengers on their return trips. The driver lists the farthest point on her route and would-be passengers who live "along the line" sign their names for rides. Mrs. John C. Whiting suggested this transportation system as a means of conserving both gasoline and rubber.

March 7 has been set as the date for the marriage of Miss Barbara Burch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton B. Burch of Winnetka, and James Elwood Jones, son of Mrs. J. Breckenridge Bayne and the late Mr. Jones of Washington, D. C. The wedding will take place at 8:30 o'clock in the evening in the Burch home, the Rev. Duncan E. Littlefair of the Glencoe Union church officiating. A reception will follow.

Among the parties for Miss Burch are a paper shower Mrs. Harold Tideman is giving today; a miscellaneous shower Mrs. Gifford Vermillion is giving on Friday, and a personal shower Mrs. Thomas Alward has planned for Saturday.

Mrs. Frederick Gardner and Daughter Visit Here.

Mrs. Frederick D. Gardner, whose late husband was governor of Missouri, and her daughter, Mrs. Janet Gardner Hawes, arrived last night from St. Louis, Mo., for a few days' visit with their Chicago relatives. During their stay here Mrs. William A. Gardner will entertain for them at cocktails. Albert S. Gardner also is planning a cocktail party, probably to be given on Sunday at his residence in the Seneca hotel. The visitors will be staying at the Drake hotel. The engagement of Albert Gardner and Miss Frances Henderson was announced recently.

The speaker at a meeting of the Illinois Opera guild at 11 o'clock this morning at the Arts club will be Miss Clara Lake. Assisted by Alice Brown Stout, composer and concert pianist, and by Mona Bradford, contralto, Miss Lake will discuss "opera—Youngest of all the Arts."

Mrs. James G. McMillan, president of the guild, will introduce the speakers and will preside at luncheon following. Some of those entertaining at luncheon are Mrs. Frank R. Fuller, Mrs. Millard B. Kennedy, Mrs. Edward A. Leight, Mrs. Sigrud Olsen, and Mrs. William H. Spurgeon.

Welfare Group Giving Fashion Show Today.

The Barrington center of the Infant Welfare society is giving a luncheon and fashion show at 1 o'clock today in the Barrington home of Mrs. Robert Buckley. Mrs. Malcolm McAdoo is chairman of the event. Acting as models will be Mrs. Harold Costello, Mrs. Buckley, Mrs. Andrew Rebori Jr., Mrs. Harold Behlke, Mrs. George Henneberry, and Mrs. Colbernt Uhlemann.

The Roycemore Mothers association will benefit from a lecture by Miss Helen Parker on Mrs. James Ward Thorne's miniature rooms, followed by tea, at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Roycemore school gymnasium. Miss Parker is head of the educational department of the Art institute.

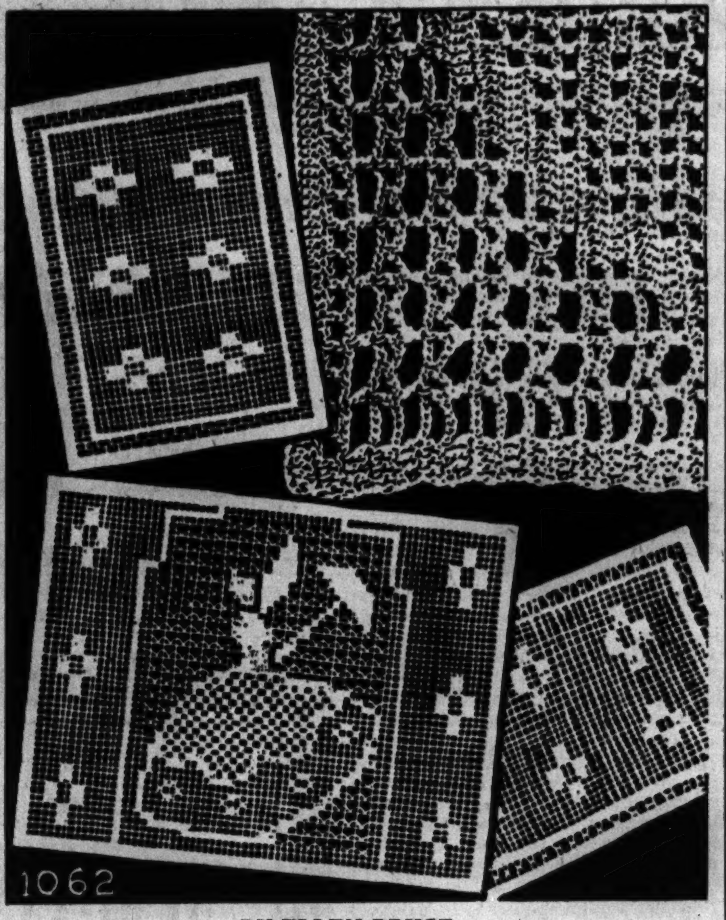
The awards will be presented tomorrow at the annual founders' day dinner of Chicago and Northwestern chapters in the Electric club, altho both recipients probably will be absent.

Crocheted Chair Set



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

An old-fashioned girl is a favorite motif for crocheted chair sets. The arm rests are of a simple design, and easy to do. The chair back has the one motif of an old-fashioned girl, surrounded by the same motif contained in the arm rests. For sheer beauty and daintiness, this set is one not to be overlooked.

For instructions in crocheting the "old-fashioned girl" chair set, No. 1062, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 5th avenue, New York City.

New Applique Ideas Feature Spring Dresses

BY REA SEEGER.

Superlative examples of fine handwork in distinctively designed daytime dresses emphasize the never failing charm of inspired details. In a newly unpacked collection of such perfect dresses and costumes for immediate wear under winter coats, later with wool jackets and still later with summer accessories, the most painstaking of all handwork, unusual applique ideas, are featured.

These costumes are indisputable evidence that there is a definite demand for exquisitely made individual costumes. Most of them are the clever black and white combinations or the smart black background prints with gay small colored designs.

There is a black and white design of clipped white poodles and a tiny cerise flower; another of a winged cherub blowing his breath out to sample the weather. There are precise little daisy prints, another of fat, rollicking cupids taken off the ceiling of some palace rococo ballroom. The prints alone are enough to make these dresses unusual, but when you examine the appliqued trim detail such originals become even more irresistible.

For instance, the plaster white cupid print against black; around the edge of the short sleeves and the fluttering hemline of the skirt is a two inch band of lace on which the cupids are appliqued. This same applique is worked on the French poodle print against narrow black val lace.

The daisy prints feature soft pale yellow, green, and dull white against dull black. Massed portions of the small daisies form the neckline accent and the cuffs as well as the massed edge along the hem of the full skirt. This same print is used with a short grass green wool jacket.

Every inch of the material is of silk. They are finds that are dateless, exquisitely fashioned dresses that satisfy that urge for distinction, and even tho these models are expensive they are worth every penny . . . there are and doubtless will be few of such intricately fashioned and designed costumes available. Grab them now before they vanish.

Thru the Looking Glass

There are two luscious new lipstick shades out, arriving at a nice moment, we think. Somehow even the old familiar face seems to take on something of the midwinter bleakness along about now and a new and nobbier shade of lipstick is almost necessary to brighten it up.

These are warm colors and rich. The lighter of the two shades, called "siren red," has lots of brilliance but no harshness. While it's vivid it isn't one of those reds with a lack of depth. We rather imagine that of the two this will be the choice of fair-skinned women who want some gay shade to give accent to dark winter colors.

The second new stick is very, very South Americanish, rather dark but not too much so. It manages, while it's a deep shade, to have nice vibrant undertones and it's a smash for the girl with creamy skin and smoky eyes and hair.

These are the creation of a house that makes truly elegant lipsticks. They're especially good for winter use, we always think, because they're creamy without being too slushy to stay on rather firmly. They have an emollient quality that's especially welcome if the lips are inclined to chap.

Either of these two shades is good right now, when all women feel so tired of their winter hats and coats.

Cripple Has Complex That Shuns Altar

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

A correspondent tells of a man, now in his late thirties, who has had marvelous educational advantages and great financial success. But, because of being born with a crippled leg, he suffers a hideous complex, believing that no woman would marry him except for mercenary reasons. Recently he lost his parents, and is pretty much alone in the world. He's handsome, has a grand vocabulary, speaks beautifully, and has a brilliant mind. Yet, our correspondent says, he cannot be convinced that any woman would marry him if he did not have money.

"Correspondent's," contention is that, even were some woman to marry him solely for his money, he still would be better off than he is now, daily growing more embittered and alone. He's the type who would want to marry and have a nice home life, and there are women who would deeply appreciate him for himself if he'd only give them the chance.

"Correspondent" admits to a genuine interest in the follow herself, but played her cards wrong in the beginning. Her interest was mistaken for agressiveness, whereas "Correspondent" tells she's shy and retiring, really.

Battling that ingrained complex is a tough assignment. It has become almost a vicious disease. Some good psychiatrist might be able to straighten out the warped mind, but the man's own intelligence should be put to effect by study of the lives of men, far more handicapped, who have managed to surmount personal corruption by shedding happiness on others.

Perhaps you, "Correspondent," could lead him down this road of thought, or you may know some one else who might influence him. We thing your own fine concern might eventually make the dent in the armor that will let love in. We hope so, if that is what you want.

THE Kitchen Kibitzer

BY MARIAN CARTER

A look over the shoulder of the kitchen manager in an attempt to speed, lighten and add some novelty to her daily routine.

Galloping water isn't any hotter than just plain boiling water, so why take a chance on scorching the bottom of the kettle? (It won't cook your vegetables any faster, either.)

* * *

Yes, it's patriotic to conserve on sugar, but don't skimp when measuring brown sugar for a recipe, or the results might be disappointing. Pack it firmly into the cup, then level it off with a knife or spatula.

* * *

If that pretty white meringue is beginning to weep in the oven, it's all your fault! The egg whites have been beaten until dry, instead of just stiff and still moist.

* * *

Let your loaf cake ice itself, and see a job well done. Just sprinkle a half cup of grated sweet or semi-sweet chocolate, combined with a half cup of finely chopped almonds, over the batter, and bake as usual.

* * *

Stop snooping! If you lift the lid of the wafflemaker before the waffles have completed steaming, they won't be crisp. Wait just a few seconds, then look at them if you wish.

* * *

Add a dash of cinnamon and ginger to sweetened whipped cream to make an extra good topping for gingerbread squares. Try it on spice cake, too!

* * *

Cauliflower arouses new interest when the flowerets are rolled in crumbs, dipped in a mixture of egg and a little cold water, then rolled again in crumbs, and fried in deep hot fat until golden brown.

* * *

Keep your hands warm, by all means, but don't burn 'em on hot pans. Get a pair of those whopping big quilted mittens, available in most department stores. They're safer, and much more amusing than ordinary pot holders.

* * *

TOWN'S CITIZENS SOLVE FARMERS' LABOR PROBLEM

Volunteer to Aid in Fields During Rush Seasons.

The manner in which a small rural community in Minnesota voluntarily organized itself to prevent a shortage of farm labor, was put forward yesterday as a possible plan for organizing the country at large. The plan was described at a conference of representatives of the United States Employment service from 10 central western states in the Congress hotel.

Minnesota delegates told how the town of Goodhue with a population of 480 developed a method to help farmers during planting and harvest time. Under the guidance of L. E. Cook, editor of the Goodhue County Tribune, the town's business men opened a voluntary placement office. A survey of available labor was made and farmers were consulted as to their labor needs.

Pinch Hit for Draftees.

Business men and women, housewives, students, and others registered at one of the local stores indicating their willingness to go out on the farm and pinch hit for the drafted hired hands. Each individual told what days he could work and outlined his capacities. Boy Scouts and 4-H club members interested farm implement dealers in teaching them how to run tractors and other farm machinery.

"The plan was so successful and the coöperation of the townspeople so wholehearted that other Minnesota communities adopted the plan," said J. O. Bjerke, informational director for the social security board of that region. "Now more than 85 communities have adopted the plan, and the government is interested in it as a possible solution for relieving the labor shortage during peak periods on farms."

Most Adaptable Plan.

Other plans have been worked out by various farming communities thruout the country, Bjerke said, but the Goodhue idea is one of the most adaptable yet encountered.

Among the other plans discussed at the conference was one evolved in Oregon where older school children registered for farm service. Fay W. Hunter of Washington, chief of the farm placement section, said it might become necessary to draft school children.

The regional conference of the employment service was called to consider the various plans for relieving labor shortages in different parts of the nation. The meeting will continue today.

How to make a WAR GARDEN

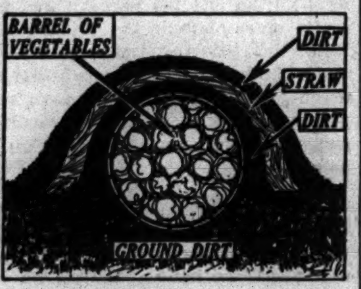
BY GAIL COMPTON.

When the frost comes next fall the war gardens should be ready to yield a supply of vegetables for storage and winter use.

Late maturing crops such as carrots, turnips, parsnips, cabbage, celery, pumpkins, and squash should be harvested and put away in an outdoor storage pit or in a storage room in the basement.

Room Should Be Cool.

A portion of the basement can be partitioned off to make an excellent root cellar. The room should be shut off from the furnace, preferably on the north or cold side of the house.



A barrel sunk part way in the ground and covered with straw and dirt will make a practical outdoor storage pit for vegetables.

It should be partitioned with double walls with the space between them filled with shavings, sawdust, or cork, and should include a window for ventilation. The temperature in the storage room should be kept between 43 and 38 degrees Fahrenheit. If the floor is concrete it should be sprinkled with water every few days to keep the air moist and the room should be kept dark.

Vegetables should be kept on shelves, racks, or in slatted bins or crates.

Moist Sand on Floor.

It is advisable to cover the concrete floor with dirt or sand as concrete has a low insulation value. Moist sand is an ideal medium for cleanliness and insulation. A slatted floor can be used to cover the sand.

If it is impractical to build a storage room in the basement, good results may be obtained with outdoor storage pits.

An outdoor root cellar can be made with a barrel and straw. Sink the barrel part way into the ground on its side and make a level dirt floor within the barrel. The outside of the barrel should be covered with a layer of dirt, then a layer of straw and another layer of dirt. This will prevent the crops stored inside from freezing.

Instructions to Build Pit.

If a barrel is not handy, a pit can be dug in the ground. The pit should be about three feet wide and a foot deep and should be lined with straw, hay, or other insulating material. Stored roots can be laid in the pit so that they form a pyramid towards the center.

After the roots have been put into the pit they should be covered with a few inches of straw, a piece of burlap, and then dirt to keep the frost out. As the weather becomes colder more dirt can be added to the top of the pit as a precaution against freezing.

Thru storage the home owner increases the value of his war garden by having its products available thruout the winter. A storage room or pit is economical and will provide fresh vegetables when market prices are high.

MICHIGAN YARD LAUNCHES A SHIP FOR BRITISH NAVY

Ten thousand persons gathered at the waterfront in Benton Harbor, Mich., yesterday to witness the launching of a minesweeper for the British navy. The vessel, built by Dachel-Carter corporation, is believed to be the first made for the British in midwestern shipyards. The firm, which had closed two years ago, has had hundreds of men working on the 130 foot craft.

Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner of Michigan, who saw the launching, made a brief speech in which he said the time had come to use and to expand the middle west's shipbuilding plants.

"Here, safe from coast raids, lies the answer to the shipping problems of the United States," the governor said. "Here we have the men and the materials and the plans for quick output. A gun or a ship built this year is worth 20 built in some future year."

COUNTY BOARD'S FAILURE TO PAY INTEREST CITED

Circuit Judge John Prystalski yesterday ordered the county board to show cause why it should not be held in contempt of court for failure to appropriate $182,986 in the 1942 budget, passed last Friday, for interest on judgments totaling $3,116,913.

The judgments were purchased from the city by the Woodmen of the World Life Insurance society and the Ben Hur Life association, and represent money owed the city for the county's share of Municipal court costs, from 1932 to 1938.

On Jan. 29 Judge Prystalski granted the two organizations a mandamus compelling the board to appropriate enough for interest plus one-tenth of the total judgment.

The board has appealed the provision calling for payment of one-tenth of the judgment but not that commanding it to pay the interest. Judge Prystalski ordered the board to file its answer March 11.

HUSBAND OF BABY HOME OPERATOR IS ALSO ACCUSED

Herbert Schwenke, of 7341 South Hermitage avenue, was charged with having operated a welfare agency without a license yesterday after an unwed mother said he accepted a check for $275 for placing her child with foster parents.

Schwenke's wife, Lillian, was arrested a week ago on a charge of operating a boarding home for babies without a license. Schwenke said he gave the check to his wife and did not know anything about the mother's charge that she was to receive $175 of the money.

The Schwenkes will be arraigned tomorrow in Domestic Relations court before Judge Justin F. McCarthy. Seven babies, none older than 10 months, were removed to St. Vincent's orphanage after Mrs. Schwenke's arrest. An advertisment in a south side newspaper offering "a lovely baby girl" for adoption led to an investigation by Policeman Lois Higgins.

Lester A. Kruse Pays $1,000 Income Tax Fine

Lester A. Kruse, convicted with his father, Arnold W. Kruse and James M. Ragen Sr., of conspiracy to evade income tax payments, yesterday paid a $1,000 fine in the clerk's office of the Federal District court. They were associates of M. L. Annenberg in the publishing of race information. Their convictions were recently upheld by the United States Supreme court. A motion for probation will be heard by Judge Walter C. Lindley on March 9 for Ragen, who was sentenced to prison for a year and fined $10,000, and the elder Kruse, who was sentenced to serve 18 months and pay a $10,000 fine.

JURY WILL HEAR MRS. MATTINGLY AT TRIAL TODAY

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 24 [Special]. —Mrs. Lurayne Mattingly, widow of Charles O. Mattingly and mother of a two months old daughter born 5 months after Mattingly was killed by bullets fired thru a kitchen window, is expected to take the stand tomorrow as a witness for the state in the murder trial of Mrs. Caroline Payne.

Mrs. Mattingly will describe the tragic scene in a neighbor's kitchen where she and her husband were having a sandwich lunch when he was shot down. The state contends that Mrs. Payne, business manager of a local newspaper, shot Payne out of jealousy because of his marriage. Mattingly was counsel for the Indiana public service commission.

Ballistics evidence introduced at the trial today linked the bullets fired into Mattingly's body with an automatic pistol said by the state to belong to Mrs. Payne. A plaster cast of a footprint found outside the window after the shooting was also received in evidence, together with one of Mrs. Payne's slippers for comparison by the jury.

Food Store Owner Fined for Attack on Pickets

Herman Wadler, south side food store owner, was fined a total of $55 in Jury court yesterday on charges brought by members of the milk wagon drivers' union. The complaints, Bernhardt Richards of 5822 South California avenue and Charles Trauscht of 8348 Peoria street, said Wadler broke the windows of their car with a hammer and struck Trauscht when they picketed a store Wadler is building at 9624 South Western avenue.

FARMERS OPPOSE USE OF RICH LAND FOR ARMS PLANT,

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 [Special].—Rep. Evan Howell [R., Ill.] said today he had received a protest from the Sangamon County Farm bureau against the government's plan to build a 25 million dollar ordnance plant near Illiopolis, Ill.

The farmers contend the project would remove approximately 15,000 acres that are among the richest farm lands in the country, from agricultural purposes at a time when farm products are almost as essential as munitions. The area is reported as especially adapted to the raising of soy beans, corn, and wheat.

The site of the proposed plant is near the village of Illiopolis, 23 miles east of the Illinois capital city of Springfield. It would occupy 50 sections of land in Lanesville and Illiopolis township in Sangamon county.

War Savings Stamps may be purchased from cashiers on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 8th floors, and at the fountain luncheonette. Arrangement for the purchase of bonds may be made at the Post Office on the 3rd floor.

FIGHT FOR 32 GOLDEN GLOVES PLACES TONIGHT

PASTOR KNOCKS OUT FRANKLIN IN EIGHTH ROUND

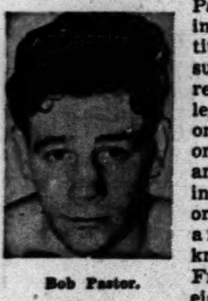
13,278 BREAK INDOOR RECORD FOR CLEVELAND

Bob May Get Third Bout with Louis.

Fight Decisions

At Cleveland, O.—Bob Pastor knocked out Lem Franklin [8]; Johnny Lawer beat Ernie Pelaia [5]; Lefty Young stopped Vic Troise [3]; Billy Murray beat Charley Eschman [5]; Billy Marquardt beat Tony Ferrara [8].
At White Plains, N. Y.—George Kochan and Angie Arellano drew [6]; Sonny Horne beat Larry Fontana [6].
At New York—Eddie Lander beat Terry Young [8].
At Los Angeles, Cal.—Jackie Wilson beat Ceferino Garcia [10].

Cleveland, O., Feb. 24 (AP).—Champion Joe Louis probably will win Bob Pastor outright in a heavyweight title bout this summer. Joe already has two legs on Pastor—one a knockout, one a decision—and a third meeting seemed in order tonight after Pastor knocked out Lem Franklin in the eighth round of their scheduled 10 round fight before a record Cleveland crowd of 13,278.



Bob Pastor.

The end came after two minutes and eight seconds. Pastor fired 30 punches to drop Franklin flat on his face near a neutral corner. Lem, a weary, well battered warrior, got up, but staggered helplessly into the ropes and Referee Joe Sedley raised Robert's hand in token of victory. Later Sedley said he had counted 10 on the knockdown and that Pastor's victory would go into the books officially as a knockout triumph.

Franklin Loses His Punch.

Pastor's victory was little short of amazing. He was a 5 to 2 underdog in the betting. Even his best friends told him the best he could expect was to outpoint the burly Cleveland Negro, who had won 19 fights in a row, the last eight of them by knockouts.

Franklin opened up like a 50 yard dash man. He ran out with the opening bell, firing his heavy artillery. Two rights snapped Pastor's head back in the first and a long, roundhouse right opened a cut alongside Bob's left eye in the second. But by the third round there was little steam in that feared right hand. Lem caught Bob with a smashing right, flush on the jaw, in the third, and it didn't appear to bother Pastor any more than a mosquito.

He's Down! He's Up!

Meantime, the pug nosed New Yorker kept befuddling Lem with footwork and slowing him down with digging wallops to the body. Pastor and the referee got their feet tangled up in the second and Bob tripped and sat on the seat of his pretty silk pants. But he was up and from the next round on he carried the fight to Lemuel all the way.

In the fifth Pastor opened up his big guns and hurt Franklin so badly Lem held on momentarily. In the eighth, when Bob finally saw his opening, he turned tiger. He caught Lem along the ropes near a neutral corner with a left hook and right cross to the head. Franklin was both hurt and dazed. He just didn't seem to know what was going on in the immediate vicinity.

Gross Gate Is $52,457.

Pastor poured leather to his head so fast only an adding machine could have counted the blows. Finally, Lem came tumbling down flat on his face. He rolled over at "eight," then stumbled to his feet, but school was out right then.

The gross gate was announced as $52,457, which shattered the old local indoor mark of $50,000 drawn by Joe Louis and Eddie Simms six years ago.

Pastor scaled his expected 181 at the weigh-in shortly after noon. Franklin, altho sporting a 16¼ pound edge, was lighter at 197¼ than he had been in a year.

THE baseball team which will represent the Great Lakes Naval Training station next summer will be managed by Mickey Cochrane and will be built around Bobby Feller of the Indians, Joe Grace of the Browns, and Benny McCoy of the Athletics. . . . Some of the members of the Great Lakes basketball team, notably Ernie Andres of Indiana, Dick Klein of Northwestern, and Frank Baumholtz of Ohio university, have had minor league baseball experience. . . . It looks as if Lieut. Comm. J. Russell Cook, the station's athletic officer, also will have material for a strong football team next fall. . . . Paul Christman, Missouri's expert forward passer; Bob Osterman, center at Notre Dame in Elmer Layden's last year as head coach; Aldo Forte of the Bears, Joe Kuharich of the Cardinals, Herman Schniedemann of the Packers, and Ray Busler of the Cardinals already are in service. . . . George McAfee, whose extraordinary talents as a ball carrier helped the Bears to win the National league championship last fall, hopes to qualify for naval duty within the next few weeks. . . . It appears that Hibbing, Minn., High school is going to reach new heights in the hockey books this season-end. . . . Alumnus Frankie Brimsek of the Boston Bruins has virtually clinched the Vezina trophy as the world's best goal tender and runner-up is Alumnus Sammy LoPresti of the Blackhawks. . . . Brimsek, by the way, is the only player who has won two of hockey's highest individual trophies in one season—the Vezina and Calder awards. . . . The Cubs' Jimmy T. Gallaghers expect a brand new business manager in their home in April. . . .

Pete Cawthon, former Texas Tech football coach, who was among those mentioned for the position of gridiron leader at Illinois, is one of the assistants to Lieut. Comm. Tom Hamilton in Washington. . . . Hamilton has charge of athletics for the division of aviation training. . . . Les Oldfield, who learned to swim in a horse tank on his father's farm, never has lost a back stroke race since he enrolled at the University of Nebraska. . . . He is the Big Six conference record holder at that style. . . . Hank Greenberg had an identical fielding average of .992 for the seasons of 1935, 1936, and 1937. . . . Louisiana State already has sent to the armed service 12 football players who were expected to make the 1942 squad and Coach Bernie Moore thinks he will lose several others before roll call next September. . . . Prof. Hew Roberts of the University of Iowa was an RAF pilot before coming to the United States two years ago.

What IS News?

The Wake reported the other day that Kewanee High school's basketball team was the guest of the University of Illinois athletic department at the Michigan-Illinois game recently. This may be news to some of the Big Ten executives, but the rest of us know Illinois is going out after the boys. Now, if you had said that the Kewanee squad was the guest of the University of Chicago athletic department—that would have been real news. —W. A. Caine.

Personal to Hilda Butler Farr.

'Way back in 1938 I suggested a Wake banquet and you turned thumbs down on it, but added "I'll give it some thought." Now comes Hilda Butler Farr with the same idea. It's moider in the foist degree. I wuz robbed. I hope her creation becomes a reality. —Harry N. Strouss.

May I come to your party? My quips number over 10. I'll be glad to come at any time. You just tell me when. —Clif of Canterbury.

I guess I'll come and join the fun,
I'm sure 'twill be a winner. So count
—Distant Dan.

That's a swell idea of Hilda Butler Farr's to put on a banquet for the Wake contributors. She says: "We will have some fun together 'over chicken and steak.'" I wonder if she has bought chicken or steak on the market of late! How about everybody bringing their own lunch?
—Perly.

How will I be able to get to the Wake dinner when I am Low Man on the Totem Pole with only nine contribs? —Cohen & Doyle.

Pretty Expensive Dump, Eh?

Moe Berg Tosses a Radio Speech at the Japanese

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 [Special].—Morris [Moe] Berg, linguist and former American league catcher, who now is an ambassador of good will for the coördinator of inter-American affairs, tonight told the Japanese people that their temporary victories will bring them only misery.

Moe Berg.

Berg, who spoke in Japanese over radio station KGEI, San Francisco, recalled his visits to Japan and his admiration for many parts of its culture, but warned the Japanese they have been betrayed by their leaders.

"They have misinterpreted Democratic freedom and debate for weakness. The Matsuokas, your jingoist army and navy officers, and your axis partners, have misjudged us—have misled you," he said.

"Take the reins now. Your war lords are not telling you the truth," he urged the Japanese.

SHIP ONE DOZEN SOX (WHITE) TO J. DYKES TODAY

Wally Moses in Group; but Goletz Still Absent.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

A limited portion of White Sox players, 12 to be exact, will be taken under the wing of dapper Joe Barry, traveling secretary, at 12:01 p. m. today and the 1942 training jaunt will be under way. The first part of the junket will be extremely pleasant for the boys—they'll be carted out of the Polk Street station aboard the streamlined Chief—but the luxury will be shortlived. By Friday afternoon they will learn there is more to training than food and siestas.

Uncle Joe Barry still was searching last night for Stanley Goletz, one of the lads for whom he will be responsible until contact is made with Manager James Dykes at the Pasadena camp a few days hence. To all appearances, Goletz, a left hander [and according to baseball tradition left handers are unpredictable], isn't going to show up either at the depot or at camp. So Manager Dykes is going to be out the pinch hitter and possible pitcher he had included in his plans.

Moses an Early Arrival.

The six foot three inch Goletz had been wintering at Wheeling, W. Va. Inquiry there indicated he had just packed up and gone away. Not satisfied with this, Uncle Joe contacted a Goletz relative in that region but the latter was of no help and besides wasn't concerned. So until definite information is received the rookie giant from the Oklahoma City club will be listed as on his way some place to join the army.

Among the early arrivals yesterday was Wally Moses, the speedy Georgian who came from the Athletics last December in trade for Mike Kreevich. Being a long standing member of the Jim Dykes Rooting club, Moses naturally was more than pleased with his transfer. But he is no more pleased than Dykes, who is quite confident that by his maneuver with Connie Mack he added a sure .300 hitter to his outfield department.

Smith on the Scene, Too.

Another who made certain of not missing the train by reporting 24 hours in advance was Eddie Smith, the squatty southpaw. Eddie is slightly on the round side, but he's always that way. If Mr. Dykes thinks Smitty is too bulky, Smitty will be in for a lot of running.

Rankin, Saggau, Kinnick—They're Aviation Cadets

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 24 (AP).—Three midwestern youths who won glory on the gridiron—Dave Rankin of Purdue, Bob Saggau of Notre Dame and Nile Kinnick of Iowa—have been appointed aviation cadets. The navy public relations office here said today they were included in a list of 386 men who have finished preliminary training and have been assigned to flight training centers.

Eddie Lander Beats Young in 8 Rounds

Bride Almost Upsets Golden Gloves Routine

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Along about 10:40 o'clock last night a lady made an unscheduled appearance on the west stage of the three rings during the Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions. This might appear to be somewhat of a departure from feminine conduct but it so happens this lady had every wifely right to be there. She was pretty, blonde Ann Hipp Marten, a bride of less than three weeks, who had come to cheer on her husband, Willard Marten, heavyweight of the Nashville Tennesseean team, in his battle against Bill Zuke of the Minneapolis Star-Journal squad.

Midway thru the second round Zuke, a football star from the University of North Dakota, tagged Willard with a barrage of lefts and rights. Marten was sagging to the floor when Zuke applied one finishing blow. Enter Mrs. Marten.

Officials Avert ——?

She had been seated in one of the front rows on the Warren avenue side, but she set a world's 15 yard dash record in getting to the ring and clambering up on the apron at the northeast corner of the ring. She would have continued on thru the ropes if officials hadn't restrained her. She finally was induced to return to her seat, to await Willard, whom she presently joined with the remark, "If I had been up there, I'd have killed him!"

The marriage of Willard, who is a private in the 65th medical corps at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Ann has provided this Golden Gloves show with a romance note. Willard made his first move toward a Golden Gloves title by winning at Chattanooga on Feb. 6.

Defeat Earns Her a Dress.

Two days later he married Ann, and promised her that he would start

AERONAUTICAL U. PLAYS A DOUBLE OVERTIME TO WIN

Aeronautical university was forced to go two overtime periods before dropping Lisle from the state Junior college basketball tournament yesterday at Joliet. The final score was 49 to 43, the victors scoring 10 points in the second extra session while holding Lisle to 4.

In another afternoon game Morgan Park scored a 45 to 30 victory over Maine.

In the two evening games Herzl went two overtimes to defeat La Grange, 49 to 47, and Wilson won from North Park 44 to 31.

La Grange held a 28 to 21 lead at the half, but Herzl, sparked by Gray, who scored 27 points during the game, tied it up at 41-all when Gray sank a short shot just before the game ended. The teams fought to a 45-45 score at the end of the first overtime period, but Gray came thru with another field goal when the score was tied at 47-47 in the second overtime.

RADIO BROADCAST—W-G-N at 10:45 p. m. with Bob Elson giving ringside accounts.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions will flare to its finish tonight with fighters of all weight classes slugging away incessantly in three rings. This will be the third consecutive evening of action in this fast moving show. The crowd which troops to the Stadium will see third round and quarter-final matches in every division right thru from flyweight to heavyweight.

The competition, which has been increasing in tempo at every session, will be stepped up to greater intensity tonight because the less skillful contenders have been eliminated in the two nights of campaigning. Those who still are in the battle will turn on all their power because a major objective will be within striking reach. Those who still are unbeaten when the last blow falls tonight will be members of the select field of 32—four in each weight class—which will come back to fight again in the semi-finals and finals in the Stadium on March 6.

Heavier Boys Thrill Crowd.

Last night the boxers of the four heavier weights took up where the smaller fellows had left off on Monday. They thrilled the crowd with the tremendous power of their punches as well as with their speed. Thru these two nights of sensational battling, Minneapolis and Cleveland blazed remarkable records.

These cities each sent eight fighters—one in each weight class—into the tournament. And last night each still had its eight boys in there—still punching and still unbeaten. From the littlest fellows right up to the biggest, the representatives of these two cities smashed down all opposition.

Chicago got right back into the tournament after the disasters which struck Monday when only Harold Dade was able to survive out of the four who went into the competition in the lighter weights. Last night, however, all four of Chicago's boys came thru splendidly.

Hood Throws the Clincher.

These four lads showed aggressiveness, hitting power, and boxing skill as they pounded their way to two knockouts and two decisions. Harry Stephens, the Kenosha lad who represents the Chicago area in the middleweight class, found the range of a sturdy soldier from Camp Livingston named Harry Levine. After they had fought on even terms thru the first round Stephens began chopping away at his opponent thruout the second. And just before the bell he dropped him with such a damaging left to the face that Levine's seconds decided not to send him out for the third.

Tickets may be obtained at the Tribune Public Service offices from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. at 1 South Dearborn street or in Tribune Tower lobby. Tickets also will be on sale at the Stadium at Gate 2, Madison street, starting at 10 a. m. General admission tickets tonight are 50 cents. Reserved seat prices:

TRIBUNE CASTING TOURNEY SUNDAY DRAWS 34 TEAMS

BY BOB BECKER.

The Tribune casting tournament, which already holds the national record for number of contestants in any casting meet, has set another new event record this year by attracting 34 five man teams for the team competition to be held Sunday afternoon in the International amphitheater.

W. R. Collins, secretary of the National Association of Angling and Casting clubs, said yesterday that this entry of 170 casters in the team event is without parallel in the records of the national organization. Twenty-seven teams competed in The Tribune tournament last year.

Indiana Sends 17 Teams.

All of the Chicagoland casting clubs will have one or more teams in the show Sunday, and 17 teams will represent Indiana casting clubs.

Today is the entry deadline for team competition. Any casting clubs still wishing to enter five-man groups in the event may call or wire the Casting Editor, Chicago Tribune, before 5 o'clock this afternoon. There are no entry fees.

William J. Butler, tournament manager, said yesterday that at least 200 novice anglers have been taught the rudiments of handling bait casting and fly casting equipment during the first few days of the tournament. He reports there is more interest in fly casting than last year. Any one wishing to receive these free instructions in either fly or bait casting may contact Mr. Butler at the Tribune booth on the main floor of the amphitheater or at the casting pool in the north wing of the building.

Newcomer Wins Shore Casting.

Frank O'Brien, Oak Forest, who won the shore casting event in last night's portion of The Tribune tournament, proved again that any good fisherman has a chance to win a trophy in this competition.

O'Brien never before had taken part in any casting event; in fact never before had cast at an indoor target. But he spends his summer vacations angling for large mouth bass in the lakes around Minocqua, Wis., and he has developed enough accuracy during his many fishing trips that he thought he had a chance in the tournament. In the difficult shore casting test he tallied 91 to defeat 22 other fishermen and win a Tribune trophy.

The Bulldogs concluded their season with 13 victories and 9 defeats, compiling their largest losing score in the 33 year old series against the Irish and tying their all-time high mark with a valiant last minute surge. Notre Dame surpassed its own winning record of 55 points in its competition with Butler. Notre Dame has won 24 games to Butler's 14.

The Bulldogs trailed, 25 to 13, after 14 minutes of play, and the same 12 point margin separated the teams at the half with the Irish in front, 33 to 21. Capt. Wilbur Schumacher, slender Butler forward, who had made 13 points in the first half, added 10 more in the second period to total 23.

The defeat dropped Lindblom into fourth place, but the squad managed to take the last qualifying position. Harold Ordman was Manley's hero with nine baskets and one free throw. Phillips captured third place by routing DuSable, 54 to 29, on the latter's floor. In another central zone junior game, Kelly triumphed over Farragut, 38 to 19, in Kelly gymnasium. Lineups:

their honeymoon by winning the All-Southern title in Nashville, so that they could continue on to Chicago. He made good with three victories, and then they agreed to prolong the honeymoon to the intercity bouts in New York next month. When the roster of college coaches and directors who have joined the armed forces of the nation is finally complete, Minnesota's Gophers will stand high, if not on top, of the record. Maj. Bernie Bierman already is back in the marines and is expected to take over the job of supervising the naval aviation program of physical training at the University of Iowa.

Frank McCormick, athletic director of the school, attended last night's bouts. A reserve officer in the first World war, McCormick has abandoned his duties in Minneapolis and will return to army aviation, with probable headquarters in Chicago.

Dal Ward, Gopher freshman football coach under Bierman, expects to sign up at Great Lakes soon. Three members of the athletic department are planning to take posts in the naval aviation physical training program. They are Edwin L. Haislet, tournament director of Minneapolis' Golden Gloves and Gopher boxing coach; Ralph Piper, gymnastic tutor, and David Bartelma, wrestling coach.

Al Couppee, quarter back on the last three University of Iowa football teams, including the Iron Men of 1940, made his Golden Gloves debut in one of the heavyweight bouts. Altho he was floored a number of times and ultimately lost the decision to Ray Lovelace of Evansville, Ind., the Hawkeye, who was representing the Moline [Ill.] Dispatch, displayed the same fortitude in coming back as he did in his gridiron career.

Among the football gents outside the ring last night was Bob Sweiger, full back on Minnesota's Gophers these last three years. Bob enlisted yesterday at Great Lakes. He will report in June, along with his teammates, Bruce Smith, the great Gopher back, and Tackle Urban Odson, when the three complete their studies.

Pete Mead, Grand Rapids Press welterweight, did everything expected of him when he sent Ralph Thornton of Burlington, Ia., Hawkeye Gazette to the canvas for the count in the first round in last night's fighting in the Stadium. Mead came to town stoutly backed by Wesley Ramey, world lightweight contender of a few years ago, and John C. Miller, member of the Michigan athletic commission.

CLASSIC BOWLERS ROLL TONIGHT ON FAETZ ALLEYS

The Schlitz bowlers, who hold a two game lead, will encounter Blatz, while runnerup Pabsts will meet the Washington Shirts in tonight's Classic Bowling league matches at the Faetz & Son recreation, 5961 Ridge avenue. Monarch Beer meets National and Koenig Brau encounters Ambrosia in the other matches. . . . In the Samuelson Major, the teams will line up as follows tonight:

Wallace Coals vs. Universal Musics; Mee & Ramme vs. Michelob; Waggoner No. 12 vs. Fritzi Scheffs; Goldammer Kids vs. Budweisers.

Entries in two important tournaments close Sunday. One is the 12th annual Craftsmen national event, which is limited to Masons, and is to open at Gold Coast March 14. Mat Luecker, 1738 Addison street, is taking entries. The other is Samuelson's Century of Progress women's handicap tournament. Signe Walz, Samuelson's Arcade, is secretary.

Isbell Denies He Has Sought Post at Purdue

Manitowoc, Wis., Feb. 24 [Special].—Cecil Isbell, former Purdue university football star and for the last four seasons a member of the Green Bay Packers, tonight denied reports from Layfayette, Ind., that he has applied for the head coaching position at Purdue. "I naturally would be interested in the job, but I haven't applied for it and haven't been approached by any one connected directly or indirectly with the university," Isbell said.

engagements of the evening. His adversary was a strong, rangy lad from Indianapolis named Willard Reed. Reed was getting something the best of the boxing, but Hood pounded away steadily with body blows. Gradually these tremendous punches wore down the Indianapolis fighter. By the late stages of the third round Hood had him softened up. Then he knocked him out with a stunning right to the jaw.

Charles Crump in the light heavyweight and Thomas James in the welterweight classes complete the list of Chicago survivors. Both exhibited clever boxing in winning decisions.

Four Have Six Survivors.

After Minneapolis and Cleveland, with their eight fighters still in the running, came four cities with six survivors each. These were Kansas City, Fort Worth, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Richmond, Ind. In addition to Chicago, five teams still have five men in the tournament. These are St. Louis, Des Moines, Danville, Ill., and Fort Smith, Ark.

FOOTBALL FAILS TO PAY ITS WAY SO N. Y. U. DROPS IT

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—New York university, the school with the nation's largest student body, tonight dropped football as an intercollegiate sport.

The university council, the school's governing body, reached the decision to abandon the sport after being informed that the institution's last two football teams had been maintained at a loss of $65,000.

The council's statement gave no indication if the change was to be permanent or only for the duration of the war. Its action immediately abrogated the contract of Head Coach Dr. Mal Stevens, which ran until 1946 at an estimated salary of $10,000 annually.

SUB-CONSCIOUS, THERE'S A WORD TO FIT OUR CUBS

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 24.—Life at the Cub training base here was full of war consciousness today as a result of last night's submarine activities up the Pacific ocean a little piece from the baseball practice field. Reports from Santa Barbara said the sub which last night shelled the coast there headed this way. Ahem!

General Manager Jim Gallagher, who is said to be responsible for the presence of the Cubs out here in the Pacific under present conditions, is calm thru it all. He was concentrating on the actual signing of Peanuts Lowrey, rookie outfielder who arrived on the 10:30 o'clock plane. Gallagher met Lowrey at the airport and rushed him right to the field to get him into one of those famous baby blue costumes.

Lewis to the Rescue!

There were reasons to believe that important people took seriously the reports of the sub heading this way but details of operations visible from Avalon are censorable, of course.

Only ex-navy man in the Cub party of 67 is traveling secretary Bob Lewis. Without even one of the absorbent type water taxis such as the Cubs used to get over here before one of the little fleet foundered with Cub mail, Mr. Lewis engaged an auto and drove furiously up and down the waterfront. Unhappily there was nothing the fellow could do but his willingness was one of the stirring events of the day.

Today Will Be Different.

This was the next to last day for sheer exercise under Manager Jim Wilson's training program. Tomorrow the lads will run and toss for only an hour and Thursday batting practice and slightly harder tossing by the pitchers will begin. By the end of the week it should be possible to tell one Cub from another in the matter of potential talent. So far they all have been masked marvels, if we may borrow a term from our wrestling brethren.

Motisi Ready for Battle with Zivic

Tony Motisi, former Catholic Youth organization welterweight champion, has reached peak condition for a 10 round bout with Fritzie Zivic, former 147 pound champion, in the Coliseum Friday. Paddy Kane, trainer of Motisi, made that assertion yesterday after Tony had sparred five rounds in CYO center gymnasium; three with Barney Burnett and two with Melvin Johnson. As a result, Motisi will cut his sparring drill to two rounds today and will take a complete rest tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Zivic went three rounds with Harry Teaney, Cleveland lightweight, in Trafton's gymnasium yesterday afternoon. Observers said he appeared in top form. Teaney is matched to meet Marcellina [K. O.] Borrado of Louisville in a 10 round secondary feature on the Coliseum card.

WAY IS OPENED FOR 100 SLIPS AT DIVERSEY HARBOR

George T. Donoghue, park district general superintendent, said the work is expected to cost approximately $50,000. He said it is needed because of the recent increase in requests for moorings and slips.

The bulkhead and slips will be constructed along the west side of the harbor between Fullerton avenue and Diversey parkway, the site of the old Diversey beach.

Discuss Plans for Hale America Golf Tourney

The importance of the Hale American Open golf tournament, which the United States and Chicago District Golf associations will coöperate in conducting at the Ridgemoor Country club June 18, 19, 20, and 21 was given new impetus here yesterday at a meeting of all leading officials of the game in the La Salle hotel. The meeting, which lasted most of the day, was a closed session.

Among those attending were George W. Blossom Jr., president of the USGA; Ed Dudley of Augusta, Ga., national president of the Professional Golfers' Association of America, and Thomas G. McMahon, president of the CDGA. Others included Fred J. Corcoran, tournament manager of the PGA, who came on from New Orleans; Joseph C. Dey Jr., executive secretary of the USGA, who arrived from New York Monday, and Jimmy Hines of Lakeville, N. Y., PGA tournament chairman.

The USGA, Dey said, will coöperate fully with the CDGA in the conduct of the tournament, beginning with the district trials, 36 hole tests which have been definitely set for May 25. Survivors of these rounds will enter a sectional, or semi-final round of 54 holes, to be decided on any two days of the period including June 5, 6, and 7. The leaders of these then will advance to the tournament proper at Ridgemoor, which tentatively has been set up on the pattern of 18 holes a day for four days.

A novice open badminton tournament, conducted under the auspices of the Hale America program, will be held in the Chicago area during April, it was announced yesterday by William Steinmetz, chairman of the tournament committee. FOOD GULPING SAID TO CAUSE GUM DISEASES

Dentists Told Americans Don't Eat Properly.

Much of the trouble young persons encounter thru diseases of gums is traceable to the American habit of bolting sandwiches and washing them down with soft drinks, according to Dr. Willa Yretsky, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

Correction by Education.

"This situation can be corrected only by education," she continued. "It exists now because of indolence on the part of all those persons who should be correcting it.

"The dentist thinks it the duty of the physician and the physician feels he should interfere only when the patient is ill. He isn't likely to see him when he is well. They both leave it to the nutritionist and the educator ignores it, except for a brief chapter in hygiene books.

"Many young people associate vitamins with medicine because vitamins offer no pleasure to any of his senses. They should be taught from an early age that a variety of food offers keen pleasure both to the palate and the intellect and that sufficient time should be taken to enjoy it. Then a long step would have been taken away from diseases caused by nutritional disturbances."

Sugar Causes Decay.

Among papers read yesterday was one by Dr. Leonard S. Fosdick, in charge of research at the Northwestern university school of dentistry. His studies have shown, he said, concentrated sugar is the chief cause of tooth decay. Of the various sugar forms glucose [refined cane sugar] and fructose are the most dangerous—the decalcification process starting within 15 minutes after they are eaten. Lactose [milk sugar] is least harmful, said Dr. Fosdick.

More than 6,500 dentists and doctors are attending the midwinter meeting, which is dentistry's largest annual scientific conference.

OPEN HEARINGS TOMORROW ON TRANSIT MERGER

The Illinois Commerce commission yesterday ordered hearings to start tomorrow on the proposed merger of the Chicago Surface Lines and the elevated lines which was tentatively approved last week by Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe, who has jurisdiction over the transit lines.

The commission announced the question of the value of the transit properties will be a primary subject for consideration at the hearings.

Under federal bankruptcy laws the elevated system is required to obtain preliminary approval of the plan by the commission before final action by the federal court. The merger proposal contemplates valuation of $179,348,000 for the properties of the combined surface and elevated systems.

Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in Circuit court yesterday granted attorneys for the commission 10 days to reply to the elevated lines' suit seeking immediate increases of "L" fares. Another hearing was set for March 6.

ABORTION CASE DELAYED; LEADER SOUGHT IN WEST

Charges of conspiracy to commit abortion against 10 persons arrested in a roundup over the week-end were continued by Judge Charles Dougherty in Felony court yesterday while west coast police sought Max Gecht, alleged former leader of the group.

Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Papanek said indictments against Dr. Gecht and two other defendants, Dr. S. G. Seinfeld, a physician, and Miss Catherine Heideman, a nurse, would be sought before the grand jury within the next few weeks. Eight other defendants are expected to turn state's witnesses, Papanek said.

The court set March 27 as the hearing date for Dr. Seinfeld and Miss Heideman, and May 8 for the other defendants.

A young woman found strangled last Aug. 21 near the Lunt avenue station of the North Western railroad was identified yesterday thru a photograph and description in the FBI Law Enforcement bulletin as Helen Manthey, alias Yarnatowski, a former tavern owner in Appleton and Medina, Wis.

Identification was made by Chief of Police Herbert Kapp of Appleton, who telephoned Chicago authorities. According to Kapp, two Appleton residents had identified her thru the published photograph and because of a corresponding scar and a mole.

Y., third vice president of the Paper Makers' union. Previous identifications of the woman have proved faulty. Fifteen hundred persons viewed the body.

CITY-WIDE SIREN SYSTEM IS READY IF RAIDERS COME

Police and Fire Equipment to Sound Alarm.

A city-wide siren system to warn Chicagoans of enemy air raids is now ready to operate on a moment's notice, it was announced yesterday by Ralph Burke, deputy coördinator in charge of protective service of civilian defense in the metropolitan area. Burke emphasized two points for every citizen:

1. Siren warnings will be given for two minute periods in a fluctuating or warbling pitch.
2. All-clear siren signals will be given also for two minute periods, but in a steady pitch.

How City Is Covered.

Every section of the city will be within sound of siren warnings under the plan worked out. Fire and police sirens will be used, with the fire sirens doing the bulk of the work.

The moment hostile aircraft are sighted all fire trucks will move out in front of their stations and sound their sirens. In this manner, 80 per cent of the city will be within sound of the alarm. To cover the remaining 20 per cent, police squad cars will travel over prearranged routes and sound their sirens.

System Saves Money.

By utilizing police and fire siren systems, the city abandoned a proposal to construct an elaborate signal system and as a result saved considerable money.

Special warning signals are now being worked out for theaters, churches, schools, museums, and other places where the public will require special handling. Plans for industry also are being formulated.

CAR DEATH PROBE IS CLOSED; BLAME BLOWOUT OF TIRE

Prusinski said evidence at the inquest showed that a rear tire had blown. Mrs. Rose Burianek, who was suing for a divorce, told her story to Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 122 persons had been killed in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 96 died in Chicago, where 3,116 were injured during the same period.

MRS. BELL HICKS, PAINTER, IS DEAD IN WARRENVILLE

BOY, 13, BATTLES A BURGLAR, BUT IS KNOCKED OUT

Donald T. Morrison Jr., 13 years old, son of a city real estate appraiser, proved himself quite a hero early today, even tho he was knocked out. What young Donald, who weighs 110 pounds, did was to battle single handed a Negro burglar in his home at 6230 Kenmore avenue.

The boy heard the thief in an adjoining bedroom. His father was out at the time and his mother is in Florida. He confronted the intruder with a revolver and ordered him out.

The Negro stood ground, so Donald hit him with the gun. Then the two fought until Donald was knocked unconscious. The thief fled with $100 worth of loot. Donald gravely told police he would have shot the burglar—except he knew his gun wasn't loaded.

DOUBTS GAS USE CURB WILL CUT PEOPLES' SALES

Chicago Supply to Rise—Ranney.

Increased demands for gas may more than offset any reductions which the new government restrictions will cause in sales to other types of gas users, stockholders of Peoples Gas Light and Coke company were told yesterday at their annual meeting.

George A. Ranney.

In a statement read to the shareholders by George F. Mitchell, president of the company, George A. Ranney, chairman, discussed the War Production board's order of Feb. 15 regulating consumption of natural and mixed gas. He also announced that an additional supply of gas soon will be available to the Chicago area. Ranney was absent from the meeting because of illness.

"The WPB order, issued to assure adequate supplies of gas fuel for war production and maximum use of existing supply facilities, is farreaching and probably is but a foretaste of what the immediate future holds for this business," Ranney's statement said.

Present Customers Not Curbed.

"Some of the limitations become effective only if shortages occur or become imminent in any area, but other limitations in the order become effective March 1. The latter, however, do not restrict use of gas by residential customers, present or prospective, for cooking, water heating, or refrigeration.

"As to space heating, there is no restriction applicable to customers now using gas for this purpose or who may become eligible for such service before March 1. The attachment of nonessential business after Feb. 26 is subject to approval of the War Production board."

Asserting difficulties in complying with the order will be encountered, but will not be "insurmountable," Ranney added:

"This order is not expected to have an adverse effect on the total deliveries of gas by the company. New business will be curtailed in the domestic and commercial groups of customers—by the operation of this order and of others that limit manufacture and sale of gas appliances—but the increased industrial demands may more than offset any decrease that arises from the freezing of uses of gas by other customers."

New Line Nearly Completed.

Ranney said Natural Gas Pipeline Company of America, from which Peoples buys natural gas and in which it owns a 21 per cent stock interest, has completed all but a few miles of the 402 mile addition to its Texas to Illinois pipe line facilities on which work has been in progress for more than a year.

"Completion of this partial looping program will make available to the Chicago district an increased supply of upwards of 30 million cubic feet of natural gas per day," the statement said. "While the demands of war industries for gas have increased, the company does not anticipate any demands that it cannot meet."

The cost of natural gas to Peoples Gas will be reduced, Ranney said, if the Federal Power commission wins in a pending court case in which the FPC seeks to force Natural Gas Pipeline to cut rates by $3,750,000 a year.

Discusses Rate Case.

"If the pipe line company's rates are reduced, the full reduction will not apply to the Peoples company," Ranney observed. "Of the amount involved—$3,750,000 a year—about 65 per cent or $2,500,000 might directly affect the cost of gas distributed by Peoples company to its customers in Chicago. The rest would accrue to other utilities. It is possible that some portion of the reduction in cost would be passed on to certain groups of our customers. If passed on in its entirety to ultimate consumers, the reduction would be spread over so many different individuals and companies that it would benefit any one of them in only a comparatively small way."

He said the Peoples company's next bond maturity—$340,000 of 6s of 1943—will be paid from current cash and that the next maturity, consisting of $5,214,000 of Ogden Gas company 5s due in 1945, "in all probability will be substantially or entirely paid off without refunding"

The stockholders reëlected all of the seven directors.

SANTA FE ROAD VOTES PURCHASE OF 30 ENGINES

A 10 million dollar equipment purchase program was authorized yesterday by directors of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe railway, largely to expand the road's motive power facilities. The equipment is scheduled for delivery in 1943.

E. J. Engel, president, said the carrier will spend approximately 10 million dollars for 10 5,400 horse power Diesel electric freight locomotives from the Electro-Motive corporation, La Grange, Ill.; 20 steam locomotives from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and 100 flat cars which will be ordered later.

Lend-Lease Volume Tripled Since Attack on Pearl Harbor

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—The rate of lend-lease aid to the other united nations has tripled since the Japanese attack Dec. 7 on Pearl Harbor, it was disclosed today in an official report.

Edward R. Stettinius Jr., lend-lease administrator, said in testimony made public by the senate appropriations committee that during the first 8½ months of the program such aid averaged approximately 141 million dollars a month, compared with 338 millions in December and 462 millions in January.

He also disclosed that the air ferrying service across the Atlantic to the middle east, created last summer and operated with lend-lease funds, had been extended "so that the bombers for our fighting forces, as well as those of our allies, can be flown by that route to the fighting areas of the southern Pacific."

African Protection Described.

He said lend-lease aid to the Free French and the Free Belgians contributes to protection of the route across Africa. He added that bases in Scotland and Northern Ireland, built with lend-lease funds, are available for American troops in that part of the world.

Stettinius reported that from March to the end of November lend-lease aid totaled 1 billion 202 million dollars, and by the end of January had reached more than 2 billions and still was climbing at an accelerated pace.

"This increase must and will continue," Stettinius said in asking that 5 billion 330 million dollars in direct lend-lease funds voted by the house, plus an additional 95 millions, be incorporated in the pending $32,762,737,900 supplemental defense appropriation.

Seeks to Link Free Peoples.

The program was designed to "bind together into a united whole all the free peoples of the world—fighting or not—who are resisting the axis aggression," Stettinius said.

He said the requested new appropriation was to meet lend-lease requirements for the remainder of 1942, exclusive of military and naval material which would be provided for in the army and navy appropriations.

He said virtually all of 12 billion 985 million dollars previously appropriated for lend-lease had been allocated for procurement.

Ask Stronger Guarding of Arms Plants

Arms manufacturers were cautioned yesterday by military and other government agencies to intensify measures to safeguard their plants against sabotage and plain carelessness. Methods of efficient plant protection were described at the war emergency conference in the Hotel Sherman conducted by the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Commander F. M. McWhirter, security officer for the 9th naval district, told 750 representatives of arms plants that internal security is essential to war production. He warned, however, that the middle west is not invulnerable to enemy attacks.

Declares Attack Possible.

Declaring that 75 per cent of the iron ore used by the steel industry passes thru the Sault Ste. Marie locks between Lakes Superior and Huron, he suggested that enemy hydroplanes refueled from secret basis in sparsely settled James bay in Canada could bomb the locks and cripple steel production.

He said that the 13 states of the 9th naval district account for about 42 per cent of the nation's total productive capacity and would be objects of enemy sabotage, if not direct attack.

Brig. Gen. W. E. Guthner, liaison officer to industry for the 6th army corps, declared that despite the dramatic effect of the submarine attack on the California coast, a "one-man submarine in your factory" can do more damage. He warned against "poor housekeeping" in arms plants which permits the accumulation of combustible waste materials.

Other Safeguards Urged.

A. H. Johnson, special agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation at Chicago urged careful selection of guards and other precautions.

Capt. J. T. Fish of the Chicago procurement office of the army chemical warfare service warned that accelerated military production increases the susceptibility of plants to fires and other hazards.

Maj. Leo E. Steiner of the Chicago procurement district of the army signal corps urged adequate floodlighting, segregation of inflammable materials, fencing, placing of electric wiring in conduit, and extraordinary guarding of electrical equipment and heating plants.

Maj. A. B. Pattou of the Chicago ordnance district plant protection division reminded the manufacturers that aged guards lack the necessary alertness and stamina and young watchmen are likely to be nervous in a crisis. He urged selection of healthy, intelligent, and mature guards for plant protection.

WPB Slashes Civilian Use of Wool Further

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—Sweeping reductions in the use of high grade new wool for civilian clothing were ordered today by the War Production board because of soaring military demands and some experts predicted that "all wool" labels might disappear from suits and dresses by the end of this year.

The board reduced its wool allocations for civilian orders during the next quarter [April, May, and June] to 20 per cent of the amount used for worsted cloth during the comparable period last year and 10 per cent of the amount used for woolens.

Carpet Wool Cut 75 per Cent.

The amount of carpet wool was reduced to one-quarter of the amount consumed by rug manufacturers during the second quarter of 1941.

War developments in the western Pacific vitally affecting this country's Australian wool supply, together with increasingly heavy demands of the armed forces for uniforms, made the sharp reductions necessary, officials said. They estimated that the allocation amounted to about 22 million pounds of high grade wool for the three months—or an annual rate of 88 million pounds, compared with total civilian and military consumption last year of about 800 million pounds.

Mohair Supply Larger.

However, the WPB announced that additional supplies of mohair and low grade wools, unsuitable for military use, would be made available to the industry. With this additional supply manufacturers will have about 60 million pounds of mixed grade wool and mohair available for the quarter.

Hinting at the eventual end of all-wool clothing, R. R. Guthrie, WPB textile chief, said an order would be issued soon requiring clothing manufacturers to blend substitute fibers—such as cotton and rayon—with new wool for civilian use.

Total subscriptions received were $4,696,698,550, and total allotments were $1,512,334,200.

U. S. TO FURNISH 90,000 HOMES AT ARMS PLANTS

Chicago Will Be Hub of Vast Project.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Furniture for 90,000 homes for workers in arms plant centers will be bought by the government at a cost of 36 million dollars in 1942, and 100 millions more will be spent in 1943. Chicago will be the headquarters for the buying for all parts of the nation.

This was disclosed last night by Col. Lawrence H. Whiting, who has been placed in charge of the program for 15 government housing agencies and for the army and navy. He has begun combing the country for furniture manufacturers who can fill the orders quickly.

Whiting, who is president of the American Furniture Mart Building company, Inc., informed the company's stockholders at their annual meeting yesterday that he had been asked to direct the program.

Early Delivery Necessary.

Speed is essential in the undertaking, and some of the orders will have to be filled within two weeks to two months, he said. Disclosing at the same time that the navy had ordered substitution of wood for steel in manufacture of lockers and other equipment, Whiting said contracts already are flowing out to woodworking plants that in recent years had had lean times.

In Indiana, where woodworking plants made 90 per cent of the once popular wooden kitchen cabinets before switching largely to metal, the woodworking departments will be booming again, he predicted. Some plants have started work on the new navy orders.

What the housing agencies, army, and navy want will be shown at exhibits which are being set up for the government in the American Furniture Mart.

Many of Homes Completed.

Whiting said that of the 90,000 houses to be built for the government this year 48,000 are completed or are under construction. He would not discuss what the construction program might hold for Chicago, but he said:

"Chicago will become the center of the defense house furnishing effort."

The expenditure for furniture and furnishings is to be $400 per house. Much of the equipment will be of a smaller size than standard, because many of the houses will be small. Desks that ordinarily would be 36 inches long may be cut to 24. Beds, whether of the twin, double, or double decker type, will in many cases be narrower than the standard. This will create an adjustment problem for the industry.

Some difficulty in finding enough experienced woodworkers immediately is expected, Whiting asserted, but he said men can be trained for such work in 90 days.

Returns Here to Direct Work.

Whiting, who as consultant to the secretary of war has been in Washington working on the reorganization of the personnel system of the army, has returned to Chicago to direct the task of organizing the furniture manufacturers and preparing the exhibits. The furniture will be purchased thru and serviced by local retail dealers of the community involved, he said.

At the meeting of the American Furniture Mart stockholders, the directors were reëlected and Gordon M. Robinson, vice president of the company, was elected to the board to fill a vacancy.

Ernest Breech Named Bendix Aviation Head

Ernest R. Breech was elected president of the Bendix Aviation corporation yesterday, his 45th birthday. Vincent Bendix, president of the company for many years, became chairman of the board.

Ernest R. Breech.

The shifts in executive personnel, announced in New York City after a meeting of directors, were made, it was said, "because of the tremendous obligations the corporation has assumed and will continue to assume in connection with the war production program."

Leaves General Motors Post.

To accept the post, Breech resigned as a vice president of the General Motors corporation, with which he has been associated for several years, and left his post as a member of the General Motors executive committee. He has been a director of Bendix Aviation and a member of its executive and finance committees for four years.

This background in automotive and aviation activities, and his chairmanship of North American Aviation, Inc., make Breech "particularly qualified" for the Bendix presidency, the directors announced. General Motors holds a substantial stock interest in Bendix Aviation, producer of a wide variety of automotive, aviation, and marine instruments and parts. North American Aviation is an affiliate of General Motors.

Plants Working for War.

Twenty Bendix Aviation plants thruout the country, including major operations in South Bend, Ind., are devoted almost exclusively to war work.

Breech said the corporation's sales of 42 million dollars in 1939 grew to more than 156 millions last year and that this year's production, scheduled to approximate 500 million dollars, should mount to more than a billion dollars in 1943.

Employment has reached 40,000, quadrupling the 1939 rate, and should reach 65,000 or 70,000 by next year, he said. The corporation, he added, already has 300 subcontractors and will increasingly stress the placing of business with other companies.

Manistee, Mich., Plant Will Move to Chicago

The Margin Rubber Company, Inc., maker of gaskets and packings for steam valves and turbines, and gaskets for motors, now in Manistee, Mich., will move its plant to Chicago on March 1. Its personnel of 25 will be doubled. The new location is in the five story building at 112-114 West Kinzie street. William H. Suchier & Co. leased the property for Frank Cuneo to the rubber concern.

WPB WILL DENY MOST NEW RADIO STATIONS AID THRU PRIORITIES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—Priorities aid will be denied to construction of any new standard broadcast station in any area which is now completely or substantially covered by primary service from one or more existing stations, War Production Director Donald M. Nelson ruled today.

Curbs will be applied not only to new construction of broadcast facilities but to alteration in the transmitting facilities of present stations.

The plan, drafted by the defense communications board, will guide WPB in ruling on future applications for priority assistance in getting critical materials for station building.

It will be applied, Nelson said, even to stations which already have received authorization for construction or alterations.

FARM AGENCIES MERGED FOR WAR BY F. D. R. ORDER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—President Roosevelt today issued an executive order merging various agricultural agencies for the duration of the war and six months thereafter. He said the move, first announced last December, was to "further the successful prosecution of the war and the better utilization of agricultural resources and industries."

The Surplus Marketing administration, Federal Surplus Commodities corporation, Agricultural Marketing service, and Commodity Exchange administration were consolidated into the Agricultural Marketing administration of the department of agriculture. The agricultural statistics division was merged with the bureau of agricultural economics.

The Agricultural Adjustment administration, Soil Conservation service, Federal Crop Insurance corporation, and the sugar division were consolidated into a new agency to be known as the Agricultural Conservation and Adjustment administration. The Agricultural Research administration was set up to include the bureaus of animal husbandry, dairy industry, plant quarantine, home economics, and others.

Chrysler Gets Banking Credit of 100 Millions

New York, Feb. 24 [Special].—Chrysler corporation has negotiated a revolving credit arrangement, estimated in banking circles to aggregate at least 100 million dollars, over a five year period. More than 175 commercial banks with which the company ordinarily does business will participate.

The deal was described as the largest credit arrangement of its kind in recent years.

Terms of Credit Learned.

The corporation itself refused to make public the actual amount involved, but it was learned in the financial district that the terms of the credit include a commission of ½ of 1 per cent to the participating banks. Interest at the rate of 1¾ per cent per year will be paid by Chrysler during the first three years of the arrangement on the amounts actually borrowed under it.

During the final two years, the banks will receive either the current 1¾ per cent interest or an interest rate ¼ of 1 per cent in excess of the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve bank at the time. The rediscount rate at present is 1 per cent. The second option available to the banks is to protect them if money rates rise three to five years from now.

Others Have Big Credits.

The Chrysler credit was regarded as an instance of increasing opportunities for the employment of bank funds in national defense activities.

Other industrial corporations have had similar revolving credit arrangements in the past and also in effect at present. Several have been of even larger amounts than the figure reported for the Chrysler credit.

War Labor Board Opens Its Hearings to the Public

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 [Special].—Reversing a previous policy which confined hearings to executive sessions and discouraged public comment on pending cases, the National War Labor board announced today that future hearings before the full board would be open to the public.

INDUSTRY SHIFT TO WAR OUTPUT FAR ADVANCED

Full Production Set for Late Fall.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 [Special].—American industry will be converted to full war production by late fall, J. S. Knowlson, director of the War Production board's division of industry operations, said tonight. He said that by Sept. 1 automobile plants will be turning out war materials at full speed.

At a press conference, Knowlson revealed that the government does not contemplate a complete "blackout" of consumer goods production, but is studying plans for limited production of "victory models" of refrigerators, radios, typewriters, vacuum cleaners, and similar products, when current stocks of such articles are exhausted. He estimated that most "stock piles" of products on which manufacture has been ordered suspended are sufficient to last for two years.

Warns of Business Disruption.

Knowlson said manufacturing plants probably would come thru the war program in good condition, but he spoke solemnly of the disruption which will occur in business as "a civilian economy of plenty" is forced to give way to one of scarcity under the restrictive demands of the emergency program.

"There are two 'fronts' in this war, the fighting front and the industrial front, and there are going to be casualties on both," he said. "It is not pleasant to contemplate the immediate future of the sales forces and of the agencies which handle the distribution of such things as refrigerators, radios, vacuum cleaners, and other consumer goods, but it just isn't possible to make this transition from civilian to war production a comfortable proposition."

Work for Older Men.

He predicted, however, that most of the older men in civilian goods sales forces will be in demand for production jobs to replace younger men drawn into the armed services.

Answering criticism concerning delays in the conversion program, Knowlson said that few persons realized the extent to which conversion actually had been accomplished in most industries, even without solicitation by the government.

"Many manufacturers realize that the days when they can produce peace-time goods are rapidly drawing to a close," he said, "and they have taken the initiative in finding war work with which to occupy their machines."

A major problem of the conversion division at present, he said, is to determine what proportion of an industry's peacetime production should be maintained to prevent a breakdown of the civilian economy. A survey, now under way, is expected to provide the answer.

INCOME TAX LOANS
Pay by the Month

You may borrow all or a part of the amount you will need to pay the first instalment of your Federal income tax (due March 16, 1942).

Whatever amount is borrowed — all or a part — will be turned over to you and you may pay the Collector of Internal Revenue yourself any way you please — in cash, by check, or otherwise.

And then, each month for the next three months you set aside with us one-third of what you have borrowed — including the cost — to pay your loan.

Use the same plan to meet the instalments due in June, September, and December if you like. In this way you may spread the load of your 1941 income tax over twelve months in monthly instalments.

BROAD RECOVERY LIFTS PRICES OF STOCKS A LITTLE

Gloomy War News Keeps Advances Small.

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—The stock market put on a fairly broad recovery today, but the upswing was far from unanimous.

Effect of the confident tone of the President's broadcast was partly offset by continued cloudy war news. Stumbling blocks included the submarine shelling of the California coast, persistent axis U-boat activities in the Atlantic and Caribbean and the gloomier outlook for the defense of Burma and Java.

Steels, motors, and specialties led the forward push at the start in fairly lively dealings. The pace soon slowed to a crawl and many initial gains running to a point or so were reduced at the close. Closing gains numbered 314, declines 179, and there were 176 issues finishing unchanged.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks clung to a net advance of .2 of a point at 36.8. Transfers of 394,860 shares compared with 326,406 last Friday.

SELL UTILITY BLOCK.

New York, Feb. 24 [Special].—Facilities of the New York Stock exchange again were employed successfully today to dispose of securities at a fixed price, under special arrangements instituted recently. Within one hour and five minutes after the offering was posted on the ticker, 630 shares of 8 per cent preferred stock of the Public Service company of New Jersey were sold at $117 a share, with a commission of $2 allowed brokers who found the customers.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Altho gains outnumbered losses, stocks lacked a decisive trend on the Chicago exchange yesterday. Borg-Warner reached a new 1941-'42 high at 23½, showing a gain of a full point over last Saturday's final price. Northwest Airlines advanced ½ and fractional losses were shown by Commonwealth Edison, Consolidated Oil, Noblitt-Sparks, and Merchants and Manufacturers Securities. Of the 92 issues involved in transactions totaling 17,000 shares, 43 closed higher, 31 lower, and 18 unchanged.

REVERE COPPER CLEARS ARREARS ON 5¼% SHARES

Directors of Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., yesterday ordered four dividends totaling $5.25 on the 5¼ preferred stock, clearing up arrearages on the issue. Dividends totaling $7 were declared on the 7 per cent preferred stock, reducing accumulations on the issue to $33.25. Quarterly dividends of $1.31¼ on the 5¼ per cent preferred, and $1.75 on the 7 per cent were also authorized.

The New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange yesterday ordered liquidation of all outstanding world sugar future contracts at 2.65 cents a pound. The action followed last Friday's order for liquidation of outstanding domestic contracts. The orders were necessitated by British and United States contracts covering the rest of the 1941 Cuban sugar crop. The United States Defense Supplies corporation has contracted for the 1942 Cuban crop.

Commodities moved little yesterday in quiet trading sessions. Cotton futures gained 15 to 40 cents a bale. Cocoa was unchanged to .03 cent a pound lower. Wool tops were mixed.

FARM BLOC FIGHT MAY ADD BILLION TO LIVING COSTS

Senators Battle to Keep Surpluses Off Market.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24 (AP).—Farm bloc senators pressed their fight today to forbid sales of government crop surpluses below parity prices, altho Sen. Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.] forecast that such action would add 1 billion dollars a year to the cost of living.

Debate over the proposal, which was given right of way on the senate floor last week, held up action on a pending $32,762,737,900 defense appropriation bill. Proponents of the price legislation had planned to offer it as an amendment to the appropriation bill, but abandoned this strategy for the time being in favor of an independent measure.

Senators John H. Bankhead [D., Ala.], Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.], and Elmer Thomas [D., Okla.] described the proposed bill as an effort to give farmers equal treatment with industrialists and laborers, who they said are profiting from the war.

Ask "Chance at a Profit."

"The farmers of this country don't want a dole," Gillette said. "The farmer is not asking a premium or any unfair relationship. All he wants is a chance to do business in the American way with some slight chance at a profit."

Brown argued that when government farm benefit payments are taken into consideration, farmers are receiving near parity or higher prices for corn, wheat, and cotton, while the average of all farm prices is 102 per cent of parity without taking benefits into account.

[Parity prices are those corresponding to the level of 1909 to 1914 as compared with prices of nonfarm commodities.]

Brown proposed that the legislation be revised so that the Commodity Credit corporation could sell government held commodities whenever the market price, plus current benefit payments, would equal parity or higher. Gillette replied that such an amendment would be impossible of administration.

170 Million Loss on Loans.

"I am reliably informed by the department of agriculture," Brown declared, "that the effect of the passage of this bill would be to raise the cost of living in the United States by approximately 1 billion dollars."

By making commodity loans at 85 per cent of parity in the past, he said, the CCC had suffered losses totaling 170 million dollars and now has a chance to recoup them by selling its holdings above the loan price.

Gillette charged that Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard had made "careless" public statements to the effect that the nation's food bill would increase enormously should farm prices exceed parity.

Wickard, he said, was restricted by administration policy. "I know he would not use his power unfairly if he were left free," said Gillette.

Discuss Farm Labor Shortage.

In the house, the agriculture committee heard testimony that the nation is facing the most serious farm labor shortage in its history because of the draft and the inroads of industry.

Coupled with a shortage of material for farm equipment and curtailed availability of fertilizer, witnesses said, this condition is making it difficult to meet the increased demands for food to feed the united nations.

M. Clifford Townsend, chief of the division of agricultural defense relations, told the committee only 83 per cent of the farm machinery needs for this year were obtainable and efforts to get higher allocations of metal for this purpose were unavailing.

The availability of fertilizer, much of which comes from South America, he said, depends largely on shipping conditions.

William Rogers, head of the labor section under Townsend, testified that while selective service has taken many boys off the farms, "the big drain" has been industry with its attractive wages.

TODD AND KAISER FIRMS DISSOLVE JOINT INTERESTS

New York, Feb. 24 [Special].—The affiliation of the Todd Shipyards corporation and the Associated Companies of Henry J. Kaiser, west coast industrialist and shipbuilder, has been dissolved by mutual consent, John D. Reilly, president of Todd, announced here today.

Kaiser is president of the Todd-California Shipbuilding corporation and also heads six other companies. The Todd and Kaiser interests joined forces late in 1940 when they signed contracts with the British purchasing commission to build 60 freighters.

"It is believed that by more intensive concentration in definite areas, the individual organizations can more effectively speed up construction programs of the maritime commission and the navy," Reilly said.

SETTLE RFC SUIT AGAINST ESTATE OF JOHN A. LYNCH

A stockholder's liability suit by the Reconstruction Finance company to collect $350,000 from the estate of the late John A. Lynch, former executive of the defunct Central Republic Bank and Trust company, has been settled for $262,500, RFC Attorney M. O. Hoel told Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday. The court approved the transaction.

The RFC obtained judgment for 15 million dollars against stockholders of the bank and already has collected more than 10 million. The money was applied on the unpaid part of a 90 million dollar RFC loan to the bank, which was made shortly before it closed in 1932.

SALES, PROFITS OF CONSUMERS COMPANY CLIMB

Supplying More Material for Defense Work.

Consumers company, operator of artificial ice plants, retail coalyards, gravel pits, and quarries in and around Chicago, yesterday reported an increase in earnings for the year ended Dec. 31.

Consolidated net income for 1941 was $282,799, not including $35,130 of profits on outstanding bonds reacquired during the year. In the preceding year profit was $29,239, exclusive of $29,624 of profit on reacquired bonds.

Net sales for 1941 totaled $16,091,000, an increase of about 9 per cent over the company's 1940 business.

Defense Business Rising.

Robert C. Fenner, president, said in a statement accompanying the report that in 1941 Consumers company began to supply materials in a more substantial volume than before for defense building.

"Since the turn of the year this demand has greatly increased," Fenner said.

First mortgage bonds with a par value of $163,730 were retired in 1941 by call and thru operation of the sinking fund. Fenner said $150,000 will be deposited in the fund on March 1 for purchase of additional bonds to be retired.

Discusses Idle Property.

The problem of idle property, carried at $1,565,000 in the balance sheet, was discussed by Fenner, who observed that the net carrying values of properties not used in operations might prove to be in excess of realizable values.

Remington Arms Company, Inc., reported a profit of $3,058,839, equal to 38 cents a share, for 1941, compared with $1,945,563, or 23 cents a share, in the preceding year. Net sales, at $62,627,282, were $39,600,000 larger than in 1940, largely because of military orders.

General Foods corporation announced that its profit in 1941 was $14,153,400, equal to $2.56 a common share, compared with $15,244,077, or $2.77 a share, in 1940. C. M. Chester, chairman, said that altho earnings declined, sales climbed to an all-time record at $180,358,903, from $152,188,335 in 1940.

OUTBOARD MOTORS.

I would appreciate a report on Outboard, Marine and Manufacturing, traded on the New York Stock exchange. I understand this is a comparatively new company. If possible, I would like its earning and dividend record since incorporation.—L. B. A.

Answer: Outboard, Marine and Manufacturing company, incorporated in 1936, is the largest manufacturer of outboard motors. The motors are sold under the trade names "Johnson," "Evinrude," and "Elto." Other products include drainage pumps, gasoline engines for household appliances, and commercial refrigerating units. The manufacture of household refrigerators was discontinued late last year and it was planned that the previously used plant capacity would be turned over to the manufacture of aircraft instruments and parts. Operating plants are in Waukegan and Galesburg, Ill., Milwaukee, Wis., and Peterborough, Canada.

The only capitalization is 297,144 shares of $5 par capital stock. Earnings for fiscal years ended Sept. 30 and dividends paid in calendar years follow:

	Net sales.	Net income.	Dividends.
1941......	$13,027,556	$1,519,129	$2.25
1940......	9,987,145	1,314,876	2.25
1939......	8,267,313	1,036,904	2.15
1938......	6,649,933	714,158	1.85
1937......	6,843,210	940,379	2.50

Net income in the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1941, was $23,453, compared with a loss of $175,935 in the corresponding 1940 period. A 50 cent dividend was paid Feb. 20 this year.

At the end of the 1941 fiscal year, total assets exceeded $7,500,000. Net working capital was $3,576,000.

DIVIDEND INFORMATION.

—R. K.

Answer: Corporations, unless tax exempt, are required by the commissioner of internal revenue to report the name and address of each shareholder to whom dividends or distributions amounting to $100 or more were paid during the calendar year. The amount paid also must be shown. This does not include liquidation dividends or distributions.

Elect Harold Mittelstadt Head of Wilson Brothers

Harold Mittelstadt was elected president of Wilson Brothers, Chicago manufacturer and distributor of men's wear, at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday, succeeding Charles G. Little, who was named chairman of the board. Mittelstadt formerly was vice president and general manager. Little told the stockholders that last year was the company's best since 1930, both in sales and profits, and said that current bookings for the spring season are substantially ahead of last year.

BREAKFAST FOOD SALES PUT WHITE CORN IN DEMAND

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

With Americans eating more breakfast cereals than ever before, grain men said yesterday they were experiencing an extraordinary demand for white corn. It is from this white grain that many of the highly advertised dry cereal products are made.

A car of No. 2 white corn sold yesterday for 99 cents a bushel, the highest price since 1937. It compares with a price of around 84 cents a bushel being paid for yellow corn of the same grade.

Distant Corn Cheaper.

Grain men revealed yesterday how high freight transfer rates in Chicago had thrown an extra burden on the railroads the last few days. When the Commodity Credit corporation refused to sell the processors corn late last week, the processing companies bought several hundred thousand bushels from dealers on the Board of Trade.

The corn was shipped from Milwaukee, Peoria, and other nearby markets into Chicago, altho elevators in the city are loaded to capacity with grain. However, to transfer this grain from one of the city's many elevators to the processing company plants, costs more than 3 cents per hundredweight. The freight rates from an outside market, according to grain men, are considerably cheaper.

Futures Trading Small.

On the Board of Trade, dealers awaited news that would bring speculative interest back into the markets. Turnover of futures contracts consisted mostly of a few exchanges between regular pit traders.

Wheat close ¼ cent lower with May at $1.29⅞ a bushel. Corn was down ¼ to ⅜ cent; oats, unchanged to ¼ cent lower; rye, ¼ to ⅜ cent higher, and soy beans, ¾ cent lower. Lard finished unchanged to 2½ cents per hundredweight higher.

After the close the department of agriculture announced prices at which it would buy or make loans on 1942 grown soy beans produced under the war food program. The purchase prices vary according to grade, quality, class, and oil content. The base prices included Nos. 1 and 2 of high oil content, $1.60 per bushel, and Nos. 3, 4, and 5 of high oil content, $1.50. Low oil content beans in each case would be 10 cents lower.

"America FIGHTS FOR PEACE!"

AMERICA has devoted her energies to the arts of peace—advanced education—improved public health—wrought miracles in mass production—developed the highest standards of living the world has known. But Pearl Harbor has changed this—for a time. Our day of peaceful pursuit yields to our day of necessity. When America knows she must fight to keep her heritage of peace and freedom—then America fights.

America will win because the heart of mankind is on our side. To all people everywhere, who share our ideals, America brings HOPE—a mounting tide of hope that gathers force to help us sweep aggressors from the earth. That hope is our trust. Every American citizen is a "soldier" for our common cause—our fight for peace.

Now is the time to "give"; now is the time to "sacrifice". Our heritage was born of hardship and of courage. That heritage shall be preserved, whatever the hardship—by the same courage. The sun of peace will rise again. Rise on a better world. We'll have to make it better, that peace may be permanent. To this fight—to the coming peace—America dedicates her all.

6 CHICAGO FIRMS PLEAD FOR SHARE OF WAR ORDERS

Say Idle Facilities Could Make Varied Items.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—Six Chicago companies protested before a senate subcommittee today that the government has shrugged its shoulders at their attempts to get into war production necessary for victory and necessary to keep their 3,000 employés off relief.

The Chicago group consisted of the Lion Manufacturing company, the Exhibit Supply company, the J. H. Keeney company, the Chicago Coin Machine company, the Genco company, and the D. Gottlieb company. Altho they classified themselves as small business men, they rated their civilian production capacity, with a five day week and an eight hour daily single shift, at 20 million dollars a year. They rated their unemployed war production capacity, with a 24 hour and a seven day week, at 100 million dollars a year.

Make Coin Machines.

In peacetime, these companies produce coin operated equipment including vending machines, parking meters, novelty games, phonograph controls, photoelectric cell target guns, and bowling alleys.

For wartime, their spokesman told the senators that they have the skill, the finances, and the equipment to make items direly needed by the armed forces. These include electrical relays, timing units, solenoids and electromagnets, photoelectric equipment, gun sights, electric spotlight trainers and signal equipment.

"The curtailment on our materials," said their spokesman, George M. Glassgold, "has reduced our peacetime production to 25 per cent of normal. And notwithstanding strenuous and consistent effort, we have been able to get no more than dribbles of war contracts.

"With no war production and with curtailed civilian production, our 400,000 square feet of factory space and our skilled staffs are not contributing to victory and may even become a burden. In one contact with the WPB here in Washington, I was told not to worry, that the government would take over the plants and the employés could go on relief.

Small Firms Ignored.

"I hope and believe that this isn't the policy of the government. But here is what we have found in six to 18 months of trying to do business with the government and for the government. The OPM [now incorporated in the WPB] was sympathetic but had no authority. The army and navy procurement officers, not wanting to expose themselves to any risk of criticism, prefer to buy from established suppliers. So small businesses don't participate in the war effort."

The subcommitte chairman, Sen. James H. Hughes [D., Del.], announced that on Thursday Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production board, and Jesse Jones, federal loan administrator, have been asked to testify.

Number of Bankruptcies Up in Week After Holiday

New York, Feb. 24 (AP).—Business failures in the week ended Feb. 19 rose to 239 from 210 in the preceding week, which had a holiday in it, Dun & Bradstreet reported today. In the comparable week in 1941 the number was 294.

Board of Trade Renames Kirkland Firm Its Counsel

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday reappointed the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green, Martin, and Ellis as general counsel for the ensuing year. The firm has been counsel for the grain exchange since 1932.

REPORT OF SOUTHERN PACIFIC RY. REFLECTS DIVERSION OF SHIPS

The extent to which railroads have benefited from the diversion of coastal ship cargoes to the steel highways was illustrated yesterday by the annual report of the Southern Pacific Lines.

The system's 1941 freight revenues were the highest in its history at $244,440,997, an increase of $55,227,848, or 29.19 per cent over the 1940 level, stockholders were informed by A. T. Mercier, president.

The road, freed from the competition of coastal and intercoastal shipping, in which the company itself was engaged until discontinuance of service at government request, carried 63,281,037 tons of revenue freight during the year, 30.93 per cent more than in 1940. Ships of the Southern Pacific and other operators were diverted to routes considered more essential in the war effort.

Volume of mineral products hauled over the system increased 52.85 per cent, a reflection of the increasing tempo of war production. Passenger revenues, augmented by military travel, rose 29.08 per cent to $31,596,317.

Last year's net income, as previously shown in a preliminary report, was equivalent to $9.21 a share, against $2.47 a share in 1940. Consolidated net income rose $27,427,317 to $34,573,666.

16 U. S. HOUSING BOARDS MERGED BY F. D. R. ORDER

Loan Agency Powers Shifted to Jones.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 24.—In his first exercise of the vast war powers voted him to streamline government organization in the interests of national defense, President Roosevelt today consolidated 16 federal housing agencies into one organization to be known as the National Housing administration.

At the same time the President abolished the Federal Loan agency and transferred all nonhousing units of this agency to the department of commerce, under Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones. Jones had been federal loan administrator since that unit was created almost three years ago under a reorganization program, designed to increase government efficiency.

Finances Under Jones.

Jones will lose the title of administrator, but continue to supervise such FLA units as the Reconstruction Finance corporation and the Export-Import bank. Mr. Roosevelt said the purpose of shifting these units to the department of commerce rather than the treasury was to make the commerce department more important.

John Blandford Jr., assistant director of the budget, was named administrator of the new unit. The way was paved to make Blandford housing boss by the resignation last week of Nathan Straus, housing authority administrator, whose feud with Charles F. Palmer, defense housing coördinator, had slowed up defense housing. Palmer will go to England to study wartime housing, the President announced.

Three Subdivisions.

The Public Housing authority, which will be an amalgamation of all the various agencies and personnel engaged in constructing housing with public money. Leon Keyserling, now the acting administrator of the United States Housing authority, which is being consolidated into this unit, will be acting commissioner of PHA.

The existing Federal Housing administration will continue under that name and will continue to insure mortgages placed on homes by banks and lending institutions. Abner Ferguson, now administrator, will become FHA commissioner.

The Federal Home Loan bank administration will include all the functions of the FHLB system and related institutions in connection with financing home ownership and construction. John Fahey, present chairman, will be commissioner of the FHLBA.

LIQUID CARBONIC TO BUY PLANTS IN OTHER CITIES

Preferred Stock Will Go on Market Today.

The Liquid Carbonic corporation of Chicago will expand thru the acquisition of plants in other cities when facilities can be financed advantageously, W. K. McIntosh, chairman, disclosed yesterday. He made the announcement after stockholders had approved the issuance of 30,000 shares of $100 par value preferred stock.

The additional stock will be offered publicly today thru underwriters at $102.50 a share. McIntosh said the corporation plans to use $700,000 of the proceeds in the reduction of bank loans and have the balance, $2,300,000 or more, available for investment in new plant facilities or addition to working capital.

Interest Rate 4½ Per Cent.

An amendment to the corporation's registration statement with the Securities and Exchange commission set the interest rate on the preferred at 4½ per cent. The underwriters are Laird, Bissell & Mead; Spencer, Trask & Co.; Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane; E. H. Rollins & Sons; Blair, Bonner & Co.; Farwell, Chapman & Co.; Lawrence M. Marks & Co., and Smith Barney & Co.

It was said that the acquisition of new plants was intended to augment the outlets for carbonic gas and other products of the corporation to cushion the effect of war restrictions on soda fountains and other Liquid Carbonic equipment.

Offer New York Issue.

Halsey, Stuart & Co. of Chicago and associated bankers are offering $3,065,000 City of Rochester, N. Y., 1.70 per cent various purpose bonds, due serially 1943 to 1952, at prices to yield 0.40 to 1.70 per cent, according to maturity.

There were no bidders yesterday for the offering of 62,000 shares of Atlantic City Electric company preferred stock. Four bidding groups organized earlier withdrew because of unfavorable market conditions.

Monsanto Chemical company about March 4 is expected to offer an additional 35,000 shares of $4 cumulative preferred stock thru Smith Barney & Co., to replace company funds spent on plant additions and improvements.

PRICES OF EGGS SINK AS GOVERNMENT CUTS ITS PURCHASING BIDS

Wholesale egg prices fell ¼ to ⅝ cent a dozen in Chicago yesterday as government buyers reduced their bids for less than carlot quantities of fresh graded firsts to 27 cents. Prices reached the lowest levels since mid-August. Federal purchasers have been instructed to support the market at 27½ cents for fresh graded firsts in carlots and at 27 cents for less than carlot quantities.

Much confusion had existed in trade quarters over the support levels. The wholesale egg dealers said the department of agriculture had announced on Feb. 10 that it would support wholesale prices in Chicago at or above 27½ cents for "the balance of the month."

The department's action upset trade in egg futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. The market finished .1 cent higher to .35 cent lower in a light turnover. Butter was unchanged to .05 cent lower.

SAYS WAR RADIO WORK MUST PAY FOR CIVILIAN DIP

Earnings from military contracts will have to compensate for reduced civilian business, George Gallon, representing the Office of Price Administration consumer durable goods section, told midwestern radio parts makers yesterday in the Civic Opera building.

Manufacturers had complained that the cost of producing radio parts had increased as orders from civilian radio makers diminished. They asked for adjustments in the price schedule which sets a ceiling at the maximum prices which prevailed from July 15 to Oct. 15, 1941.

Gallon said that a report of his conference with the manufacturers will be submitted to the OPA section in Washington as part of a study to determine if the schedule is equitable. Production of civilian radio parts will be discontinued after April 22.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES—ACTION, AFTER DUE REFLECTION

THIS IS FUN! I AM A SIGNAL MAN ON A BIG BATTLESHIP!
VERY MYSTERIOUS! THE FLASHES ARE STEADY... BUT THE DOTS AND DASHES MAKE NO SENSE IN ANY EXISTING CODE!
PERHAPS IT IS AN ENEMY! —ALTHOUGH HE CERTAINLY MUST SEE OUR WING MARKINGS! I WILL REPORT THE INCIDENT TO THE GROUND TROOPS BY WIRELESS! IT IS WELL TO INVESTIGATE ALL SUCH PECULIARITIES IN THE AREA SURROUNDING OUR NEW AIR FIELD!
